HOOVER PRAISES RED CROSS AT GOLDEN JUBILEE

Extols Voluntary Relief Ideals.

ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 21.—[Special.]—Fifty years ago tonight 75 men and women met at the home of Clara Barton in Washington and organized the American Red Cross. Tonight at a dinner attended by 800 national leaders, including the President of the United States and chief justice of the supreme court, and by the ambassadors and ministers of other nations, who joined the golden jubilee of the organization of mercy, which will be observed this year by 3,500 chapters throughout the world, the world's most famous living organizer of the relief of national peoples, whom fate had previously decreed should be President of the republic and president of the parent organization for relief in each emergency year, extolled the deeds and accomplishments of the founder and paid tribute to the ideals of the founder.

Extols Ideals of Founder.

"In so many of the benign agencies that bless our democracy, the President said the dinner, "sprang from a noble and the heart of a woman," Clara Barton, whom Mr. Hoover called the ministering angel of the battlefields and hospitals of the civil war, "was in her own person and her own life," he said, "all that the Red Cross has since become."

With great satisfaction the President pointed to the example of Clara Barton as a vindication of his steadfast attitude during the last session of congress in the adoption of the government plan for relief of sufferers from the drought and insistence upon the need for such charity upon the resources of the Red Cross.

"The Nation," said Mr. Hoover, "has not looked to government for support in times of stress. Governments are usually too slow, frequently too short sighted to meet the sudden, sharp demands of critical emergencies in human suffering. She depended upon the voluntary impulse of the individual human heart to finance the instant need. It gives her the flexibility and freedom of private initiative in her relief."

Extols Present Leadership.

Of the Red Cross, the President added, "Built in this tradition, hundreds of times appealing for emergency aid and receiving immediate response from the people, frequently within a week.

"I refer with reference to his success in the fight against the dole, which was lost by the refusal of the Red Cross to accept a drought relief appropriation from congress, the President lauded John Barton Payne, chairman of the Red Cross, for "holding its organization to its national responsibility as a non-government agency for the expression of the private generosity and humanity of the people."

The President began his address by referring to the Red Cross as "one of the most beautiful flowers of the human spirit and the American devotion representing our people not only generously but "in the most effective exercise of their powers of self-government."

Honors American Citizens.

"The story of the public response to the call of the Red Cross for funds to relieve suffering, Mr. Hoover said, "is the finest illustration has ever been given of the tremendous practical power of pure and unselfish emotion and the enthusiasts of American generosity to finance relief of suffering by conflagration, flood, earthquake and drought. No finer illustration has ever been given of the tremendous practical capacity of an orderly citizenry than the skill and efficiency with which the Red Cross has administered this relief. The combination of the warm heart and the head in action is a personal source of just pride to the American people, for it represents the best of their best."

Honors Among Present.

Among the decoration before the diplomats and other personages present as guests of special honor, a group of Red Cross women, Mrs. Peter Voorhees of Washington, who is the only surviving member of the meeting 50 years ago at the home of Clara Barton.

Many Members Present.

CITY ARRESTS MOTORISTS IN HUNT FOR CASH

All Offenders Taken to Stations.

Chicago's city government, hard pressed for funds, caused the arrest of 1,552 motorists yesterday for failure to procure 1931 state licenses and city vehicle tags. The police did not give the offenders tickets, but took them to district stations, where they were held until they furnished bond.

The campaign was ordered several days ago by Mayor Cermak after a survey showed city tag collections to be approximately $1,500,000 in arrears as compared with collections for a corresponding period last year.

The delinquents arrested yesterday alone would mean approximately $20,000 more in the city fund, it is estimated.

Merchants Are Notified.

Motorists were not the only ones to feel the force of the license drive, however. Notices were served on seventy-one business owners and merchants who had failed to license themselves or their businesses, making a grand total of 1,623 who felt the effects of the campaign. Every form of city license is involved. Even dog owners are included.

Only one hitch occurred in the first day's campaign. That was when an injunction was issued restraining police from closing six garages for failure to comply with stall fee regulations.

Coincidentally new developments arose to strengthen the motor laws. City and park officials met with Chief Justice John J. Sonsteby of the Municipal court to devise a change in the "cafeteria court." Tentative plans already mapped will make "fixing" of arrest slips virtually impossible.

Sign Own Bonds at Night.

At 8 o'clock yesterday morning all city police began arresting motorists who have failed to get 1931 licenses. They were taken to the stations and held until each posted $25 bail. This was ordered by Acting Commissioner John Alcock as a "drastic measure." He pointed out that nearly six months have elapsed and all vehicles should be properly equipped with 1931 plates. The cash bail provision was lifted at 4 o'clock, however, on the request of Chief Justice Sonsteby, and automobilists thereafter were allowed to sign personal bonds of $100.

Following are listed the stations and the number of arrests reported from each:

Hyde Park	19	Maxwell	20
Woodlawn	50	Marquette	76
South Chicago	26	Lawndale	12
East Side	35	Fillmore	40

In the Fillmore street district Charles Cooper, owner of the Twentieth Century theater, 3528 Roosevelt road, and the Gold theater, 3411 Roosevelt road, was taken into technical custody for failure to obtain theater licenses.

Judge William J. Lindsay of the Superior court, issued the temporary injunction on behalf of the garage owners. The petitioning garages were the La Salle-Randolph, 155 North La Salle street; the Lake-La Salle, 120 West Lake street; the Regal, 2209 Devon avenue; the Southgate, 7215 Exchange avenue; the Tower, 215 East Chicago avenue, and the Grove, 7221 Cottage Grove avenue. They pleaded the fee of $1 for each car space or stall was invalid, for it was in effect double taxation.

Seek Remedy For "Fixing."

The meeting to remedy the fixing of traffic violation tickets was attended by park board representatives, judges, police officials, a representative of the Chicago Motor club, and Robert H. Nau, of the Chicago Association of Commerce.

Judge Sonsteby pointed out that in 1930, 300,000 traffic tickets were issued. The "cafeteria court" collected $177,628 in fines and the regular court, $22,182 from a total of 120,000 violators. The rest of the violators, 180,000 were "lost in transit," commented the judge. The tentative plan now is to have books of tickets issue originally from Joseph Gill, clerk of the Municipal court. The original ticket will go to the traffic offender, the duplicate to Mr. Gill.

Each offender will be indexed. If no disposition is shown on the duplicate ticket in a reasonable length of time, a letter will be sent to the motorist. Continued neglect will result in arrest.

Start Outer Bridge June 6; Guns to Roar

A salute of guns from the U. S. S. Wilmette on June 6 will give the signal for the scooping of the first shovel of dirt for the opening of work to complete the $10,000,000 outer drive bridge at the mouth of the Chicago river. The date was set yesterday at a meeting of south and Lincoln park board representatives with officials of the Chicago Plan commission.

CAPT. EDWARD EVERS.

The bridge is to be completed by October, 1932. The northern approach to the bridge from Ohio street has been completed. The approaches from the south, which are to be Field drive and link the outer drive at Randolph street with the bridge, and the extension of Wacker drive to link with Michigan avenue, are to be begun. Of the last units the extension of Wacker drive is to be completed after the bridge is erected.

Tell Width of Bridges.

Both bridges will be 108 feet wide with a provision for two 38 foot roadways. Each roadway will accommodate four lanes of traffic. The main bridge will be of a two leaf trunnion bascule type and provide for 200 feet of channel clearance 22 feet above the water when the bridge is closed. The bridge over the slip will be of single trunnion type.

The war department removed the last obstacle in the way of the bridge project when it approved the application of the Illinois Central railroad and the south park board for a modification of the existing harbor line.

Plans for Ceremony.

Under the plans, formulated yesterday, officials and civic leaders are to gather at the harbor at noon June 6. They will cruise about the site of the project and into the lake on the yacht Mizpah, owned by Commodore Eugene McDonald. Yachts from the Lincoln Park and Jackson Park Yacht clubs are to parade in the harbor.

At 3 o'clock Capt. Edward Evers, U. S. N. R., is to give the signal for the firing of the salute. On this signal President Edward J. Kelly of the south park board and President Warren Wright of the Lincoln park board are to set in motion the steam shovel which will scoop the first load of dirt.

The conference in the offices of the Chicago Plan commission was attended by Hugh E. Young, consulting engineer for both boards and the commission; Eugene S. Taylor, manager of the commission and others.

HOLD TOSCANINI 'PRISONER'; ITALY SEIZES PASSPORT

[Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, May 21.—Paris friends of Arturo Toscanini, conductor of the New York Philharmonic orchestra, today were able to telephone him at his home in Milan and obtain confirmation of a report that his passport was taken from him yesterday by the Italian police and that he was a "voluntary" prisoner in his house. The police informed him that the passport would be returned.

Sig. Toscanini ought to leave within the next 48 hours for Vienna to fulfill a concert engagement there, but it seems entirely to depend on the good will of the Fascist police whether or not he will be able to fulfill the engagement. The conductor admitted that the treatment he had received in his own country since the affair at Bologna had considerably affected his health and nerves. He said that to avoid any demonstrations in the street, either in his favor or hostile, he is remaining at home.

Private information regarding the incidents at Bologna indicate that the conductor's refusal to have either the royal march or the Fascist hymn played at his concert was based on purely artistic grounds. However, when Sig. Toscanini drove to the concert the attack on him showed that news of his refusal had been deliberately spread among Fascists and that the attack had been planned and timed. Sig. Toscanini added that he and his lawyer, who is himself a Fascist, were greeted with cries of "Kill him!" and that both received blows.

JIMMY'S BALL GAME ENDS IN TEARS FOR DAD

Several small boys were playing ball yesterday in the back yard of the home of James Quillin, 8 years old, 821 Wrightwood avenue. During the 8th inning, when the score was tied, 3 to 3, the ball was knocked over the fence into the yard of Otto Wahler, 47 years old, a salesman who lives at 823 Wrightwood. As James and his pals were scaling the fence to retrieve the ball, Wahler emerged from his house, picked up the ball and, James said, refused to return it.

James then ran in to his father, Cosker Quillin, and told his story. "Don't cry, sonny, I'll get your ball," daddy told him. Quillin knocked at the Wahler door. "Give me my son's ball," he demanded. Quillin told the police that Wahler replied by drawing a fountain pen style tear gas pistol from his vest pocket and fired it at him. The gas hit him in the face and temporarily blinded him, Quillin said. He found his way home and called the police, who summoned a doctor. A squad then arrested Wahler on a charge of assault.

The ball game was called off.

Los Angeles Lawyer Gives Himself Up

BULLETIN.

Los Angeles, May 22 (Friday)—(AP)—After questioning David H. Clark, former deputy district attorney, who surrendered for questioning about the murder on Wednesday of Herbert Spencer, former newspaper man, and Charles Crawford, wealthy politician, District Attorney Buron Fitts announced today that Clark had been booked on charges of murder. Fitts and his former deputy had been closeted for more than an hour. Fitts reported Clark would be held in the county jail without bail. The prosecutor said Clark told him he had no statement to make.

Los Angeles, Cal., May 21.—[Special.]—David H. Clark, former deputy of the district attorney and candidate for municipal judge, surrendered to the district attorney late tonight for the murders of Charles Crawford, politician, and Herbert F. Spencer, newspaper editor. According to District Attorney Buron Fitts the evidence linking Clark to the double murder is overwhelming. A search for the young attorney had been conducted by authorities since midafternoon. The double murder occurred in Crawford's office yesterday afternoon.

Clark, it transpired tonight, had been entered as a missing person in police records. Clark disappeared from his home Tuesday and on Wednesday Mrs. Clark called the police. The report still was on the police records when the additional police order was filed demanding Clark's apprehension.

Trace Clark's Movements.

The district attorney said that a trace on Clark's movements indicated he drove directly from his home to a sporting goods store, where he bought a revolver of the same caliber as the one used in the killings.

Meanwhile the sheriff's chemistry bureau had announced that wax impressions of Crawford's right hand showed that he apparently had fired one of the shots.

Police said that three persons have identified Clark's photograph as that of the mystery man who entered Crawford's office to keep an appointment with Crawford and Spencer yesterday afternoon. The three are George Crawford, the dead man's brother and bodyguard; Lucille Fisher, the secretary; and Ray Radke, another employé of Crawford.

Bogus Check First Clew.

The finger of suspicion first veered to the former county prosecutor this afternoon, when the police obtained a check marked "nonsufficient funds" which, according to Fitts and Chief of Detectives Joseph Taylor, was tendered by Clark at a local sporting goods store last Tuesday in payment for a .38 caliber pistol. The check was for $28.

After this disclosure, the Rev. Gustav A. Briegleb, who was with Crawford when the latter died in police hospital last night, said that the last word Crawford uttered was "Dave." He said Crawford whispered the name in answer to the question: "Who shot you?" after Crawford was informed that he was dying.

Clark, who prosecuted Daisy De Boe on charges of theft preferred by Clara Bow of the films, resigned last February and made an unsuccessful race as a candidate for municipal judge. He later opened a law office.

Possible Motive Discussed.

As to a possible motive which Clark might have to shoot the two men, it was explained that "Critic of Critics," the periodical devoted to political dabbling and reputation destroying which Spencer edited and Crawford helped to finance, had changed from supporting Clark to opposing him, in the midst of the hot judgeship election in which Clark was defeated.

Clark was a holdover in the district attorney's office from the régime of Fitts' predecessor—Asa Keyes—now in San Quentin penitentiary after being convicted of conspiracy to commit bribery in office.

THRONGS WATCH PLANES PARADE SAFELY IN GALE

Army Fleet Flies Back to Dayton.

BY ROBERT WOOD.

The United States army air corps paraded before Chicago yesterday, marched across the sky in view of hundreds of thousands of spectators, and wound up with the performance a week and a half of festivities in celebration of the Chicago Jubilee.

Beginning shortly before 9 o'clock yesterday morning, the review and the combat maneuvers which followed were ended by 11. By 3 o'clock in the afternoon the army fleet had evacuated Chicago.

Air Fleet Heads Eastward.

At that hour the last of the 639 planes had left the runways here and had headed back for the mobilization base at Dayton, O., except one group which was en route to Buffalo, N. Y. Only a fleet of empty gasoline trucks and winding mud ruts on five air fields where the wheels of the heavy bombers had left their marks remained as evidence that the greatest air force ever assembled had come and gone.

While the maneuvers yesterday may have lacked some of the thrills of an air circus, the army chiefs disclaimed any intention of staging a death defying spectacle and pointed with pride to a record which they held out as the supreme achievement of their Chicago engagement.

A Record for Safety.

That record, alluded to by Maj. Gen. James E. Fechet, chief of the army air corps, at a luncheon for him in the Stevens hotel, showed that 1,400 men and 650 planes were moved across the sky from Dayton to Chicago and maneuvered here for two days without a single casualty, injury to personnel or serious damage to equipment.

The insistence of the air corps upon safety first, accentuated by orders from the war department, accounted for the loose formation in which the division executed its review and for the apparent desire of the flight leaders to stay well over the water throughout the maneuvers.

Brig. Gen. Benjamin D. Foulois, who rose from the ranks to the post of commander of the Provisional First Air division, was pleased as he watched his men from the roof of the Stevens hotel.

"There are a lot of green lads in that formation," he said. "It is made up of trained and untrained men whom we are welding together into an efficient force. Our greatest desire is to get them all back to their stations safely."

High Wind Separates Groups.

A strong, blustery west wind that whipped flags high up on the skyscrapers into a frensy rose early in the morning to greet the army planes as they ascended from Ford-Lansing, Chicago, Palwaukee, Curtiss and Sky Harbor airports. Caught in the wind, the ships were buffeted about so that the tight formation planned for the maneuver was impossible.

Residents of western suburbs glimpsed the planes as they swarmed about over their points of rendezvous and then swung northward to Waukegan. As they swerved back toward the loop at Waukegan the quartering wind struck the planes and the plans for a soldierly review formation went awry.

Groups separated, giving each other plenty of elbow room. There was no opportunity of circling about or slowing down to close up ranks.

Parade Over Navy Pier.

Twenty minutes early the fleet appeared out of the haze of the north side, following the curve of the lake shore and crossing over the Navy pier. Few spectators missed out on the beginning of the parade, however, for at an early hour the pier and its approaches bulged with crowds.

Leading the column and bobbing about in the wind at 1,500 feet was the 3d attack group. As their yellow wings disappeared over the south side the 11th bombardment group rolled by in a formation which seemed closer because of their great size. Following in columns and echelons were the 21st observation wing, the 1st pursuit wing, and the 22d observation wing, flying at altitudes varying from 500 to 1,500 feet.

The flight commanders maintained a middle distance between ground and "ceiling" because of the gusty wind, which at 4,000 feet was blowing at 45 miles an hour and at gale force through the lower levels. It was a cross wind that frequently caught in the wings, shaking the planes from side to side.

High above the line of parade a half dozen observation planes soared about, and over and under and around the passing ships swarmed other army craft bearing photographers, some of whom stood upright in their cockpits as they ground away at their cameras.

Shortly after the last of the aerial parade passed from view three crack units of bombardment, attack and pursuit planes circled about the head of the Navy pier for their combat maneuvers.

As the bombers laid down a "ground" attack, the 13th attack squadron, under command of Capt. Virgil Hines, swept down on them. While the bombers were retiring the 95th pursuit squadron, under command of Capt. F. O. D. Hunter, dived out of the clouds high above and swept across the attack planes in flights of three. For ten minutes the skies rained planes as the pursuit ships swung back and forth in their attack.

A Snake Dance in the Air.

A maneuver which stood out among all others as a spectacle was the Leftberry circle executed by Capt. Hunter's group. In single file the planes executed an aerial snake dance extending in the air across the Grant park harbor. The maneuvers ended with a smoke screen which was really not a screen at all, for the wind soon dispersed it toward the open water.

As the crowds poured back through Grant park the military staff atop the Stevens retired to the hotel ballroom, where 2,000 distinguished Chicagoans gathered for the luncheon in compliment to Gen. Fechet.

Purpose of the Maneuvers.

The maneuvers, he said, were not held merely to advertise the air corps but were designed to show the people of Chicago and the middle west the importance and the state of development of the nation's air force.

"The purpose of this whole maneuver is to learn how to handle units in a mass movement of the kind now being undertaken," said Gen. Fechet.

"We can put 190 pursuit planes in the air in six minutes, all from the same starting field. We are moving 1,400 men and over 600 planes through 48 states, and to do this the entire flight had to be planned without interrupting the normal training of the various units."

Denies Cost Is $3,000,000.

Gen. Fechet denied the contention of those opposed to the maneuvers that the entire exercise will cost $3,000,000.

"The cost of the exercises is being met by funds saved from our appropriations," he said. "It will involve an extra expenditure above our allotted funds of $35,000, and this amount will be saved during the year. No one can object to the maneuvers of the air corps when it is realized that an efficient air corps is the country's biggest instrument of peace."

Gen. Fechet was introduced by Maj. Gen. Frank Parker, commanding officer of the 6th corps army area. Among those at the speakers' table were Col. Robert Isham Randolph, president of the Chicago Association of Commerce, and Rufus C. Dawes, president of the World's Fair commission.

EARTHBOUND CITY THRILLS TO WAR BIRDS' SKY PLAY

Chicago Takes Morning Off to See Spectacle.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

"What's going on today?" asked an old lady on a Michigan avenue bus yesterday morning.

"It's them army flyers doing their stuff," replied the driver, who was managing about a block every fifteen minutes.

"My stars," said the old lady, "I thought I was coming downtown to shop but it seems I am taking a bus ride."

The creeping, earthbound throngs and the swift freedom of the aerial squadrons presented a contrasting picture of man's limitations and conquests. Like the pigeons of the Art institute the army flyers rode on the wings of the wind, rising and falling, circling and swooping, spiraling happily toward the blue sky as if guided by a common thought, and with the swiftness of thought.

In the sky lanes everything was in perfect order and it was a mere whir from the Navy pier to the planetarium, while below all was a human tangle.

"I wish I had an airplane to take me home," said many a watcher of yesterday's sky parade as he struggled through the loop. It was a demonstration of man's dominance of the air and it brought a new sense of this to thousands.

There is no estimate of the size of the throngs that witnessed the air maneuvers. They extended along the lake front from Waukegan to Gary and in the city at least were densely packed all along the shore parks and boulevards.

From the viewpoint of this observer every one seemed to be trying to get into Grant park. The outer drive all the way from Randolph street to the southern limits of vision was solid with parked automobiles.

Grant Park Is Thronged.

The new Grant park took care of them all and gave them breathing space and a magnificent theater from which to watch this sky action. From every tower and overlooking office building and on every roof the watchers gathered. They poured in from the west in armies. School children made it a happy holiday on the green. Families from the suburbs took a day off and brought all the kids. Breakfast dishes were left untouched.

The airports were crowded to watch the takeoffs. It was regarded as an educational day. The people showed they were proud of the United States army and cheered whenever one of the planes came low enough for them to read the insignia.

It was a perfect day for a show of this kind. A cool breeze came from the southwest and whipped all the flags and Jubilee decorations to attention. The sky was blue with high white clouds drifting by like new continents.

It would not have surprised any one if they had heard a voice from on high calling:

"All aboard for Vega. This way for the ships to the moon. On the right for passengers to Mars."

Ho, for the new armadas of discovery, the voyage to the lands that may lie nearer than any one knows! New worlds, new horizons, new life! Even the old lady on the bus would have taken the announcement with calm.

No airplanes and no radio a few years ago. And who knows what lies beyond? Look at those fellows up there. Farther and farther, sail on and on. Walt Whitman would have loved the spectacle and would have written a new poem of democracy and discovery.

No Calls for First Aid.

Down near Buckingham fountain, which played a soft, soothing melody of falling waters as an undertone to the roaring of the planes above, like freight trains going over a bridge, there was a brand new hospital unit in readiness, furnished by the Surface lines. This was a grim reminder to the crowd that there was some danger up there after all. They clung around this place like flies, but there was no call for action in these tents.

Out on the lake the motor boats darted to and fro looking for trouble, ready to skim to the rescue. Their white wakes cut the green and blue water and the sun flashed on their windshields. But there was no need for them.

This was a spectacle with risk reduced to the minimum. The army takes no unnecessary chances in peace time. The scout planes cleared the way, flying on ahead, or hovering in the rear, coming down almost to the lake at times, then rising on long wings like a giant crane.

Smoke Screen Is Finale.

Sometimes the planes would go above the clouds, and finally, when they decided to go away for good, they made new clouds to hide behind, long white streamers coming out from the tail of the leading plane, which drifted and changed form and thickened until it was a regular Niagara of smoke falling from the sky and settling along the eastern horizon, where it resembled a far off forest fire effect.

Toward the end of the performance the crowd in Grant park had a close view of three planes that flew low over the park and passed in front of the headquarters on the roof of the Stevens hotel. It was the signal that all was over, but the crowds lingered on for an hour or more, anxious to see everything and in no hurry to go home.

JUBILEE SPREADS TO OTHER CITIES; SEEK PLANS HERE

Impressed by the success of the Chicago Jubilee, several other cities are planning similar celebrations, according to a report made yesterday by Frederick J. Ashley, chairman of the Jubilee coördinating committee.

Mr. Ashley said that approaches have been made to the local promoters of the Jubilee by the Merchants' association of New York, the Philadelphia chamber of commerce, and by business leaders in Oklahoma City, Fort Wayne, Cleveland, and other cities. Committees are preparing definite Jubilee plans in Hammond, Ind., and Ottawa, Ill., Mr. Ashley said.

In order to determine the real effects of the Chicago Jubilee, thousands of questionnaires have been sent out by the Chicago Association of Commerce. After these are reviewed the Jubilee promoters will decide whether the celebration should be made an annual event.

Mr. Ashley said that the first answers have indicated a generally favorable attitude, although the feeling seems to be that future Jubilees should be limited to a week in duration and, if possible, be held later in the year.

FLY TO NEW YORK TODAY

Fairfield Air Depot, Dayton, O., May 21.—[Special.]—Arriving safely here after a record flight from the war show in Chicago, the army air fleet rested tonight, preparatory for a takeoff at dawn tomorrow for New York. Only one mishap, and that not serious, occurred when Cadet C. H. Walthall of the 204th squadron of the 3d attack group, and his passenger, Edward Warner, former assistant secretary of the navy for aeronautics, made a forced landing.

At 5 o'clock tomorrow morning the air armada will start for Long Island if the weather is favorable. The "war" maneuvers on the Atlantic seaboard will be held Saturday, with New York City the strategic point. Army officials regard the flight over the mountains of Pennsylvania as one of the big tests of the maneuvers.

Lew Cody Reports Theft of $5,000 Cigaret Case

Hollywood, Cal., May 21.—[Special.]—Lew Cody, film actor, today notified police of the theft of a $5,000 cigaret case, which, he said, was the last gift from his dead wife, Mabel Normand, actress. Cody said the keepsake was stolen from his ranch house.

CUBAN TROOPS CRUSH REVOLT; DISARM POLICE

HAVANA, May 21.—While government offices and newspapers continued to receive telephone and telegraphic reports of a serious revolutionary outbreak in Oriente province today, the administration, through Secretary of the Interior Octavio Zubizarreta, announced that the army had suppressed uprisings in the affected area.

It was pointed out that the government is awaiting definite reports of the situation from military commanders. The latest unconfirmed messages indicate great excitement prevails in all sections of Oriente, and the government admits that confusion and uneasiness reigns in the capital.

Armed Forces Ready.

Secretary Zubizarreta's statement follows:

"Revolutionary attempts starting this morning at Manzanillo, Jiguani, Gibara, Chaparra and Holguin, all Oriente cities, were suppressed by the army today. The government already has taken the necessary steps to prevent trouble and armed forces are ready to meet emergencies, although the government does not fear for events becoming serious. President Machado has not yet ordered suspension of constitutional guarantees in Oriente, although he is entitled to do it by congress. He will not exercise his rights unless a seditious attitude continues to persist. The government is disposed to leniency with disturbers, although determined to maintain order at all costs."

No Deaths Reported.

Unconfirmed messages received here tonight report several persons were injured in demonstrations against the government in the eastern section of the island, though no deaths were reported.

Reports from Santiago tonight confirmed messages that Capt. Evaristo Jomarron, military supervisor at Puerto Padre, has disarmed the municipal city police, although it is not known on what authority or for what reasons the supervisor has acted.

Large quantities of war material were shipped today from Havana to Pinar del Rio, a city on the western extreme of the island. Although latest reports indicate there is perfect order there.

Reports from Mariel stated that Mayor Vidal with several companions believed armed, disappeared last night and their whereabouts are unknown. The army is endeavoring to locate them. Chief of Staff Herbera announced tonight that a military court martial board is to try Maj. Arsenio Ortiz, charged with sundry crimes while supervisor of Oriente. Police are searching Managua hills and caves, eighteen miles from Havana, for alleged hidden contraband arms and munitions.

Cuban Revolt Quelled

The Cuban government last night announced it had crushed an armed revolt in Oriente province. According to reports, citizenry of four cities—Manzanillo, Jiguani, Chaparra, and Holguin—rose in arms.

QUIZ WOMAN ON DEATHS OF 5 WHO SHARED HER HOME

Coroner's Chemist Makes Tests in Two Cases.

Questioned yesterday about the deaths of five men, including her husband and her 17 year old nephew, all of whom died after taking out insurance policies in her favor, Mrs. Margaret Summers, 632 West North avenue, asserted that all had been grateful to her and that she had not asked any of them to make her a beneficiary.

The questioning was resorted to after relatives of the nephew, Thomas Meyers, 17 years old, who died in her home, advanced a theory that he had been poisoned. A chemical analysis of young Meyers' vital organs is being made by the coroner's chemist, but the result will not be known, probably, until tomorrow, in the opinion of Coroner Bundesen.

Exhume Body of Husband.

During the investigation the body of Thomas [Shags] Summers, husband of the woman, was exhumed and will also be examined for poison. His death occurred last August, when he was 37 years old. Neuritis and heart disease, according to the death certificate, were the causes.

The other men who died were William Rieman, 49 years old, a peddler; Louis Meyers, father of Thomas, and Thomas Lanagan. All had at one time or another lived at the Summers home, and all supposedly had died of natural causes.

All Carried Insurance.

Lanagan was insured for $1,000, Rieman for $400, Louis Meyers for $1,200, Thomas Summers for $3,000, and Thomas Meyers for a total of $3,500. Young Meyers' policies named Mrs. Summers as recipient of $2,500 and another aunt, Mrs. Mabel Lawrenz, 4461 Lake Park avenue, as beneficiary for $1,300. Mrs. Lawrenz has expressed the belief that the youth was a poison victim.

It had been suggested that young Meyers may have been poisoned by chewing wall paper, a habit he had. The coroner declared this idea absurd.

No arrests have been made and the prosecutor announced none will be made unless the analysis of the bodies of the youth and of Thomas Summers shows the presence of poison.

...eading the peace conference in ... meeting, it was indicated by the ... that the Truck Owners' asso... had been the first organiza... which went out. He said that a demand had been made that the city hire twenty-five trucks from persons who should be designated by the association officials.

When the mayor's secretary, Henry Sonnenschein, replied that in this event nonunion labor might be hired by the city and that the proposition was not acceptable, the truck men called the strike, according to the afternoon version at the city hall.

Conspiracy, Says Cermak.

"Corrozzo followed the truck men in this political conspiracy," said the mayor during the afternoon. "It was designed to keep former city hall men on the pay rolls. We have been trying to weed out those whose services are unnecessary and those who don't do a full day's work."

City hall officials said the city's rate of pay to contractors for trucks was $27.50 to $32.50 a day, this including the driver's services. A comparison with truck owners hiring to private concerns indicated that $20 was a fair price and all that was being demanded now. The mayor announced in the earlier stages of the strike that he would ask the city council to buy municipal trucks to avoid overpayments.

He also hinted that the city's civil service commission might be asked to investigate the methods with which some civil service jobs were being manipulated in recent months. Lists have been prepared for jobs of impermanent type, such as street labor, and it has been regarded as proper to take the highest ones on the examined list when calls for workers are made by various departments.

Juggling Is Charged.

But these workers are subject to dismissal without trial. It has been reported that many of the eligible list men have been hired for a day or two, fired and paid off, and their places taken by others until the list is exhausted. After that Carrozzo, so the story goes, would be appealed to for a list of workers.

Throughout the whole controversy yesterday Mayor Cermak emphasized his friendship to union labor as such, insisting only that economy was necessary and that this involved the discharge of some workers.

The mayor's expressed determination has been to get the city's work done at a fair price, particularly as regards the trucks. United States District Attorney George E. Q. Johnson declared in a speech on March 13 that contracts had been let in Chicago on which profits of more than 50 per cent had been made, much of which had seemingly been dispensed for political organizations.

RUSSIA WINS OIL MONOPOLY IN SPAIN; U. S. CROWDED OUT

MADRID, May 21.—The conclusion of a contract between the soviet Nafta trust and the Spanish government, under which the soviet trust will supply to Spain virtually its entire requirements in crude and refined petroleum, was announced today by Indalecio Prieto, minister of finance.

Apparently the government monopoly will close the Spanish market to American, British, and Rumanian oil. The soviet contract amounts to a renewal of the previous contract with soviet Russia, which was dropped by the Berenguer government. Señor Prieto figures the contract will mean a saving of about $20,000,000 in three years, on a basis that Russia will sell gasoline 18 to 23 per cent cheaper than any one else.

Under its terms the soviet union will take Spanish products for 20 per cent of the Russian oil delivered.

PARK POLICEMAN SUSPENDED FOR FISTIC DISPLAY

South park Policeman Felix Balano was suspended yesterday and will be taken before the civil service trial board for an alleged unprovoked assault on Milton C. Hess, 6845 Crandon avenue, wealthy president of the Chicago Railway Time Service company.

Mr. Hess, it is alleged, was beaten about the head by Policeman Balano Wednesday during an altercation in the parking space off Monroe street in Grant park, where the policeman was on duty. After parking his car there, Mr. Hess said he started walking toward the loop when a rock sailed past his head. He turned and saw the policeman, who had thrown the rock at a boy. Mr. Hess started to caution the policeman, he said, but Balano became offensive and finally struck him in the eye. Balano then arrested Hess for disorderly conduct and took him to the South State street police station.

Rubs Cat's Fur Wrong Way and Causes Gas Explosion

Spokane, Wash., May 21.—(AP)—Ralph Morse rubbed the cat's fur the wrong way. There was a flaming blast, a feline yowl, a human howl, and they summoned an ambulance for Ralph, who was burned about the face. Morse was putting the cat into the lethal gas chamber at the humane society barns at the time of the accident. Static electricity from the doomed animal ignited the gas. The cat escaped.

VIRGIL KIRKLAND IS EXPECTED TO TESTIFY TODAY

Defense Physicians Say Fall Caused Death.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Valparaiso, Ind., May 21.—[Special.]—Virgil Kirkland's defense to the charge that he raped and murdered his girl friend, Arlene Draves, was continued today with the presentation of medical testimony purporting to prove that the 18 year old girl died of a head injury received during a fall and not from the attacks of Kirkland and his four young companions.

The defense is expected to close tomorrow, with Kirkland taking the stand and telling his story. The state may introduce rebuttal witnesses Saturday and final arguments will be made next Monday and Tuesday. The case probably will be given to the jury next Tuesday afternoon.

The tedium of the evidence offered by a number of physicians today had the jury watching the clock and the judge yawning.

Testimony Is Similar.

The replies of the defense physicians were strikingly similar. Each asserted that Arlene's fall upon the front porch of the Thompson home in Gary was the only cause of her death, and the attacks upon her when she was lying unconscious in an automobile, with freezing weather outside, were not a contributing factor.

It is the defense contention that the girl fell down from a chair in a drunken stupor. The state charges that Kirkland struck her, causing her to fall.

Among the physicians to testify were Dr. Edward Miloslavick, former pathologist for the Austrian government, now of Milwaukee; Dr. Louis K. Eastman, chief of staff of the Keystone hospital, Chicago, and a number of others. Dr. Eastman testified that rape could never cause fatal injuries in any case.

Lie Detector Ruled Out.

The attempt to put Kirkland under the lie detector was defeated at the morning session when Judge Grant Crumpacker, after listening to the testimony of Leonarde Keeler, the inventor, Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, of Chicago and Dr. Clarence W. Muehlberger about the efficacy of the machine, declared:

"I will not permit my court to be used as a testing room for an unproven device."

The judge was also irritated at the hypothetical questions formulated by both state and defense to be put to physician witnesses.

STOP ROBBERS! ORDER TO DETECTIVES AFTER BUSINESS PROTESTS

Protests made by a delegation of business men that the police were negligent in allowing holdups of merchandise trucks southwest of the loop caused Acting Police Commissioner Alcock to issue an order yesterday for harder work and more vigilance on the part of detective bureau squads.

Following out his suggestion, Chief of Detectives John Norton and his first assistant, Lawrence Rafferty, called together the squad men and told them to "produce or get out of the bureau." Each squad leader was informed that if he failed to keep down crime in his district or to capture robbers and thieves a request for his transfer would be made.

The protesting delegation was headed by Col. Robert Isham Randolph of the Association of Commerce, and had representatives of Sears, Roebuck & Co., Montgomery Ward & Co., the Chicago Mail Order company, and the Lipschutz Transportation company. It was related that two of the Lipschutz trucks, carrying merchandise valued at $20,000, had been taken from drivers by gunmen. Because of the case of such robberies the hauling company was having trouble getting insurance on its cargoes, it was said.

FIND THREE MEN GUILTY IN TWO MURDER TRIALS

John Senew, 23 years old, and Walter Evenow, 28 years old, were sentenced to sixty years' imprisonment last night by a jury which found them guilty of the murder of Policeman William Rumbler. In another murder case last night the jury brought in a manslaughter verdict.

Assistant State's Attorney Harry Gabel, who had asked the Senew-Evenow jury to inflict the death penalty, said the state might concur in a motion for a new trial, which was asked by Public Defender Benjamin Bachrach in behalf of Senew after Attorney Thaddeus C. Toudor had hesitated to ask a new trial for Evenow.

The men confessed the crime, which occurred during an attempted robbery of a soft drink parlor at 3174 Milwaukee avenue last October, Prosecutor Gabel pointed out to the jury.

The Alibi of Defense.

The only defense offered by the two was that they had shot each other in a quarrel over a woman, a claim intended to offset the prosecution's evidence that Policeman Rumbler had wounded both before he fell dead. Mrs. Mary Schubert, 22 years old, sweetheart of Evenow, was compelled to be a witness against them, although she was reluctant to testify. Evenow was arrested in her apartment soon after the killing of Policeman Rumbler, and Senew was captured a few weeks later in Columbus, O.

The pair were identified and they confessed, naming Frank "Coakie" Mullen as the third member of the trio which attempted the holdup and encountered the policeman, who was attached to the East Chicago avenue station. He was off duty at the time. Mullen has not been captured. Senew and Evenow told the jury that their confessions were forced from them by beatings administered by policemen.

The jury was out six hours and a number of the jurors favored the death penalty. When the verdict was read Attorney Toudor asked permission to confer with his client to learn whether Evenow wished to ask for a new trial. Judge Charles Williams said he would hear the motion on Monday.

Found Guilty of Manslaughter.

The murder trial which resulted in a manslaughter verdict was that of Frank Scarnavacche, 60 years old, who shot and killed Santo Locasto, 40 years old, during a card game after Locasto took offense at his advice on how to play. The verdict, returned in Judge Joseph B. David's court, carries a penalty of 1 to 14 years in prison.

This case was a test case selected by Judge David in order to have the Supreme court pass on the right of the state to demand a jury trial when the defendant asks to be tried by the court instead of by a jury. Scarnavacche waived a jury and the trial was ready to proceed when the six sons of the victim declared they wished a jury trial. Judge David promptly called a jury.

When the verdict was returned last night Judge David immediately overwished a jury trial.

DEATH DATE SET

JOHN PRESTON.

PRESTON FOUND SANE AT THIRD TRIAL; MUST DIE

John Preston's third sanity trial at Wheaton ended yesterday with a verdict which means he must pay with his life for the murder of Miss Agnes Johnson, whom he raped and murdered in October, 1929. A jury after an hour's deliberation in the afternoon returned a verdict finding the Chicagoan sane. The execution is set for June 19.

Preston was convicted of the murder on Dec. 5, 1929, and the jury fixed his punishment at death in the electric chair. Since then, with the exception of the time taken for the insanity trials, Preston has been confined in the death chamber of the Joliet penitentiary.

Attorney Eugene McGarry obtained the first reprieve for Preston through a petition alleging that Preston had become insane after the verdict which found him guilty of murder. A jury was called to pass on the question of whether Preston was sane or insane, as under the law an insane person may not be executed. This jury found him insane.

Judge John K. Newhall of Aurora set a precedent, which was upheld by the Supreme court, when he granted a motion by the state's attorney for a new trial on the sanity hearing. At the next trial in which Preston's sanity was the issue, the jury was comprised of five women and seven men. They found Preston sane.

Then a Supreme court decision declared unconstitutional the law through which women became eligible for jury service. That voided the second sanity hearing and a third trial was necessary. As it neared its conclusion yesterday Attorney McGarry sought to show that Preston did not know what was going on. He asked Preston if he knew him and Preston jumped up and tried to strike the attorney. McGarry then ended his closing arguments and the jury was out less than an hour in determining that Preston was shamming. The attorney announced he would file motion of appeal to the Supreme court.

HOOVER PRAISES RED CROSS AT GOLDEN JUBILEE

Extols It as Voluntary Relief Agency.

Gallagher of Chicago and Dr. R. P. Andrews of Dansville, N. Y., who with Miss Barton founded at Dansville on Aug. 22, 1881, the first Red Cross chapter and sent food, clothing, and money to pioneering families who had lost their homes in a Michigan forest fire.

Judge Max Huber of Switzerland, president of the international Red Cross committe, recounted the history of the movement to found the organization in relief from suffering, beginning with the work of Florence Nightingale in a Crimean war hospital in 1855 and of Henri Dunant, "spiritual father of the Red Cross," on the battlefield of Solferino in 1859.

Cannot Drop War Services.

Commenting on the Kellogg pact banishing war as an instrument of national policy Judge Huber asked:

"But has the original scope of the Red Cross, the care for the victims of war, become obsolete, and must it nowadays be considered as an anachronism? I am afraid I must say no. We live in a period of transition, therefore of contradicting tendencies and problems. We all most earnestly hope that one day war relief may become obsolete, but we cannot afford to neglect it and to let it fall into oblivion as long as there are armies and navies and as long as the nations are concerned with the problems of armaments.

"The international conferences of the Red Cross have fully understood this situation and, among others, asked for an investigation into the possibilities of protecting the civilian population against the dangers of so-called aerial and chemical warfare."

Miss Mabel T. Boardman, secretary of the Red Cross, who perhaps is entitled to more credit than any other living person for the development of the organization as it functions today, told how the country awoke to its existence when it responded to the call for service in the San Francisco earthquake.

ORDER RELATIVE TO PAY $35,000 FOR AUTO CRASH

A jury in Superior Judge Kavanagh's court yesterday ordered Caryl Seife, western representative of the Zonite Products company, to pay $35,000 to his sister-in-law, Mrs. Anna Seife of Buffalo, for injuries she received a year ago while riding in Seife's automobile. The accident occurred during Seife's wedding trip with his bride of a week.

The sister-in-law testified that Seife and his bride visited her in Buffalo and asked her to accompany them on a trip to Canada. Mrs. Seife said she protested she did not wish to intrude on the wedding trip, but went along because her brother-in-law insisted upon it. She suffered a fractured skull when the car plunged off a road near Ottawa, Canada.

Red Cross Sets Preparedness Goal on Its 50th Birthday

BY JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT.

Far more than flag waving and felicitation distinguished the great birthday party which Chicago chapter of the Red Cross gave in the gold room of the Congress hotel last evening in celebration of the founding of the American Red Cross by Clara Barton fifty years ago.

There were abundant flag waving and felicitation, crashes of band music, salutes to the colors, and a march through the banquet hall of uniformed representatives of scores of Red Cross departments and of societies that work with the Red Cross.

All that pageantry was brilliant and thrilling because it unfolded in a dramatic and jubilant manner the farflung activities of the stalwarts of service whom the Red Cross enlists in works of mercy.

Preparedness Plan Announced.

But the feature of the birthday dinner which made it a genuine bit of history was the announcement of the completion of a magnificent scheme of coördination on which Red Cross experts in Chicago and leaders in the city's commerce and its social services have been working for two years.

Put as briefly as possible the scheme is this: (1) The working out before a disaster of the multitude of problems it creates instead of tackling the problems amid chaos after the disaster has come. (2) Coördination of all the agencies of rescue and relief throughout the Chicago area so that they shall function in a time of trouble instantly and harmoniously instead of wastefully and at cross purposes.

At the time of the Eastland disaster confusion, the lack of a central command and inadequate data on existing agencies of mercy that could have been enlisted caused dire chaos.

The Value of Coördination.

At the time of the tri-state tornado roads around Murphysboro were blocked for fifteen miles with willing workers who did not know what to do.

At the time of the last Mississippi valley flood shameless politicians made the raising of relief funds an excuse for self-exploitation.

Under the system made known last evening a multitude of relief workers will come promptly to the Red Cross instead of the Red Cross frantically seeking them.

Data on the location of warehouses and the extent of their stores of food, bedding, clothing and medical supplies will be instantly available because that information will be kept up to date. The emergency resources of rail, air, water and bus lines, and of privately owned fleets of trucks will be known to the central command, which will also have exact data on the number of doctors and nurses it can count upon from the hospitals.

The Organization of Plan.

The "Disaster Preparedness Plan"—as it last night was named—will be operated by three departments and five committees. They are:

Registration and information department.

Purchases and stores department.

Accounting and statistical department.

Fund raising and publicity committee.

Rescue, medical and nursing committee.

Transportation and communication committee.

Food, clothing and shelter committee.

Survey and intelligence committee.

Members of those departments and committees will be drawn largely from a Red Cross citizens' committee of over one hundred members, with Samuel Insull as their chairman. Among his close aids will be:

Britton I. Budd,	Harold H. Swift,
J. R. Forgan Jr.,	Robert E. Wood,
Philip R. Clarke,	William R. Abbott,
Samuel Insull Jr.,	Max Adler,
D. F. Kelly,	L. A. Downs,
Dr. L. L. McArthur,	Milton J. Foreman,
Lewis E. Myers,	Noble B. Judah.
James Simpson,

James T. Nicholson, who imparted the intricate details of the Preparedness Plan to the assemblage of nearly one thousand Red Cross workers and their guests, will be general secretary of the organization behind the plan.

To Eliminate Hysteria.

He said he believed the plan would eliminate hysteria, "philanthropic" racketeering and waste in the handling of relief work. The extent of the field in which system and reform are necessary was shown by Mr. Nicholson's statement that during the last eight years the Red Cross, without the help—and sometimes, indeed, with the hindrance—of uncoördinated agencies, has had to render relief in disasters averaging one every four days. In 1930 there were 102 major disasters in the United States.

The plan was formulated by experts from the national Red Cross, from the Chicago chapter of the Red Cross, which is the largest in the United States, and from the Business Research corporation of Chicago. Britton I. Budd was chairman of the organizing committee.

The Chicago chapter rounded out its evening of festivity and of work by electing for the coming fiscal year these officers: Chairman, James B Forgan Jr.; vice chairman, John W. Scott; treasurer, Col. A. A. Sprague; secretary and assistant treasurer, Norman G. Stockdale.

One woman—Mrs. George Alexander McKinlock—was elected to the executive committee, and Melvin A. Traylor succeeds the late Frank O. Wetmore on the board of directors.

The area in which the Chicago chapter has applications under the enlarged program of work includes Cook and Du Page counties and the southern half of Lake county. Army, navy and coast guard stations, the American Legion, Boy Scouts, and associations of commerce will be a functioning part of the emergency plan.

BANK IN BOWERY IS TURNING DOWN LARGE DEPOSITS

New York, May 21.—[Special.]—The Bowery Savings bank, the largest institution of its kind in the United States, has been turning away deposits amounting to approximately $2,000,000 a month for the past two months, Henry Bruere, the president, revealed today. The depression, Mr. Bruere said, was responsible for a tremendous influx of depositors.

Apparently the hard times turned people to savings banks as offering greater security for their money. To the depression also must go the credit for increasing the desire of thousands of persons to save.

Mr. Bruere, amplifying his statement before the eleventh annual conference of the National Association of Mutual Savings Banks in Washington, D. C., yesterday, explained today that his bank was not refusing to take new depositors, it is merely restricting the amounts of money these persons are permitted to deposit.

No new account for more than $1,000 was being accepted, he said. Depositors may add to their balances at the rate of $1,000 every three months.

$10,000,000 MORE IS PAID TO CITY FROM TAX FUNDS

A remittance of $10,000,000 on 1929 taxes was sent to City Controller Szymczak yesterday by County Treasurer McDonough, bringing the total turned over to the city to date to $47,000,000. Another remittance of $10,000,000 is expected today. The money is being used by the city and the board of education to redeem 1929 tax anticipation warrants.

Boy Drowned in a Fall Into Water Filled Scow

Eugene Marnett, 9 years old, 9714 South Houston avenue, was drowned yesterday while fishing in the Calumet river near 103d street. With two companions, Lloyd Jarberze, 8 years old, 10035 Exchange avenue, and Charles Keupels, 7 years old, 10109 Commercial avenue, Eugene was sitting on the rim of an old scow, which was filled with water. He lost his balance and fell backward into the scow. The other boys called the police, who recovered the body.

MANVILLE HEIR WEDS ANOTHER FOLLIES BEAUTY

Is the Third Matrimonial Venture of Both.

New York, May 21.—[Special.]—Thomas Franklin Manville Jr., who married a Follies beauty and married his father's stenographer several years ago, thus saving his inheritance as principal heir to the asbestos millions, slipped quietly into the marriage record of the Municipal building early this afternoon and was married for the third time. And his third wife, in entering upon her third marriage, is another Follies girl, Miss Avonne Taylor, whom Florenz Ziegfeld once heralded as the "most beautiful girl I ever glorified."

Mr. Manville and Miss Taylor entered the Municipal building unnoticed and went direct to the marriage chapel.

Almost Elude Reporters.

There, without the knowledge even of the regular clerks of the license bureau, the license was obtained by Jack Kinsler, a law partner of George B. Geary, former chief of Tammany Hall. Deputy Chief Clerk J. J. McCormick performed the brief ceremony.

The couple was discovered by reporters just as the ceremony was concluded.

Mr. Manville, only son of the late Thomas Franklin Manville, who founded and developed Johns-Manville, Inc., gave his age as 27 in his application for a license to marry. He described himself as "retired."

Miss Taylor, who gave her age as 25, stated in the application that she had been married twice before, being divorced in Cleveland in 1920 for desertion, and divorcing her second husband, Louis Gross, in Chicago Feb. 4, 1931. She listed her occupation as "comedienne."

Husband's Name Forgotten.

The bride could not remember, she said, the name of her first husband, who divorced her eleven years ago.

Manville's first wife was the former Florence Huber of the Follies chorus in 1921. They eloped, when Manville was 17, much against the will of his father, who cut off his son's allowance to prevent the latter to support himself. Manville divorced his wife in 1927, thus becoming eligible to inherit his father's fortune.

The elder Manville died in 1925, leaving his fortune, estimated at $30,000,000, to his two children—Thomas F. Jr. and Mrs. Lorraine Manville Gould, wife of Jay Gould. A brother of the asbestos king, Hiram R. Manville, whose daughter Estelle is now the Countess Folke Bernadotte of Sweden, purchased, the 25,000 shares of stock in Johns-Manville, Inc., which Thomas F. Manville Jr. inherited from his father.

A month before his father's death young Manville married Miss Lois Allen McCabe of Lawrence, Kas., his stenographer for the older Manville. A year later they separated and a divorce of last year the second Mrs. Manville secured a Reno divorce on grounds of desertion.

COURT ASKED TO HALT SWANSON'S SUIT ON TRANSIT

ATTORNEY FOSTER.

Attorney Stephen A. Foster, representing two taxpayers who have asked an injunction to prevent the carrying out of the consolidated transit program until the validity of the merger has been decided by the Supreme court, yesterday asked that a court order be issued to stop further hearing on a similar suit pending before Circuit Judge Stanley Klarkowski.

Superior Judge William J. Lindsay a week ago took under advisement the first petition presented by Attorney Foster for his clients, Augustus Olson and Mrs. Elizabeth M. Bass. While this case was being heard Attorney General Carlstrom and State's Attorney Swanson began quo warranto proceedings in the Circuit court to test the validity of the enabling legislation under which the city granted a terminable permit to a consolidated transportation company.

Attorney Foster charged yesterday that the suit brought by the attorney general and state's attorney was a friendly action and that its only purpose was to forestall a decision in his case. Judge Lindsay granted Foster permission to file an amended bill asking for the injunction. Arguments on the new petition will be heard May 28.

ABANDON THREE SCHOOLS TO SAVE, PLEA OF BOGAN

Abandonment of three old elementary schools as a means of effecting an annual saving of $62,000 in operating expenses was recommended to the board of education yesterday by William J. Bogan, superintendent of schools.

Mr. Bogan would abandon the Garfield school, 1426 Newberry avenue, which has 614 students; the Swing school, 1701 South String street, with 483 students, and the Clarke school, 1310 South Ashland avenue, with 938 students. The students in Garfield and Swing schools could be transferred to other schools in their neighborhood, leaving these buildings for use as storehouses, Mr. Bogan said. Clarke school would become a part of Crane Technical High school and its elementary students transferred to other schools.

The superintendent's recommendations to the board will be acted on at its meeting next week.

NEW SHORTAGE IN KANE COUNTY LAID TO BUTKE

Accountants working on the books of the Kane county administration yesterday discovered an additional shortage of $11,000, apparently due to the manipulation of funds by Fred A. Butke, county auditor, who committed suicide in Chicago after defalcations amounting to $65,000 had been found.

According to State's Attorney George D. Carbary, it appeared that Butke had taken the $11,000 by padding bills that were paid by the county poor farm, where virtually all the shortages occurred, and putting the excess over what actually was to be paid into his own pocket. The state's attorney ordered a full investigation of all county accounts to see if more had been stolen.

WOMAN WITH GUN HOLDS UP UTILITY LINE FOR 3 DAYS

For three days Miss Augusta Hank, owner of a farm in Homer township, a mile east of Joliet, stood guard with a shotgun to prevent the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois from putting in poles to carry electric wires in front of her place.

The group of workmen tried to go ahead Wednesday with the erection of the poles, but quit in a hurry when Miss Hank threatened to shoot. But the trouble is all over. An agreement between the company and Miss Hank was made yesterday. As a result farmers in Wells township will be able to use electric lights.

Byrd Erases Deficit from Polar Trip; Lectures End

Waterloo, Ia., May 21.—(AP)—The $100,000 deficit which greeted him on his return from the south pole more than erased, Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd concluded here today the last of a series of 300 public addresses.

Byrd left tonight for Chicago, whence he will fly to Pittsburgh, going from there to his home in Boston. "I'm going to take a vacation for a couple of weeks," he said. "I've waited two years for it and I think I deserve it."

Cardinal Mundelein Back in U. S. from Rome Today

New York, May 21.—(AP)—Cardinal Mundelein of Chicago will return from Rome tomorrow on the Aquitania. He participated in the dedication of the College for the Propagation of the Faith in Rome. Also on the liner are Sir John Reith, director general of the British Broadcasting company; Basil Sidney and his wife, Mary Ellis, who has been playing in "Strange Interlude" in London, and Charles D. Hilles of the Republican national committee.

100,000 Textile Workers in France Go on Strike

LILLE, France, May 21.—(AP)—More than 100,000 textile workers, including 43,000 Belgians, were on strike today in this region over wage difficulties. Empty factories were guarded but there was no violence. Employers at Roubaix and Tourcoing, on the Franco-Belgian frontier, asked the minister of labor to reopen the wage negotiations, inasmuch as Belgian workers were not represented in the former parleys, which ended in a strike.

Fine coffee is not produced by a single condition or operation. It may be fresh picked from the bush or roasted one bean at a time, but if it isn't good coffee to begin with, it won't be good coffee in the cup. The first thing is to know good coffee. Then know where to get it. That requires experience—years in the business. The McLaughlin family have been tapping sources of the world's finest coffee for more than two lifetimes—three generations. LEAGUE ACCUSED OF IMPERIALISM ON LIBERIA 'DEAL'

Venezuela Flays Plan to Reorganize Republic.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GENEVA, May 21.—The familiar charge of imperialism was heard once more today from a Latin-American spokesman, but this time it was flung, not at the United States, but at that traditional protector of oppressed people, the league of nations.

Cesar Zumeta, delegate from Venezuela and a member of the league of nations' council, delivered his attack on league imperialism during an unsuccessful fight against the council's plan to reorganize Liberia. In saying the plan Zumeta declared that it violated the league covenant and amounted to establishing a mandate over a country which had been admitted as a sovereign state. At the close, he hinted such a precedent might lead to the withdrawal from the Geneva organization of all South American countries.

Fear League Intervention.

Zumeta's speech was interpreted as voicing the fear of Latin-American republics that one of their frequent revolutions might some day lead to intervention by the league in their internal affairs. It is doubted here that the Monroe Doctrine would be invoked against such an intervention.

Ironically, the United States is committed in advance to enforcing the league of nation's intervention in Liberia, the true scope of which was revealed for the first time by Zumeta. He charged that at the invitation of the council an official delegate from the United States participated in the deliberations in London last March of a special committee of investigation, which was appointed following sensational disclosures of slavery in the Negro republic and the Liberian government's appeal for assistance.

The committee, he said, chose three experts who will sail for Liberia next month to put into effect a plan for the reorganization of the country decided upon at the London meeting.

Warns Action Will Arouse Foes.

"Let me say that even if it is permitted juridically to acquiesce to the principle of administrative interference which is being accomplished under more or less direct auspices of the league of nations council in Liberia, it would be prudent to examine whether we did not shake the confidence of a great number of states and strengthen the means of the enemies of the league to combat it," the fiery Venesuelan shouted.

It would be difficult to find anything stronger than the term with which Zumeta condemned the league's interference. When it was objected that the interference had the full consent of the Liberian government—at least had the consent of the government's official representative at the London conference, who happened to be a British citizen—Zumeta replied:

"Any state can delegate its powers to another by convention or accord, but for the league to assume imperial functions, or set itself up as a superstate at the consent of states, which delegate such authority, does not suffice; there is the question of capacity and the consent of states to whom the powers are delegated. The league, according to the covenant, cannot exercise, except for considerations of peace, the right of intervention in a territory of a state, or a member of the league, nor can it substitute itself to any degree for the sovereignty of that state.

Liberia Report Bared.

Although the report of the London committee was not a secret, this is the first time it has been drawn to public attention. Among the recommendations of the committee for Liberia were the following:

First, the reorganization of the native political system; second, the suppression of barriers between civilized and uncivilized inhabitants; third, the re-establishment of authority of chiefs over their tribes; fourth, the appointment of European or American commissioners; and fifth, the complete reorganization of the country's interior administration.

The experts appointed by the committee include a health officer, a legal adviser, and a financial expert. Technically they have only advisory powers, but the Liberian government was made to pledge itself to accept all of their recommendations. Zumeta contended that a reorganization not only of the financial but the political system of the country and taking over control of the internal administration by foreigners constitutes a violation of Liberia's sovereignty.

Liberia Is Gratified.

Antoine Sottile, Liberian representative, declared that the country felt nothing but gratitude toward the league and did not regard its action as consituting intervention. He said the council had promised to respect Liberia's sovereignty.

August Zaleski of Poland, reporter for the special committee on Liberia, stated in his report that in the promise to respect the rights of Liberia it had been understood that the "committee did not allow itself to be bound by a too strict juridical definition of the word sovereignty."

After reading the report Zaleski advised that it would be necessary to provide experts with $25,000 instead of the $20,000 which has been asked. The report was adopted with this amendment, but Zumeta did not vote.

Dr. Scottile thanked the council for raising the ante.

The question of a press censorship in time of an international crisis arose today with the presentation of the report of the committee on strengthening means to prevent war. The irrepressible Zaleski demanded "moral disarmament," as the Poles call censorship. The council did not venture any opinion on his scheme, but yielded to the extent of letting him pin a copy of his resolution to the document, which will be handed to the league of nation assembly next fall.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GENEVA, May 21.—Despite reservations and delays, the framework of a concerted plan for European action against the economic crisis took shape today, when a convention for the creation of an international agricultural mortgage credit bank was presented for signature at the Pan-Europe commission's closing session.

Representatives of 17 countries, which expect to borrow from the bank or company, hastened to sign the document. The nations, which must contribute the bulk of the company's $5,000,000 capital, were unable to sign today as they must obtain approval from their home governments first. They indicated, however, that they favored the plan in principle.

Even more important was the adoption of a report of the subcommittee appointed to coördinate the different relief plans. The first recommendation is the creation of a central special committee for economic coördination. It will hold its first sitting here next July. This subcommittee will not be limited to considering only the plan already drafted. It is free to make any proposals on economic questions it sees fit. On June 24 a committee limited to technical experts on economic questions will study Aristide Briand's scheme of international cartels.

The commission managed to take up Russia's scheme for an economic nonaggression pact. Despite vigorous objections from Arthur Henderson, British foreign secretary, the framing of a convention on the protocol, as submitted by Maxim Litvinov, was referred to the coördinating committee to be taken up at its July meeting. The commission adjourned until Sept. 3.

Police Surgeon Arrested by U. S. on Dope Charge

Dr. Maurice J. Rabbins, 46 years old, for the last 20 years a police surgeon attached to police headquarters, was arrested yesterday by federal agents on a charge of unlawfully dispensing narcotics. He was arrested in his offices at 730 South State street and was taken to police headquarters and put in a cell. Federal authorities will take him into custody today. The two agents who arrested Dr. Rabbins said they had obtained narcotics from him without going through the lawful procedure.

HOLD DRIVER FOR BENNY BUTLER'S DEATH IN CRASH

Frank Dalkus, 45 years old, 1515 East 74th street, was recommended held to the grand jury on a charge of manslaughter yesterday by a coroner's jury investigating the death of Benny Butler, south side beer runner. Butler was killed April 28 when the automobile in which he was riding was struck by another car being driven by Dalkus.

Anthony Rathnau, 24 years old, 2037 Canal street, Blue Island, was sentenced to 90 days in jail and fined $100 by Judge Francis Borrelli in Speeders' court on a charge of driving away from the scene of an auto accident. Rathnau was charged with running down Frank Causland, 6641 Lowe avenue. He was arrested the following day. Causland received a broken leg.

Charles Stephenson, 40 years old, 1801 Prairie avenue, a cook, died early this morning in St. Luke's hospital of injuries suffered on Wednesday when he was struck at Indiana avenue and 20th street by an automobile which did not stop.

Mrs. Rose Mickovsky, 54 years old, 1612 Allport street, died early this morning in St. Anthony's hospital of injuries received on Tuesday night when she and another woman, Mrs. Lillian Kanak, 34, of 1613 Allport street, were struck by a stolen automobile in front of Mrs. Mickovsky's home. The occupants of the car fled, abandoning the machine.

The two deaths increased the Cook county motor toll to 437 since Jan. 1.

ALABAMA SUPPORTS NATIVE SON AS STARS AND BARS ORIGINATOR

Montgomery, Ala., May 21.—(AP)—The state of Alabama has backed up its contention that Nicola Marschall, a native son, designed the first confederate flag by an official act and will unveil a tablet to his memory at the confederate reunion here June 2-5.

Back Another's Claim.

Burlington, N. C., May 21.—(AP)—Maj. Orrin Smith of North Carolina and not Nicola Marschall of Alabama has been recognized by the United Daughters of the Confederacy as designers of the original confederate flag, Mrs. J. Dolph Long, former president of the state division, said here today.

Mrs. Long said that recognition of Marschall by the general assembly of Alabama was in direct contradiction to the official action taken by the United Daughters of the Confederacy, the United Sons of the Confederacy and the United Confederate Veterans.

HERE'S how Mr. Robert E. Hindenach, 7935 Prairie Avenue, with the aid of a Tribune Want Ad, helped pay for a year's study at Armour Institute. Mr. Hindenach writes as follows:

"Last fall, after enrolling at Armour Institute, I found that I could use money better than my Ford. Accordingly, on November 1st, 1930, I inserted a want ad in the Tribune. At 7:45 a. m. the day the ad appeared I had a telephone call asking for information. At 9:30 a. m. I gave a demonstration, and received a check in full for the car. This gave me quite a bank account to help me through school."

THE MODEL CITY' OF WASHINGTON CRIME RIDDEN

Murders Recorded Since Jan. 1.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 21.—[Special.]—Washington, the nation's capital, which President Hoover promised to make a model of law enforcement, is aroused, not to say irritated, over its crime wave.

The shootings within the last few days, having behind six murders, are piling up Washington to the fact that when it comes to crime it is no better than any other large city, and worse than some of them, including Chicago.

According to official department of justice records 9,400 major known crimes were committed in Washington last year, or a ratio of 193 per 100,000 population. Chicago in 1930 showed a ratio of 109 major known crimes per 100,000 population.

Crime Ratio for 3 Months.

During the first three months of this year Washington has continued to lead Chicago in crime. Omitting the crimes of rape, aggravated assault and larceny, on which the Chicago statistics are not complete, Washington has a crime ratio for the first quarter of this year of 21 crimes per 100,000, while that of Chicago was only 13.

Eighteen murders—or more than half again as many as Chicago had, taking population into consideration—were written into the capital police records during January, February, and March and since then nine more have been added, bringing the total to date to 27.

But it is not mere figures and percentages which has caused Washington to get excited, a bit afraid of the dark, and a little dubious about thrusting charges of crime at other cities.

Names Dives and Resorts.

Some one had the temerity today to unearth and make public the official police department map showing where the city's dives and resorts are located.

The dots upon the map made the President's model city look like a bad attack of smallpox. They proved that the district police department is thorough, even though some of its citizens are claiming that the department isn't as efficient as it might be.

For, according to the map, Washington, in May, was the home of 582 speakeasies, 114 gambling houses, and 23 disorderly houses. In April, month of cherry blossoms, Washington was harboring 567 speakeasies, 158 gambling houses, and 40 disorderly resorts.

In May the First police precinct, embracing the downtown section, was dotted with 26 speakeasies, 36 gambling houses, and nine disorderly houses; the Third precinct, which includes a large part of the fashionable northwest section, contained 83 speakeasies, 21 gambling houses, and 7 disorderly houses, and old Georgetown with its flavor of bygone days, had a very modern complement of 60 speakeasies and five gambling dens.

Washington has achieved its crime record entirely without the aid of the notorious gangster and his organization, according to Maj. Gen. Herbert B. Crosby, district commissioner in charge of the police department.

"Washington can rest assured that no effort is being spared to keep the city clear of the gangster," said the general, former chief of cavalry, whom President Hoover selected to make the capital a model city.

That Washington is taking its crime seriously was shown today when the Washington Post, supporter of the administration, devoted five front page columns to stories dealing with the latest shootings and the crime situation.

Touted as a Gambler.

Maj. Gen. Crosby was emphatic in his dismissal of suggestions concerning the gangster element. Talley Day, who was killed in a speakeasy quarrel and who had been touted as a gambler, he general described as only "a watchman employed to watch cars outside a gambling place in a neighboring state." And the shooting of Frank Langdon, labor editor, while at lunch yesterday grew out of a labor dispute, the general declared, not in Washington, but in other states.

Only two of the 27 persons murdered in Washington since New Year's were innocent citizens, he said, and as for the confession of John Cunningham, alleged police informer, who died from a bullet in the back Tuesday and named Policeman Wallace J. Middleton as the man who fired it, Maj Gen. Crosby pointed with reassurance to the fact that the department has fired 63 policemen for one reason or another during the last two years.

4 PARK TRUSTEES GET INJUNCTION AGAINST 2 FOES

Protected by an injunction issued yesterday by Superior Judge Denis Sullivan, the members of the north shore park board will attempt to hold another meeting next Wednesday in the board rooms at 1111 Farwell avenue. The court order restrains Thomas F. Myers Jr. and Patrick C. Winn, who claims to have been elected to the board in April, from attending the meeting or creating a disturbance.

The injunction suit was brought by four board members who have been holding office for two years. They contend that the election of Myers and Winn was illegal. When the two men tried to claim their seats by force at a recent meeting three riot calls were sent to the Rogers Park police.

WOMAN ACCUSES N. Y. POLICEMAN OF FRAMING HER

New York, May 21. — [Special.] — Mrs. Rosa Helen Ricchebuono, matronly and eminently respectable looking, today took the witness stand in General Sessions and in broken English told the story of her arrest and alleged "framing" on a prostitution charge by Patrolman Walter V. Ambrax, former member of the vice squad, on trial for perjury.

Mrs. Ricchebuono spoke calmly. She swore that she had never seen Ambrax before the night of July 29, 1930, when he burst into her apartment, accused her of "flirting with him" from a window, attempted to attack her, and then arrested her.

Ambrax's attorney, Samuel Liebowitz, in outlining the defense to the jury, asserted that Ambrax had seen the woman wave at him from her window three nights before, that he had gone to her apartment, and that she had made an engagement with him for the night of July 29.

Ambrax is the seventh policeman to go on trial on indictments growing out of testimony before Referee Samuel Seabury in the appellate division investigation.

EXTRADITE FORMER COP.

Gov. Emmerson yesterday issued a requisition for the extradition of Joseph C. Lamb, former Chicago policeman, from Los Angeles to answer a charge of swindling Mrs. Anna Luby, 7709 South Peoria street, of $12,000.

WHO SAYS SO

No man underestimates the value of the thing he wants to sell. It just isn't done. You don't expect the seller to say that the house he offers at $5,000 is worth but $4,000. As a usual thing, his appraisal is calculated to win your approval

When a merchant tells you that his $30 suits are worth $50 or $60, he is simply following an age-old barter and trade tradition. In this enlightened day and age, it is wise to seek unprejudiced authority for such valuations

Once in awhile an opportunity to offer a special value presents itself—once in awhile. But it is neither plausible nor possible to sell $50 and $60 suits at $30 every day in the year. Constant offerings of this character insult the intelligence. We sincerely believe

WHITELAW REID CHILDREN GIVEN WIDOW'S ESTATE

Many Bequests to Charity and Employes.

New York, May 21.—[Special.]—The will of the late Mrs. Whitelaw Reid, filed for probate in White Plains today, after making philanthropic bequests of $745,000 and other bequests of nearly $1,000,000, creates two trust funds of $3,000,000 each for her daughter and son, Jean Templeton Ward, wife of the Hon. Sir John Hubert Ward of Chilton, Hungerford, England, and Ogden Mills Reid of New York City. Her son and daughter and Henry W. Bull, senior partner of Harriman & Co., are named as executors.

Mrs. Reid's will sets up trust funds of $200,000 each for her son-in-law, Sir Hubert Ward, and her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Helen Rogers Reid, and four trusts of $100,000 each for her grandchildren—Whitelaw Reid, Ogden Rogers Reid, Edward John Sutton Ward and Alexander Reginald Ward. The principal of the trust is to be paid to each of the grandchildren when he is thirty years old.

Remembers Friends and Employés.

Bequests totaling about $62,000 are made by the will of Mrs. Reid to friends, while legacies amounting to $94,000 are left to employés and former employés, exclusive of $500 bequests to chauffeurs and domestics in her service at the time of her death.

Mrs. Reid bequeathed all her jewelry, gold plate, laces and furs and the Louis XVI. tapestry furniture in the drawing room of 451 Madison avenue, together with portraits by Sir Joshua Reynolds, George Romney, John Hoppner and Sir Henry Raeburn, of Lady Ward.

She left Ogden Mills Reid the other contents of the residence on Madison avenue and also the camp and equipment known as "Wildair," on Upper St. Regis lake.

Her will makes no disposition of Mrs. Reid's stock in the New York Tribune, Inc., the corporation that owns and publishes the New York Herald Tribune and the Paris Herald, because, as a statement given out by the law firm filing the document explained, that stock had been transferred in her lifetime to Ogden Mills Reid.

Ophir Hall Owned by Son.

Ophir hall, palatial country home of the Reids at Purchase, N. Y., where the king and queen of Siam are staying during the king's convalescence from a recent eye operation, is not mentioned in the will because it was leased by the late Mrs. Reid from her son, who is understood to have inherited it under the will of his father, the late Whitelaw Reid, former ambassador to the Court of St. James's.

The United States Trust company of New York is named trustee of the trusts created for the benefit of Mrs. Reid's children and grandchildren.

Praised by Mayor

More than 1,200 last night attended a dinner at the Palmer house in honor of the Rev. William J. McNamee, veteran pastor of St. Patrick's Roman Catholic church, and to celebrate the 75th anniversary of the founding of "old St. Patrick's." At the speakers' table were Mayor Cermak and many of Chicago's political and business leaders.

Mayor Cermak pointed to the contributions of St. Patrick's church to this city in terms of character and wholesome influence as well as many widely recognized personalities. Mayor Cermak, on behalf of Chicago, thanked Father McNamee and St. Patrick's parish for the three generations of influence toward good citizenship.

Other speakers were Chief Justice John P. McGoorty of the Criminal court, Joseph P. Savage, member of the Chicago board of education; Charles N. Wheeler, John A. McGarry, County Clerk Robert M. Sweitzer, and Father McNamee. Robert E. Crowe was toastmaster. The championship football team of Ireland, now touring the country, was introduced.

If Mr. Bull qualifies as an executor he is to receive $100,000 in lieu of all commissions.

The will is dated Jan. 23, 1931, and was filed by Anderson, Gasser, Ferris, & Anderson, attorneys for the estate. Mrs. Reid died on April 29 at St. Jean, on the Riviera.

The income of the $3,000,000 created for her two children is to be paid to them during their lifetime, and upon their death, subject to such provisions as they make in their wills, it is to go to their children, the late Mrs. Reid's grandchildren.

Grandchildren Final Beneficiaries.

Mrs. Reid's will provided for the contingency of her son and daughter not surviving her. In that case her daughter-in-law and son-in-law, after deducting the cost of administering the $3,000,000 trusts, would have received one-half the balance of the income from the trusts.

She bequeathed the residuary estate, real and personal, in equal shares to her son and daughter, and in the event they did not survive, their shares were to be held in trust for their children.

The executrix and executors may not sell the real estate disposed of by the will within six years without written consent of Lady Ward and Mr. Reid. The executors are authorized to modify or waive the restrictions on the Madison avenue property.

Specifies Investments.

The will authorizes the trustee or trustees of all the trusts created by the will to sell all or any part of the property of the trust and to reinvest the proceeds in bonds or other obligations of the United States, the state or city of New York, first mortgages on improved real estate in New York City, and in the first mortgage bonds of capital stock of any railroad company that continuously for seven years has paid a dividend of not less than 5 per cent.

Trustee or trustees of the trust created for Lady Ward and her children are authorized to reinvest proceeds of the estate in real estate, improved or unimproved, in the United States, England, Scotland or elsewhere in the British empire, also in governmental securities of Great Britain or in any other English securities or investments.

The largest philanthropic bequest, $500,000, is made to Mills Memorial hospital, San Mateo, Cal.

REVEAL ALFONSO SALTED MILLIONS IN FOREIGN BANKS

BY JAY ALLEN.

[Copyright: 1931: By The Chicago Tribune.]

MADRID, May 21.—That Alfonso of Bourbon will never starve was the conclusion reached today by the republic's fiery minister of finance, Indalecia Prieto.

After a month's digging away at the royal accounts, such as were left behind that night when the mob was clamoring at the gate—a complete book until 1921 and rough entries until 1929 and nothing after—Señor Prieto figures the total wealth of the royal family in 1929 was $8,487,417. The present value should be considerably higher, because of the rise in certain foreign holdings against the decreases in the value of the peseta. Of this, the total of Alfonso's personal fortune was $2,618,850, of which $1,433,825 is safely in banks in France and Switzerland.

Lay Graft to Alfonso.

Without proving that Alfonso will ever rival John D. Rockefeller, Señor Prieto thinks he has allayed the fear that the former monarch will be reduced to playing a guitar on street corners, that he has shown the country that its former sovereign sent money abroad to the detriment of the falling currency, and that he acquired some $900,000 in Spanish securities in a way that is not at all clear.

In fact, here is where the investigation into the former king's alleged profiteering comes in. The origin of this $900,000, which is mostly in companies in close relations with the former royal government, is both obscure and to be suspected, says the Socialist minister of finance. The securities are supposed to be in subways, railways, and oil monopolies.

The general impression is that if the former king had $2,618,850 in 1929, he has at least twice as much now, after figuring his share of the $3,419,800 left by his mother, the late Maria Cristina, of which $2,000,000 was in foreign securities and $750,000 in Spanish securities. The value of Alfonso's holdings now under sequestration, pending the decision of parliament as to whether he was a grafter, is thought to be about $2,000,000.

Señora Prieto said the jewels possessed by various members of the royal family are not listed in the inventory.

10 Hurt in Anti-Church Riot.

CORUNNA, Spain, May 21.—(AP)—Ten persons were cut and bruised today when mounted police, firing their revolvers in the air, charged a crowd of about 200 who were jeering at and threatening teachers who were escorting the 1,300 students from a Catholic primary school.

CUMENTS FROM TAIN HERE TO CUSE FACTOR

Amounts Taken in Stock Swindle.

Franklin R. Overmyer, ing the British government, received by air mail yesterday 250 pages of certified copies of depositions from persons who claim to have been swindled by John [Jake the Barber] Factor. These are to be presented to United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker on Monday when Factor is arraigned on the warrant which was obtained so that he may be taken to London for trial.

this evidence to present, At- Overmyer said he will make objections to Factor's being admitted to bail on Monday. He said the proceedings to be speeded Factor may be taken to England sooner, to face trial on the nu- charges which involve a re- total sum of $5,000,000 accruing to him through the swindles.

Later, the 59 year old financier worked as a barber on the west side of Chicago years ago, after he was born at the age of 11 from Hull, England, where he was born, is tech- ally in custody, although allowed stay in a hotel room. Deputy United States Marshals Leif Ekven- and Joseph Spizzirri, who were ordered to remain with him day and night, brought him to the office of Fred E. Neely, acting collector of internal revenue, yesterday morning.

If it is found that this government for income tax it would be possible for a lien to be put on the trust fund of $5,000,000 which is reported to have estab- lished, it was explained.

There was no solution offered yes- day to the puzzle regarding Fac- citizenship status. Factor claimed not to know whether his father was naturalized before the son became 21 years old. Factor would be classified only as an American citizen, although he might have a dual citizenship if his father was registered as a British subject. Factor would give no infor- mation regarding the passport he used in going from this country to England and France, and then in re- turning here during the last year.

PRESENT AWARDS IN NEWSPAPER AD COMPETITION

Prizes for Exhibits Given at Luncheon.

Chicago advertising men attended a luncheon at the Merchandise Mart yesterday to participate in the granting of awards to the winners in the First Annual Chicago Newspaper Advertising contest, held under the auspices of the advertising council of the Chicago Association of Commerce. Dr. Walter Dill Scott, president of Northwestern university, made the presentations.

Some 600 advertising creations—the work of 125 advertiser participants in the contest—were on exhibit in the east room of the second floor of the Merchandise Mart. The exhibit will be open to the public until May 28, after which it will be displayed throughout Wisconsin and Illinois.

Many subjects were represented in the exhibit, from the gowns and furnishings displayed by State street's department stores to the financial offerings of La Salle street.

The award for the best single advertisement went to Baskin's for its advertisement entitled "Alexander" which appeared in The Tribune. Honorable mention was given to De Met's for its "Mother's Day," prepared by the agency of Needham, Louis & Brorby, Inc.

The Central Public Service corporation won the award for the best national campaign. Its advertisements, prepared by Albert Frank & Co., appeared in the financial section of The Tribune. Honorable mention was given to advertising of the Household Finance corporation, planned by the Charles Daniel Frey company; True Story magazine, handled by the J. R. Hamilton Advertising agency, and Libby, McNeill & Libby, planned by the J. Walter Thompson company.

A. G. Becker & Co. won both the local campaign award and the best illustration award with its "Markets on the March." Needham, Louis & Brorby, Inc., was the agency in both instances. Honorable mention for local campaigns was given to the Hotel Belmont, agency, Aubrey & Moore; Marshall Field, direct advertising; Solvay Coke company, agency, Aubrey & Moore, and Wanzer Milk company, agency, Needham, Louis & Brorby, Inc. Marshall Field & Co. was awarded an honorable mention in the best illustration class with "Facing East."

In the best copy division the Household Finance corporation won the award with "Two Husbands Owed Bills Past Due," agency, prepared by the Charles Daniel Frey company. Honorable mention was given to Erwin, Wasey & Co., with "Written After Hours," and to True Story magazine for the advertisement "Human or Dog Intelligence," prepared by the J. R. Hamilton Advertising agency.

The best layout and typography award went to Marshall Field & Co. for the advertisement "Inconsistency, Coke company for an advertisement Thy Name Is 1930 Fashion." Honorable mention was given to the Solvay prepared by Aubrey & Moore.

QUIZ SLAYER OF 3 ABOUT DEATH OF VICTIM'S MATE

Mattoon, Ill., May 21.—(AP)—Merle Johnson, the former Arkansas farm hand who confessed to killing Mrs. Carrie Bowers and her two small children, was questioned today by her relatives about the sudden death of her husband in April, 1930.

The relatives, some of whom today arrived from their homes in Stuttgart, Ark., declared they believed Bowers died from some other cause than influenza, which was given in the death certificate.

Authorities, leaving the questioning of Johnson temporarily almost entirely up to the relatives, sought to learn a more plausible reason for the triple slaying than that repeatedly given by Johnson—"She wanted me to."

That robbery might have been a motive for the slaying was seen by police in the finding of two of Mrs. Bowers' strong boxes, empty. Her kin said she almost always had considerable money about her home, in which Johnson was a roomer. Johnson denied that he had robber her.

Johnston today told Mrs. Bowers' relatives, they said, that he and Mrs. Bowers had been in love with each other since long before Bowers' death. He said he was the father of the youngest of the slain children.

EDWARDS, ONCE GRID STAR, ASKS FOR A DIVORCE

New York, May 21.—[Special.]—A two year estrangement between William H. "Big Bill" Edwards, former Princeton football star, and his wife, a former Mount Vernon school teacher, culminated today in counter actions for divorce and separation in Supreme court at White Plains.

For the first time in many years newspaper men were excluded from a White Plains court by Justice Graham Whitschief at the request of Alfred Bayley, counsel for Mrs. Edwards, and the specific charges made by Mr. Edwards and his wife therefore were not made public.

It was learned, however, that Mrs. Edwards applied for a separation on the grounds of cruel and inhuman treatment, and that Mr. Edwards countered with a suit for divorce, charging infidelity. Mrs. Edwards asked for $1,000 a month alimony and $10,000 counsel fees.

We haven't been able to match their quality around town for less than $40

Today, an impossibility for many years becomes a reality! Today, for the first time since 1921, the cream of America's blue-blood fabrics tailored in brisk English fashions, are presented at $25 with two trousers. Most stores would label this a "sensational sale". We consider it just another example of how much more we can save for our customers because we make the clothes we sell • • We're proud of the character of these Two Trouser Suits. In their luxury of fabric, their distinguished styles, and their custom-type needling, they are exact counterparts of the costly clothes which for years have been displayed along the upper reaches of New York's exclusive Fifth Avenue. They have the "made-for-me-look" of custom-tailored suits. And they'll hold a sharp crease for a long time • • There are sizes to fit everybody; and a full range of colors for late Spring and early Summer wear. And remember, two trousers with every suit.

King of Denmark Faces Loss of Island.

BY AXEL THORSTEINSON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

REYKJAVIK, Iceland, May 21.—April 14, say the opponents of the government party, must never be forgotten. On that day a motion of censure was to be discussed. The Socialists, hitherto supporters of the government, had allied themselves with their arch enemies, the Independence party [formerly Conservative party] to overthrow the government, which they charged with corruption.

PREMIER TRYGGVI THORHALLSON.

The temporary alliance was based on the fact that the two parties were in agreement on several major issues which the government opposed: Radical changes in the constitution, revision of the electoral laws, a guarantee of a 7,000,000 kroner loan for electrification of the Sog waterfalls, which would benefit the whole of southern Iceland, and several other matters.

Instead of answering the charges, Prime Minister Tryggvi Thorhallsson dissolved the althing in the name of the king. New elections will be held June 12.

Immediately the house was in an uproar. Socialists shouted "Down with the government. Down with the king."

Protest meetings were held all over the country. Mass processions went every day to the prime minister and demanded the resignation of the government. Resolutions to establish a republic were adopted.

Finally the government relented and sacrificed Jonsson and Einar Arnason, minister of finance. This did not satisfy the opposition. They charged the prime minister with giving the king false information. Finally they cabled direct to the king in Denmark, who holds the peculiar position of being the ruler of both countries, which are separate entities politically.

The king replied that he had dissolved the Althing on the responsibility of the government, and that he shared the views of the ministers.

The gravest political crisis in the history of the island followed these events. Prime Minister Thorhallsson, despite all threats, refused to resign.

Observers believe only the reluctance of the opposition leaders to use unconstitutional means saved him. For two days he sat on a volcano, and the island, it is believed, would have seen revolution but for the steadying influence of the opposition leaders.

U. S. TAX COLLECTIONS DROP 360 MILLIONS IN FIRST TEN MONTHS

Washington, D. C., May 21.—(AP)—A decrease of $360,346,405 in the amount of taxes collected by the government in the first ten months of the 1931 fiscal year as compared with the same period a year ago was shown today in statistics issued by the internal revenue bureau.

Collections for the ten months totaled $2,005,500,721 with all of the eight tax divisions showing declines.

Income taxes led with a drop of $314,236,151 to a total of $1,527,073,532. Documentary stamp taxes came next with a decline of $26,862,113 to a total of $52,501,911. Tobacco taxes declined $5,023,947 to $363,969,338.

Estate taxes dropped $9,179,446 to $40,294,196, distilled spirits tax fell off $1,225,693 to $8,681,880.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 21.—[Special.]—An indication that the treasury will oppose any move to increase taxes at the coming session of congress was seen today in an address written by Ogden L. Mills, undersecretary of the treasury, and read by an assistant before the delegates attending the National Association of Mutual Savings Banks.

In his address Mr. Mills asserted that, while the treasury would have a big deficit at the end of the fiscal year, economic conditions were so abnormal that it would be unfair to assume that because receipts were low this year this means something was wrong with the present revenue system.

Although the Mills speech did not touch directly on the question of whether taxes should be increased to balance next year's budget, his remarks were interpreted as indicating that the treasury feels the present rates should be tried out another year before any revision is attempted.

War Tax Cut Too Soon?

At the same time Mr. Mills raised the question of whether or not it was possible that some of the war taxes may have been repealed or modified too soon.

"For the fiscal year 1931 the United States treasury will show the first deficit since 1919, the year in which war financing reached its peak," it was stated. In the intervening period revenues have each year shown a surplus over expenditures; marked progress has been made in the reduction of the public debt; expenditures have been reduced from inflated war levels, and the burden of taxes has been greatly diminished, although without a corresponding reduction in revenue.

"At present," he added, "we are confronted with the relatively new experience of marked increase in current expenditures attended by a sharp decline in revenues and with the prospect of a very large deficit.

"We have seen a tax system which produced some $672,000,000 in 1914 expanded to produce $5,728,000,000 in 1920, the peak year of war levies, and subsequently contracted through four continuing revisions and one temporary reduction.

Cites Experience of Wars.

"There is nothing extraordinary in all this, for invariably our experience with wars has been that the expenditures of the federal government mount sharply to a peak either during or shortly after the period of war activity. Subsequently expenditures decline, but not to the pre-war level, owing partly to continuing expenditures due to war activities, such as the service on the public debt, outlays for military establishments on an increased scale, and the care of war veterans. Also expansion in the civil functions of the government is accelerated during war periods, as compared with the gradual increase in normal peace time."

BOARD TO BRING '32 CONVENTIONS HERE IS NAMED

Hurley Heads Committee of 120 Leaders.

Chicago yesterday took its first official step toward securing one or both of the 1932 presidential conventions when a committee for that purpose, composed of 120 prominent citizens, was selected by President Robert Isham Randolph of the Chicago Association of Commerce.

Edward N. Hurley, war time director of the United States shipping board and former manufacturer, is chairman of the group, which will be known as the Chicago national nominating conventions committee. Members of the committee include leaders in finance, education, commerce, and politics. The membership is divided almost equally between Democrats and Republicans.

EDWARD N. HURLEY.

Other Committee Officials.

Three vice chairmen and a treasurer will assist Mr. Hurley in directing the conventions campaign. The vice chairmen are Sewell L. Avery, president of the United States Gypsum company; Attorney Silas H. Strawn, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, and Melvin A. Traylor, president of the First National Bank and Trust company.

Walter J. Maiatesta, vice president of Aaus, Emerich & Co., investment bankers, is treasurer of the committee. He will be charged with the important task of raising the funds required.

Col. Randolph announced that the committee will take "immediate steps to reach an understanding with both political parties concerning their convention plans." He said that officials of the Association of Commerce already have completed most of the preliminary groundwork in Chicago to assure adequate meeting facilities, housing accommodations, parking requirements, and other preparations required to accommodate gatherings the size of the presidential conventions.

The first meeting of the conventions committee will be held within the next week or ten days, Col. Randolph indicated. At that time arrangements probably will be made to divide the group into subcommittees to promote the campaign.

Preliminary overtures to the Republican and Democratic national committee leaders already have been made unofficially and the reactions are said to have been favorable. Events in Chicago during the last few months, in particular the mayoralty election and the Chicago Jubilee, are believed to have greatly enhanced Chicago's advantages as a convention city in the eyes of the leaders of both parties.

Should the Hurley committee succeed in bringing either of the conventions it will give Chicago a presidential convention for the first time since Warren G. Harding was nominated here by the Republicans in 1920.

LIVES ALONE

YOLA D'AVRIL.

Los Angeles, Cal., May 21.—(AP)—The Times said today Yola d'Avril, French film actress, had admitted she and Edward Ward, music composer, had separated. They were married last Oct. 19. The actress was quoted as saying Ward "is a grand fellow, but our temperaments clashed too much to make our married life happy." The Times said she had consulted an attorney with a view to divorce proceedings.

RUSSIA TO SOW WHEAT FROM A BOMBING PLANE

Yank Expert Introduces Aerial Seeding.

BY HENRY WALES.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VERBLUD, U. S. S. R., April 26.—[By mail.]—Airplane seeding will be tried here at the state experimental farm this fall, and the government has promised an army bombing plane for the tests. Agriculturists here believe in shallow ploughing, and Dr. E. J. Sterniman of Riceville, Ia., one of the experts, insists that the disc plough is the only plough in these parts.

Dr. Sterniman introduced aerial rice seeding at Merced, Cal., with planes flying at 70 miles an hour giving spread of 66 feet. He intends to fly them at 55 miles an hour, if possible, to get a 55 feet spread of seed, which are scattered by the propellor's backwash. In 1918 he planted wheat from the air at Tillary Lake, in the San Joaquin valley of California successfully.

Deep ploughing was argued here and Dr. Sterniman, backed by Leon Margolin, the soviet director of Verblud farm, insisted that a furrow, which penetrates too far, is bad. It turns over the sod, now grown over with weeds, which forms an insulated layer a few inches deep against heat and moisture.

Wind Sucks Out Moisture.

"The hot, dry wind sucks every particle of moisture from the soil above this insulated belt and the seeds cannot develop as they don't get time to strike their tendrils through the moist soil beneath," he said. "Don't disturb the undersoil, but leave it as is to hold moisture."

Dr. Sterniman declared that a wheat seed will penetrate deep enough by falling from an airplane 500 feet to get a grip in newly ploughed soil, and, once harrowed over, it is all right. The advantage of the airplane, besides the speed, is that it will permit sowing before the ground is dry and hard enough to permit tractors to operate.

This space of time may make all the difference between a bumper crop and a famine, as everything depends on the number of days which elapse between the time the wheat is sown, and the date the east wind starts blowing. If the seedlings have not sprouted enough before then, they are doomed to dessication.

Plough Blades Uncleaned.

The Americans are discouraged because they cannot impress on the Russian workers the need for scouring and polishing the plough blades to insure neat well ploughed furrows. All the ploughs I saw were incrusted with thick slabs of dried earth on the steel blades. The Russians looked at the Yankees with disdain when they scraped off the earth.

Then followed a long argument over the relative loss of power in drawpull, registered by a dynamometer, over improperly hooked up implements, and the comparative saving in energy in utilising chilled steel bottoms.

I headed back to Rostov in a "hard" car because none knows when, if ever, the train from Novorossisk for Stallingard will reach the junction at Salsk to take me over to Volga. Hard cars are not heated or lighted and are jammed with uncouth individuals traveling slowly from nowhere to nowhere. Every man has piles of baggage sewn up in bales, in jute bags and wooden boxes, and sometimes they carry their pets with them, mangy curs snapping at every one, not pleasant in a land ridden with hydrophobia and Pasteur's institute a couple thousand miles away.

A 12 Mile an Hour Train.

The conductor and the brakeman didn't even know what time we were due in Rostov, or if they did know they were reluctant to state because they figured the train would be hours late. Sixty kilometers in three hours is the schedule or at a speed of twelve miles per hour. Men and women climb up in the baggage racks at the peril of their lives and the lives of those sitting beneath them, and sleep peacefully while the train jogs along.

We couldn't get ready made tea from the provodnik in a hard car so we decided to brew our own, and just as the water started boiling the locomotive jerked and tipped over the kettle. The hot water ran on a sleeping mutt and he nearly bit everybody's legs off in the whole car before we got him quieted.

The provodnik prepared to fine us heavily for fracturing a rule against cooking on railroad property until somebody explained I was a foreigner and he took a peek and saw I was wearing a hat and decided it was probably true, and so remitted the fine.

Berlin-Shanghai Air Mail Service Opens in June

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, May 21. — An air mail service between Berlin and Shanghai will be launched early next month. At first it will be restricted to mails and freight. The route will touch Moscow, Omsk, Siberia, Manchuria, and Peiping, but the cargoes will be conveyed by train across the Russo-Chinese frontier from Chita into Manchuria. The planes will cover 6,000 miles in five and a half days, thus cutting 11 days from the train journey across Siberia.

BROKER WAIVES EXTRADITION IN $500,000 FRAUD

ottlieb Will Return to Face Charges.

Louis I. Gottlieb, lawyer and mortgage broker who fled from Chicago in November, 1929, after his clients reported losses of $500,000 through fake mortgages, signed an extradition waiver yesterday in Indianapolis and agreed to return to Chicago in custody of Detective Louis Capparelli.

LOUIS GOTTLIEB.

Gottlieb was arrested there Wednesday when one of his victims recognized him. For a time the broker denied his identity and claimed to be a practicing lawyer of Indianapolis.

Assistant State's Attorney Q. J. Chott had prepared an extradition warrant yesterday morning which was to be sent to Gov. Emmerson for his signature and then delivered to the governor of Indiana. But Gottlieb's decision made that warrant unnecessary.

Once Respected Broker.

Gottlieb was a trusted business man for many years, having offices at 1572 North Halsted street and living at 2620 Sheridan road. For a time he made money for his clients, but stock market speculations with their money bankrupted him. An instance of how easy it was for Gottlieb to get other people's money was told at the time by E. J. Steiner, then the lessee of the Walton hotel at 1019 North Dearborn street.

"Gottlieb was my friend for 12 years," said Steiner. "I gave him $42,000 to invest for me and he kept sending me monthly statements which I now know are false. I even let him put a mortgage on my hotel furniture."

The result was that there was a foreclosure on Steiner's mortgage and he was dispossessed. Others who had entrusted their securities to Gottlieb had similar misfortunes. Investigation by the state's attorney's office after Gottlieb fled showed that he duplicated many mortgages and sold the duplicates to his friends. To some of his clients he merely gave notes in lieu of the mortgages they thought they were purchasing.

Gottlieb was indicted on charges of larceny, conspiracy and confidence game. State's Attorney Swanson said he is ready to put Gottlieb on trial at the earliest date possible.

DECLARES FARM MARKET IS VITAL TO CITY BUSINESS

Since the American farmer is a market for more than four times as much manufactured goods as is exported in the most favorable of years, it is of vital interest to cities that agriculture's attempt to improve its marketing position be successful.

CHARLES A. EWING.

This view was expressed yesterday before the Chicago Association of Commerce agricultural committee in an address by Charles A. Ewing of Decatur, president of the National Live Stock Marketing association, created last July under the auspices of the federal farm board.

"At least 60 per cent of Chicago's business is the fabrication and handling of farm products," he declared.

Ewing cited surveys of the last ten years in national farm production to show that farmers received more in years of lean crops than in those of heavy ones.

ART INSTITUTE SEES INJUSTICE IN TAX SPLIT

May Protest Ratio; Cites Operating Expenses.

Officials of the Art Institute may protest against the way in which the museum tax revenue now being collected in the south park district is being distributed among the three museums which benefit by the tax. This was indicated yesterday by Percy B. Eckhart, attorney for the institute.

A recent revenue collection of $92,000 was divided equally among the institute, the Field museum, and the Shedd aquarium. Mr. Eckhart said yesterday he considered it unfair to divide the revenue with no regard for the comparative operating expenses of each institution. It was learned that the annual operating expenses of the Art institute are about $560,000, of the Field museum $400,000, and for the aquarium, which shares the tax this year for the first time, about $220,000.

Tax Rate Is Raised.

Edward J. Kelly, president of the south park commissioners, explained that the legislature in 1925 raised the assessment for museum purposes from 2 cents on every $100 in assessed valuation to 3 cents to accommodate the aquarium. He also said that George E. Gorman, south park attorney, is at work on an opinion as to the power possessed under the law by the commissioners to discriminate between the institutions in passing out the tax money.

"I want it understood that the officials of the Art institute bear no grudge against the Shedd aquarium," said Mr. Eckhart, "but, obviously, an even distribution is grossly unfair when it is considered that the operating expenses of the aquarium are much less than half those of the institute. The south park commissioners have already put us in the predicament of the man on the street corner who begs for nickels with a tin cup.

A Real Public Institution.

"This institute is one of the most characteristically public institutions in the city. It bears no man's name, is a memorial to no one. It has the largest art school in the world. It has $25,000,000 worth of paintings and equipment and it is regarded with favor on the continent. Still it is the only art museum in this country that does not defray all of its operating expenses with tax monies.

"More than 60 per cent of our operating expenses must be met with endowment proceeds which were originally intended for the purchase of paintings and sculpture. The public is benefited immeasurably by these exhibits, the cost of which is not borne by them.

Wants Fair Treatment.

"If a fair allocation of the funds is not made in the future we are going to fight to obtain legislation or whatever we need to increase the tax revenue we are to receive and to guarantee that we receive our just share. We're going to insist that we be fairly treated."

The annual proceeds from the museum tax in past years have been about $420,000, and it will be no greater this year, even with the increased rate, according to George Morrison, auditor for the south park district. He explained that expenses due to the delay in tax collection and the loss and cost of collection will be much greater this year.

NEW DESTROYERS TO SHOOT RIGHT, LEFT, OR UPWARD

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 21.—[Special.]—The new American destroyers to be built under the limitations of the London naval agreement will differ radically in design and armament from vessels of this class now in the United States navy, it became known today. The designs call for vessels with greater speed and almost twice the fire power of the 1,200 ton destroyers now operating with the American fleet.

Designed to meet the menace from the air, the new destroyers will be armed with five fast shooting, hard hitting five inch guns built for effective use against either aerial or ground targets. Mounted on the center line of these vessels broadsides can be fired to the right or left with equal facility. In event of an airplane attack the guns can be elevated like anti-aircraft weapons and their fire directed upwards by electrical fire control.

Longer and Hit Harder.

Previous destroyers have been armed with four 4 inch guns for their main armament. These weapons can be utilized only against surface targets and are useless against aerial attack. The new guns are longer than the old, shoot a much heavier projectile and have a range of about 15,000 yards. The number of torpedo tubes has been reduced from twelve to eight or nine in the new ships.

In increasing the number of guns and reducing the number of torpedo tubes, the United States has been influenced to some extent by the destroyer building of the other major powers.

Profit by German Example.

The construction by Germany of the Ersatz Preussen, its 11-inch gunned pocket battleship, also affected the designs for the new destroyers. Lessons in weight saving through the use of welding and lighter materials in the building of the German ship were taken advantage of by American designers.

Find Skull; May Be That of Missing Ex-Convict

Marion, Ind., May 21.—(AP)—A skull which police believe may be that of Thomas Tucker, missing ex-convict, was found by George Smith, a farmer, today along a creek near here. The spot where the skull was found is about a mile downstream from where a torso was discovered Oct. 13, 1929. Investigating officers said they believed the torso to be that of Tucker, and arrested Edward Blotz, also a former convict, with whom Tucker had lived. Blotz is in jail at Hartford City awaiting trial for murder for the second time June 17, a Blackford Circuit court jury having disagreed at the first trial during the January term.

TAX BILLS URGED BY CERMAK FAIL TO GET SPONSOR

No Legislator Willing to Introduce Them.

BY PERCY WOOD.

[Illinois Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., May 21.—[Special.] The last legislative day of the week

T. J. O'BRIEN.

[illegible] with no [illegible] Hyman as [illegible] forward [illegible] to [illegible] the tax [illegible] reform amendments to house [illegible] all of which are opposed by Mayor Cermak of Chicago.

The plan, proposed to the mayor in his advisory commission, would abolish the Cook county board of assessors, the board of review, and the [illegible] township assessors. The county assessor board has a majority of Democrats, while the reviewers are predominantly Republicans, as are the township assessors. A joint board of three assessor and two reviewers also would be appointed by the president of the Cook county board—is opposed by Mr. Cermak.

Plan Kept on Table.

Saturday, the house revenue committee, on motion of James P. Boyle [Dem., Chicago], voted, in effect, to table the plan when it refused to report house bill 28 so the proposed amendments to it could be discussed. The plan is fatherless at present, despite the insistence of Chicago leaders that they will buy no more tax anticipation warrants until reform in the tax machinery is effected. Today there was much discussion but no action. Corporation Counsel Patrick X. Roach of Chicago, who sought the amendments to the state laws, departed with the comment, it was reported, that the legislators might offer a change of heart if the Chicago schools are forced to close and no money remains to operate the police and fire departments. He made no formal comment pending a talk with the mayor. But there was plenty of talk from the assemblymen.

Politics Enters Discussion.

"Why," said Representative Thomas J. O'Brien [Dem., Chicago], "should the amendments be presented to a holdover?" referred to the fact that P. Roach gave them to Elmer J. Schnackenberg [Rep., Chicago]. "But, at that, it may have been a good thing for it 'stacked' Mr. Schnackenberg on. He introduced house bill 28 which calls for abolition of both boards of assessors and reviewers and so do the amendments. Yet this bill has the chance to support [illegible] be backed down. The other bill introduced, house bill 26, abolishes only the assessors, the Democrats and leave the reviewers, the Republicans [illegible] often."

Mr. Schnackenberg countered with a declaration that he "will never [illegible] to take the power of electing tax [illegible] from the hands of the people."

Raid Still in Abandoned Mine; Take One Prisoner

Federal dry agents yesterday raided a abandoned coal mine three miles east of La Salle and found a 200 gallon still and a 1,500 gallon alcohol [illegible], as well as 200 gallons of mash and 70,000 gallons of mash. A [illegible] string of electric lights led the men from the entrance of the main [illegible] to the distilling apparatus. [illegible] of Smith was arrested and the men patrolled the mine in the belief that others may have gone into [illegible]

SAVING LIVES IN SPRINGFIELD.

The state senate has changed its mind and has voted approval of the bill requiring the licensing of automobile drivers. The bill will now go to the house. As it enjoyed the support of the downstate machine in the senate it may benefit from the same influences in the house. It is not unlikely that the enactment of the measure may accomplish something toward decreasing the number of automobile accidents, though the fact that virtually all present drivers will be licensed without examination would suggest that no great improvement is to be anticipated immediately. That the power to license is subject to abuse goes without saying. Certainly there will be little, if any, gain in accident prevention if licenses are "fixed" to the same extent that other offenses against the automobile code are "fixed."

Another measure which would have promised a great deal more in accident prevention than the license bill was defeated on the same day by the senate. That was the proposal to appropriate $5,000,000 from the state highway fund for beginning construction of an elevated highway through the west side. One elevated highway, to be sure, could not carry all the traffic, but it would have served as an object lesson in the solution not only of the problem of traffic accidents but of traffic congestion as well.

Senator Barbour, who professes to represent a Cook county constituency, voted for the license bill and against the elevated highway. Support of both measures is not unreasonable, but support of one and not the other cannot be justified. The only approximate solution of the problem of automobile accidents is their prevention through engineering. The roads must be built safe. There will always be drivers who will make fatal mistakes of judgment and no licensing board in the world can eliminate them in advance. The obvious and direct means of preventing accidents is to eliminate cross traffic and pedestrians from the automobile highways, for it is at the crossings that the majority of accidents occur.

In sum, the downstate machine, reinforced by small-visioned Chicago members, has rejected a proposal of unquestioned soundness and approved a measure of only doubtful value. This paradox is to be explained by the fact that the appropriation for the elevated highway would have set aside a small portion of Chicago's contribution to the state's road fund for the benefit of Chicago motorists and pedestrians. That, in the opinion of the rural machine, with its stolen majority of the legislature, is not to be thought of. Chicago's $44,000,000 road tax must be spent not in saving Chicago lives but in creating real estate values elsewhere in the state.

MR. JUSTICE FARMER.

The retirement of Mr. Justice Farmer from the Illinois Supreme court ends an official career marked by ability, industry, and integrity. During the first twenty years of the quarter century of the latter's membership of the court not a single case assigned to him passed the second term of court without an opinion. If, during the rush period of the year, any cases accumulated he prepared opinions during the summer recess and appeared at each October term with his docket cleared.

Unfortunately, in 1927 Justice Farmer suffered a paralytic stroke and his subsequent condition has reduced the amount of work he has been able to accomplish. But when stricken Justice Farmer at once took up with associates the question of immediate retirement and it was thereupon unanimously decided that the circumstances did not justify it and that a continuance of his service was required.

Illness took its inevitable toll and the time came when he could no longer carry the burden of his responsibility.

We trust that in retirement he may recover his strength and for long observe with interest the events of coming days.

CHICAGO A SAFE CITY.

District Attorney Johnson's review of crime conditions in Chicago calls attention to the remarkable success achieved thus far in the campaign against organized criminality in this community. Mr. Johnson, who has been an effective contributor to this success, is not indulging in glittering generalities or easy optimism. He is well informed of facts and his comment is both sincere and authoritative. The local public and still more the outside world through which Chicago's sensational crimes have had disproportionate and exaggerated notoriety are not likely to realize the change of conditions. Good conduct is normal and goes without notice.

But the fact is that Chicago has been solving the problem of organized crime with remarkable expedition. The political forces which have given crime its necessary protection have been defeated and retired from power. The sinews of underworld war upon the community have been weakened and the gangs have been demoralized and broken. The agencies of law enforcement have increased their efficiency and fighting spirit. The end is not yet, but in spite of the continuance of some conditions which have made criminal organization more powerful than in the past, the resistance of the forces of order has produced substantial results and Chicago can again take its deserved place among responsible communities, where life and property are assured of the due protection of civilized government.

This should be realized at home and abroad. Chicago never deserved the evil eminence upon which the melodramatic talents of her gangsters had placed her. Her conditions were those of many other great centers and less serious than many little noted in the news. It was a tribute to her vitality and to her personality that her sins and shortcomings gained for her a disproportionate share of ill repute. But Chicago has given a characteristic exhibition of her real quality, her fighting spirit. The city is putting its house in order at the rate at which Chicago accomplishes the jobs she sets her hand to. She is a safe city, which the world may visit with confidence not only of security but of inspiration and instruction. There is no great community in the world that better deserves or more richly repays acquaintance.

THE ARMY IN THE AIR.

The hundreds of thousands of Chicagoans who saw the army air corps maneuvers over the city must have been favorably impressed with the discipline and training of the service. Spectators who were with the armies in France must have been struck, too, with the great improvement since the war in formation flying. That this improvement has not been achieved at the expense of individual skill was demonstrated in the remarkable acrobatics of the mock duel over Navy pier. It is doubtful if more than a few of the war flyers were able to maneuver with equal skill and precision.

Perhaps there was less general appreciation of the difficulty of assembling and coördinating the movements of so large a group of individual machines. When soldiers are under instructions to meet at a particular place and time, those who arrive first need only rest until the others arrive.

That is true, as well, of ships making a rendezvous at sea. The airplane, however, cannot hover. If the squadrons do not arrive as scheduled, the difficulties of assembling in formation are greatly increased. Difficult as the problem must be, the air corps appears to have solved it satisfactorily.

In one respect the air show last summer was more instructive than the air corps' demonstration. Then there was opportunity to compare the performances of the planes of different nations. We can only hope that the tactical skill displayed by our flyers has been accompanied by steady improvement in the speed, climbing power, maneuverability and weight carrying capacity of our various types of ship. Even the best of pilots is handicapped, and perhaps hopelessly handicapped, if his ship is inferior. That is a lesson which a war would quickly teach, but at heavy cost in lives.

SEMPER FIDELIS.

French military engineers, at the risk of their lives, extricated the body of Brig. Gen. Robert H. Dunlap of the United States marine corps from the débris which had crashed down on him as he tried to save the life of a woman in the village of Cinqmars-la-Pile, near Tours. Gen. Dunlap had been studying at the French war college and was taking a vacation with Mrs. Dunlap. The endangered woman was at work in a dairy house when rocks on the hillside above were loosed. She saw her danger and screamed. Gen. Dunlap sprang into the landslide to rescue her and was killed, but he had succeeded in bracing his body above her, and when the engineers reached the spot after hours of dangerous work that was the position in which he was found. The woman was badly hurt and almost insane with terror, but alive.

When the heroic scene was uncovered the French soldiers snapped into a salute to the dead. The woman's husband also had gone to her rescue. His body also was taken from the ruins. The woman had lost a leg and may or may not live, but her one chance of escape was under the crushed body of the American soldier who went to her aid with an instinct ascendant over any claim his own life and security had on him. Military virtue puts a new star in its bright sky.

The French soldiers, in their turn, were exemplars of this virtue as they worked under the threatening masses poised above them, but with Gen. Dunlap duty came as one flash and the response as another. The qualities of the soldier were automatic. Character and opportunity fused in instant action, sacrificing one life to save another. The spiritual significance of the act was its immediacy. It was spontaneous in the true sense of revealing inherent quality, military virtue as courage priceless among the nobler attributes of mankind.

The French, who prize such gallantry, will have a new shrine dedicated to the faithfulness of the American soldier, and the American marines will have pride in the name of an officer who lived and died in the tradition of the service. Semper Fidelis.

Editorial of the Day

[The Peoria Transcript.]

The President's proposal to eliminate army posts which have no manifest military value, rather than reduce appropriations for rivers and harbors, will be widely approved by people who live on or near navigable streams. At the same time a political battle is in the offing, and the Democrats in both houses may be expected to make the welkin ring in their efforts to embarrass the President by defending, on sentimental and patriotic grounds, the maintenance of all forts and posts.

The war department considers approximately 40 army posts as utterly worthless as peace time stations. Nevertheless, the secretary of war and Chairman Wood of the house appropriations committee have raised an issue. This, inevitably, will bring about a battle in congress over the President's policies.

The country on the whole will probably be apathetic. Opposition to federal appropriations for waterway purposes may be anticipated from the railroads, and if a cut in army post maintenance is proposed, pressure will be brought to make a similar cut in waterway expenditures.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

LIFE IS SO FULL OF SUCH NUMBERS OF THINGS.

We just can't understand Ralph Barton's giving as the reason for ending his life: "I did it because I am fed up with inventing devices for getting through twenty-four hours every day." It doesn't seem as though anybody these days would have to invent devices to get him through the twenty-four hours. Almost every day, and sometimes two or three times a day, when we have to jump for our lives to avoid being hit by a mad careening auto we have enough to think about until evening anyhow.

And when one goes out for a trip in his car it's even worse. Scientists say that ten per cent of automobile drivers are on the lunacy border line. We'd say they are not on the border line, they are way over. They shoot their cars along the road at sixty, seventy, or even ninety miles an hour, regardless of everything. They jump out of their place in the long procession of cars coming into town Sunday afternoon and charge like mad down the lane that belongs to the traffic passing in the opposite direction. Then there are the road hogs that straddle the line dividing the two lane roads, and there they stay in spite of all manner of honking for them to get over.

And then there's the stock reports. Read where your pet stock, Amalgamated Sawdust, has hit a new low after tumbling thirty-five points in an hour and a half, and why go to the trouble of using a gun? The shock is enough to put an X in the picture showing where the body was found. Or suppose your pet stock, instead of a new low, goes up? The shock would be even greater. Or suppose your lady wife hangs all her diamonds and pearls and rubies and things on herself against your most piteous and earnest entreaties and you go to the theater and a speakeasy and get home without having guns pressed against the pit of your stomach and being told by a couple of bandits to stick up the mitts and keep 'em up? What a shock that would be!

And suppose you went to a party where the hostess hadn't been able to get hold of any gin, and as a consequence there were no cocktails? There'd be a real shock. Or suppose you met a financier who didn't tell you how this present depression could be ended in thirty days? Or somebody who gave three rousing cheers for the present administration down at Washington? Talk about shocks!

So why, with the possibility of any of these things happening, should one worry about inventing devices for getting through twenty-four hours every day? Tut, tut; there's something happening every minute!

WERE I YOUR LOVER.

Were I your lover I would stroll with you
On wind-lapped hills the calm of heaven know,
And I would go with you into the scent
Of woodlands and the fragrance of far gardens,
And run with you down unknown paths, and clasp
You to me in the haloed light of stars. . . .

And I would hear you sing a little song,
Your low voice passionately sad, and feel
Its music coursing through my veins. . . . And I
Would cry with you on summer nights that throb
With heavy beauty, oh cry tenderly
At being so young and in each other's arms.

And wailing winter nights I'd hear you read
The poems that have made you weep, or shake
With sudden rapture. . . . And I would wrap you
Round with tenderness when life had wrought
A little hurt in you, and steep you deep
In heightened splendor when you tired of life.

And I would be the ardent lover always,
But the playmate, too, the slave, the jester
And the rogue. . . . Breathlessly to sail with you
Into a wild foreboding sea, with spray
A purging good, and laugh at life with you,
And live intensely in a world our own. . . .

You search for love and I for glamour—life!
May not we meeting find they are the same:
Two quests fulfilled in one immortal kiss?

MRS. SALINA GLADISH of Petersburg, Ind., says a snake swallowed a china nest egg on her farm. Since the schools of journalism have multiplied so fast we notice a great improvement in the stuff sent in by the country correspondents. The story used to be that the snake crawled into the farm and swallowed a doorknob, mistaking it for an egg. A china egg shows the modern tendency in journalism is towards breaking away from tradition and old methods.

PROTECT YOURSELF AGAINST TYPHOID.

THE summer season approaches. Presently people will be making their vacation plans. Some will go into places where they will be exposed to typhoid infection, and it will not be feasible to purify the water they are to drink or to get pasteurized milk. They want to know something about vaccination against typhoid.

In the Olean epidemic of typhoid there was proof that vaccination confers considerable immunity nine years after. In that community there were one thousand people who had been vaccinated against typhoid fever during the world war and had not been vaccinated since. Some of these had typhoid, but the disease among them was only one-fourth as prevalent as it was among one thousand people of the same age who had never been vaccinated. Of the 248 cases there were 24 who had had one to three protective injections of typhoid vaccine. Some had had all three injections after being exposed and more had only had time to take one or two shots before they got sick. This shows that injection after exposure is apt to fail to give protection. Some of the cases of typhoid got sick four days after exposure. Most of the others had a longer incubation period. Typhoid vaccination as an emergency procedure had shortcomings. Locking the stable door late is never entirely satisfactory. The number of people vaccinated ran into the thousands. The bad effects of vaccination were determined with some detail.

Among several thousand school children vaccinated there was an average loss of 29.5 days of attendance for each 100 pupils or, about one day lost from school for each three pupils. Or, one-third of the pupils lost one day each. The cause of the absences from schools was, per 100 pupils, 13.4 days, or less than one day for each seven pupils, on account of sore arms; about one day for each ten pupils on account of headache; one for each twelve on account of general aching; one out of each one hundred and twenty because of dizziness. The older pupils had a higher proportionate loss of attendance than the younger ones.

This is about all the information the report had for prospective vacationists on the subject of vaccination against typhoid, unless it be this: It appears that a high percentage of those who have had typhoid are still typhoid carriers after the end of several years. Vacationists should know that a water may be clear, cold, and appealing to the tongue, nose, and eye and still be badly polluted.

The best way to make polluted water safe is to heat it. Water can be heated enough to make it safe without causing it to have a flat taste. Of the chemicals used to purify water, the best are alcoholic iodine, chlorine, and the chloramine preparations.

WILL NOT HARM SCALP.

J. E. writes:

1. Would the daily use of an electric vibrator with rubber teeth harm the scalp or hair?
2. Would the rubber teeth, which become slightly warm, harm the scalp or hair?
3. Hair that I find on the comb has small, white balls on the end. Is this white ball the root?

REPLY:

1. No.
2. No.
3. It is, so far as there is any hair root.

BRAIN ABSCESS.

R. W. writes:

1. What are the symptoms of an abscess of the brain?
2. Can a burning sensation around the lower part of the diaphragm in the center of the chest, which tends to catch at the throat, be a form of indigestion?
3. Can a girl of twenty-three have cancer?

REPLY.

1. They vary. Usually there is a history of fracture, injury, or operation on the skull or upper face. The symptoms may be similar to those of apoplexy. They are largely determined by the location of the abscess.
2. Yes.
3. Yes.

WOULD INCREASE WEIGHT.

R. R. writes: Will the taking of one quart of acidophilus milk in conjunction with three good meals a day have a tendency to increase the weight?

REPLY.

I think so. Why not decrease the other foods?

TO SECURE BIRTH CERTIFICATE.

Chicago, May 6.—[Friend of the People.]—Through the carelessness of a doctor, my wife's birth was never registered. Where could she get a birth certificate? Could she get a passport to leave the United States? S. J. W.

Reports of births are filed in the office of the registration district in which births occur, and inquiries concerning them should be addressed to the registrar of births in the city, town or village in which the birth occurred. Applications for copies of records of children born in Chicago, Ill., should be sent to the Chicago department of health, room 707, city hall, and should contain the following information: [a] Full name of child as given at time of birth; [b] the exact date of birth; [c] the place of birth [address or hospital]; [d] the names of parents [if possible]. Applications in connection with births which occurred prior to 1898, or in the period from 1909 to 1915, inclusive, should be sent to the county clerk, room 233, county building, Chicago. If no record can be found in that office, request a statement to that effect and apply to the department of health for a further search. If no record of a child's birth is found in the office of the county clerk or in the health department, a record may be established by the following procedure: [a] Have the physician or midwife who attended at the birth file a certificate of birth [state form V. S. No. 1] with the department of health; [b] if the attending physician or midwife has since died or has left the city and cannot be located, the father or mother may register the child's birth by a duly notarized affidavit [state form V. S. No. 10], setting forth the facts, and by filing out a certificate of birth [state form V. S. No. 17], to accompany the affidavit. Every item in the certificate must be filled out [in ink] completely and correctly as of date of birth, with the exception of item 22, which must be filled out and signed by the affiant in place of the attending physician or midwife; [c] if both parents are dead, the birth may be registered in the manner outlined above by the next nearest of kin, who signs the certificate at item 22, indicating his relationship to the child named in the certificate and affidavit. Certificates of birth and affidavits [state forms V. S. Nos. 1 and 10, respectively] are furnished by the department of health and must be filled out in black ink. When births are registered by affidavit the law requires that a fee of 25 cents shall be paid. There is also a legal fee of 50 cents required for each certified copy of any record issued, remittance to be made by cashier's check, certified check, or money order made payable to the city collector of Chicago.

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

MAY 22, 1915.

ROME.—The Italian senate by a vote of 262 to 2 adopted the bill already passed by the deputies, conferring extraordinary powers on the government in the event of war. The cabinet is now in full control of the government and it is confidently expected that it will soon draft a declaration of war against Austria-Hungary. A Brescia dispatch says that the Austrians evidently consider a state of war between the dual monarchy and Italy already exists. From Switzerland comes information that large bodies of Austrian troops are in the upper valley of the Adige river and the Schulden valley. A Venice dispatch says that Austria has begun interning all Italian males between the ages of 17 and 60 and that 50,000 Italians have been sent to concentration camps in Carniola and Croatia.

LONDON. — The Copenhagen correspondent of the Daily Mail wires that Germany is about to call 2,000,000 more men to the front. The general staff estimates that 500,000 will be needed to defend the Austrian frontier against Italy.

LONDON.—The attack on the competency of Lord Kitchener, war secretary, by the London Daily Mail, the Times and other papers owned by Lord Northcliffe has raised a storm of protest that is rocking all Britain.

LONDON. — A dispatch from The Ague asserts that Ambassador Gerard at Berlin is warning all Americans in Germany who are not detained there by important business to get out. United States consuls in all cities are advising Americans to register.

CHICAGO.—One man was killed and four injured by the caving in of a section of the stone sidewalk in front of the partly demolished Central Music Hall, Randolph and State streets.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. — The Cambridge Fourth National Bank building was wrecked in what is believed to have been an attempt to steal a little black trunk containing about $15,000 in cash and securities. The plan might have been successful had not the shock of the explosion blown the trunk out of reach. The brick bank building was badly damaged. It is supposed a dynamite bomb was exploded.

NEW YORK.—Gen. Fitz-John Porter died at his home in Morristown, N. J., at the age of 80. The famous officer had been ill with diabetes for a long time. He was instructor at the military academy from 1849 to 1855 and in 1860 he planned the defenses of Charleston, subsequently constructed by Maj. Anderson. Shortly after the second battle of Bull Run he was in command of a corps and received orders to advance, but the situation was such he declared himself unable to obey. Because of this he was the defendant in the most noted court martial of the civil war and was convicted of cowardice and disobedience, a verdict that stood for 16 years, when it was reversed and he was praised for his action.

MANILA.—It is announced from headquarters of the Federal party that negotiations looking to the surrender of Gen. Malvar have failed and that Gen. Malvar has proclaimed himself dictator in succession to Aguinaldo.

EDITORIAL. — The Tribune presents to 63,000 purchasers and 200,000 readers this morning, in addition to a large regular issue of twenty pages, the revised edition of the New Testament, entire. The whole work, without the omission of a single chapter or verse, is contained in 16 pages of the size usually issued from this office. There are journals which would find a publication of this kind a considerable undertaking. But The Tribune's typographical and mechanical resources are such that it can issue any volume of ordinary size at a day's notice. The public may be interested to know that the first type of the New Testament as it appears in our columns today was set at 10 o'clock yesterday morning and the last page made up and stereotyped at 10 o'clock last night. The job was completed therefore in precisely twelve hours. Ninety compositors were employed in setting type and five in correcting errors noted by the proof readers. At 4 o'clock in the afternoon many of the compositors engaged upon the New Testament were required to set advertisements. If the whole force had been employed on the first work continuously it would have been finished in something less than eight hours.

CHICAGO.—A Tribune reporter on State street was struck by a familiar face and followed it into the Palmer house. There stood Jefferson Davis, the hero of the hoop skirts, the ex-president of the confederate states of America. With him was Gen. Crafts J. Wright, who introduced the reporter to the courtly old gentleman of the old southern school, clad in faded blue trousers, neat small shoes, a silk-alpaca coat and vest, with a rumpled silk stock,

ON PACIFISM.

Chicago, May 19.—I desire to express the highest praise and commendation of your editorials in general, and especially of those in last Sunday's Tribune, "The Russian Comedy" and "Churches in Politics."

While claiming to be a thorough modernist, I am glad to testify that I have no sympathy whatever with the pacifist periodical which you quote. You exactly and very ably state the position of myself and I am sure of many other clergymen.

I have made a thorough study of the Russian situation for some years, and am amazed at the ignorance on this subject among the clergy and others who could and should know better. It seems that it is really true that men, even those who are supposed to think, find it easy to believe that which they want to believe, regardless of fact.

W. O. BUTLER,
Rector, St. John's Church.

A VACATION FOR LAW MAKERS.

Chicago, May 18.—The papers make mention of the fact that the legislature of the state of Illinois has 1,700 bills before it. Fortunately the majority of these will be allowed to die. By this time it should be evident to the man in the street that legislatures are the most costly and useless incumbrance that can be inflicted upon a country during the course of an economic readjustment. Legislatures are a habit, an old Spanish custom or what you will, but the country as a whole would be well advised to retire the senate, the house of representatives and all state legislatures and city councils for a period of, say, ten years. The officiating power could be left in the hands of governors and mayors, with the hopeful assurance that at the end of the decade most legislators would be affixed to the end of wheelbarrows and abortive laws honored more in the breach than the observance.

TERRY.

ASSESSMENT REFORM.

Chicago, May 15.—Is something still delaying the Schnackenberg bill for replacing the inefficient board of assessors and board of review with a businesslike system under single control? Since it was stated that the legislators at Springfield were waiting to hear from Mayor Cermak before taking action in this matter nothing seems to have happened. It is certainly unbelievable that anybody having public welfare at heart could hesitate to favor this bill, which is sponsored by the citizens' committee for tax relief and seems absolutely necessary for remedying present desperate conditions and if the mayor, instead of promptly supporting this reform, should happen to surrender to political expediency and jobbery the consequences will be discreditable to his administration and generally deplorable. C. B.

THE FIGHT FOR SAFETY.

Chicago, May 15.—The splendid campaign against lawless driving which The Chicago Tribune is carrying on through its cartoons and on its editorial page is a source of gratification to those of us whose business it is to reduce the toll of reckless slaughter on our highways. Your editorial in Wednesday's Tribune, "The Man-Killing Driver," was especially fine.

While many of our large cities are making excellent strides in cutting down motor vehicle fatalities, Chicago is not one of them. From all indications the traffic death toll this year will be far ahead of anything we have ever experienced.

I want you to know that we thoroughly appreciate your efforts.

W. H. CAMERON,
Managing Director National Safety Council.

BLARNEY.

Chicago, May 15.—Diane Malley tells us if Ireland's best had come over to the Golden Gloves tournament the Stadium wouldn't have been big enough. She also bets 99.44-100 per cent of the sons of the sod would be eligible as amateur battlers. What she means is that they would be that in bragging and arguing. I'll make the same bet. P. L.

THE COST OF SCHOOLS.

Kokomo, Ind., May 18.—It is proper for ex-Gov. Dunne to ask that the words used some fifty years ago by another Judge Dunne in regard to the public schools be not attributed to him. The proper Judge Dunne, however, should [if alive] be found and publicly complimented for uttering a very profound and wise forecast concerning the school system of America, if it be true he really used these words in referring to the public school system, "unless soon abandoned, will destroy the whole system of American government." It was heresy then, as it is now, to say this, but it is none the less true that the kind of school system we now have has practically bankrupted the nation financially and has nurtured a false culture that has made society so top heavy it is almost ready to fall. W. E. B.

SOME READ THE FIRST LINE, TOO.

Chicago, May 18. — Today's Chicago Tribune's headline says, "Two Slain in Night Club Row." Is it fair to our city to carry such a headline without stating in the headline where the crime was committed? All loyal Chicagoans answer "No." Mrs. John M. O'Connor.

SUPPLY AND DEMAND.

Polo, Ill., May 17.—Why should not this inexorable law of supply and demand apply to labor as well as to farm products? Now that there is a surplus of labor, why not let this well known law regulate wage scales? The laborer is not entitled to a "cost of living" wage any more than the farmer is entitled to a "cost of production" price for his produce. Let's be consistent.

LOUIS B. JONES.

CAN SUCH THINGS BE!

Brazil, Ind., May 17.—I want to say a word about Little Orphan Annie. It seems to me strange that a child of her age is not made to go to school, but is allowed to work in a store. Her daily certainly turned out to be a flop. And the artist who draws Harold Teen must have been day dreaming when he drew today's. In the first picture, of Harold driving the car, the steering wheel is on the right side, while in the last picture it is on the left. How come?

NONA SMITH.

MAIL DELIVERY.

Chicago, May 13.—I have often wondered why, when we live only three blocks from the Logan Square postoffice, we do not receive our mail before 11:30 for first delivery, and sometimes as late as 12:55 p. m. All four of our family have been out of work for a good many months and it is rather discouraging to answer The Tribune ads and, as has happened four times in the last six weeks, to get an answer at 11:30 telling us to call at 9:30 a. m. I can see no reason for this, as I have seen mail much further away delivered at 8 a. m.

DISGUSTED.

A HAPPY MEMORY.

Chicago, May 17.—As the ten days of Jubilee are drawing to a close I wish to voice my desire that it shall not be repeated each year. It will always be a wonderful memory for all lovers of Chicago, especially for those born and brought up here, as I have been, who love every yellow dog in it. It appears to me that if it is made a yearly event it will become common and commercialized. Let us keep it a beautiful and happy memory, just as our World's Fair is to so many of us who lived through that glorious summer.

VIRGINIA S. TANE.

THE CHUMLEY.

Chicago, May 18.—If I am correct, last Saturday was the 57th running of the Kentucky Derby. For 56 years Americans have been calling this the Kentucky Derby. Now along comes Lord Derby of England, who pronounced his name Darby, and the 57th Kentucky Derby turns out to be a "Darby." Evidently our radio announcers have been educated in England since the last running. Why not retain at least one American tradition?

15 ACRE ISLAND FOR FOOD EXHIBIT AT WORLD FAIR

Will Show Romance of What We Eat.

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

The romance of honey production, the spectacle of fifty cows being bathed, dried, and milked in twelve and a half minutes to provide 101 dairy products—these processes are only a suggestion of the thrilling drama of food production to be portrayed on Chicago's lake front in 1933.

A century of progress in an industry responsible in large part for the building of New York, Paris, London, or any other great metropolis, will be a brave, fast moving tale, set forth, however, in simple and interesting fashion.

Food Consumption in U. S.

"The importance of the food exhibits cannot be overestimated," Harvey J. Sconce, chief of the agricultural division of the Century of Progress exposition, said.

Mr. Sconce, a director of Armour & Co., is peculiarly fitted for his position, since he has experimented with plant breeding on his 2,500 acre farm in Vermilion county for more than twenty-nine years.

"Especially is the importance true when you consider that the population of the United States consumed 10,- 000,000,000 pounds of food in 1929," Mr. Sconce continued. "Cereals and products comprised the chief item, with 1,000,000,000 pounds. Fresh fruits, vegetables, milk, and meats are close runnersup, however, and poultry, fish, eggs, sugar, and butter don't lag far behind. Figures show that 33.3 per cent of the income of the average family is spent for food, with 70 per cent of the food products purchased by urban families and 30 per cent by rural families.

11 Acres for Exhibits.

"This is the reason that more than fifteen acres on the island just east of the administration building have been set aside for an agricultural building to house the many and varied exhibits illustrating progress in the production of foodstuffs through science. Several more acres adjoining this building will be devoted to the growing plant necessary to the manufacturing process. A grove of oranges, grapefruit, lemons, and limes, for instance, will be in bloom as the fruit just outside an exhibit which will illustrate washing, polishing, grading, and packing citrus fruit.

"There by will be a demonstration of the methods used to candy the fruits as well as those employed to make marmalades, pastes, orange juice, carbonated grapefruit juice, and many other delicious products from citrus fruits.

"It will be a complete exposition of the methods and culture of the citrus family so that the general public will have some realization of the effort, time, and energy expended in getting breakfast fruits for the table.

Will Follow New Plan.

"In illustration of the treatment of one of the 150 food exhibits, Mr. Sconce struck the keynote of the agricultural division of the exposition operation. Every exhibit will display the wholehearted coöperation of scientist, the farmer, the producer, the manufacturer, and the distributor, as well as the individual laborer in each classification.

"It is realized today more than ever before that progress in science and industry has been caused by coöperation," Mr. Sconce explained. "The day of the lone wolf individualist has passed so that competitive exhibits would be out of date.

"Since 1926 I have attended most all of the expositions in this country and have always been deeply impressed with the fact that competition between individuals or companies is destructive. Furthermore, repetition is boresome. When I accepted Gen. Dawes' appointment to this post in the 1933 fair, I made up my mind that a different plan should be followed. Hence the collective exhibit, which means an exhibit put on coöperatively by a group of producers, manufacturers and distributors within an industry.

"Following this plan, one hundred years of progress will be displayed within each of the 150 exhibits, which will include such important products as corn, wheat, beef, pork, sugar and fruit. The same progress will be shown in the development of the country grocery store, the farm, the urban home and its surroundings, farm transportation and marketing, soil fertilization, fruit and vegetable canning, refrigeration and dairy and poultry production."

Arrange Exhibits in Order.

The exhibits will be arranged in chronological and natural process sequence to magnify the relation of the displays, one to another. While due credit will be given the individual exhibitor, he will be subordinated to the exhibit itself.

Credit also will be given to the pioneer manufacturer, the scientist and the educator for his contributions to the development of the industry through the century, and in every case where it is possible, the original machines, models and processes will be properly displayed within the exhibits.

"The story of meat production is already well organized under the direction of the Institute of American Meat Packers," Mr. Sconce said. "The exhibit committee appointed by William W. Wood, president of the institute, is coöperating with the state experiment stations and colleges of agriculture to produce a complete exhibit without any repetition or competition. The visitor will see a historic drama of every step from the time the animal is raised on the western ranges until the meat is served on a silver platter, and the curled hair becomes automobile upholstery or part of the toilet articles in milady's boudoir."

Special Dairy Display.

A special committee representing the dairy interests of the world is at work on an exhibit which will show historically and chronologically the progress and development in the oldest industry known to man.

One of the features of this display will be the "milking merry go round," reputed to produce the highest grade of certified milk with the employment of the fewest men. In this display the visitor will have an opportunity to observe the various breeds of dairy cattle, from the low producing cows of a century ago to the high production animal of modern times.

Candies, nuts, and confections will be treated in an exhibit now being planned by the National Confectioner's association. The canning display has already been outlined by the National Canners association. Each week Mr. Sconce is meeting the heads of associations representing the various industries to organize the displays of other exhibiting groups.

MEAT PRICES IN CHICAGO LOWER THAN YEAR AGO

BY PAUL POTTER.

No less an authority than the United States department of agriculture finds that reductions of 12 to 40 per cent have taken place between May 15, 1930, and May 16, 1931.

Under the direction of the federal bureau of agricultural economics, J. S. Campbell, marketing specialist, has been busy with a corps of workers in Chicago, checking up on whether butchers are passing along the declines in prices of wholesale meats. And he finds they have in most cases.

The sharpest drops in retail prices have come in the cash and carry shops, the survey indicates, although all stores are marking down their meats to some extent. Some of the variance is said to be due to the amount of service such as delivery or credit extended.

Compared with Year Ago.

	Price May 16, 1931.	Price May 15, 1930.	Pct. of decline.
Beef cuts—
Sirloin	.53	.675	30
Round steak	.51	.625	27
Rib roast	.515	.725	33.6
Chuck roast	.18	.30	40
Lamb cuts—
Legs	.225	.325	30.7
Lamb chops	.35	.425	17.5
Rib chops	.35	.425	17.5
Pork cuts—
Pork chops	.30	.34	12
Hams [whole]	.20	.29	12
Picnics	.12	.21	43
Lard	.11	.13	15
Veal cuts—
Cutlets	.36	.425	15.3
Chops	.35	.45	22

Beef prices have shown the most marked drop in cost in recent weeks, and for the year, largely due to the fact that they were higher than others after the war, and to the heavy shipments of cattle from the western plains in the last few weeks. Lamb tumbled in price more than a year ago, more so than other meats.

Tips to Housewives.

Incidentally, the comparisons point out for housewives some of the cheaper cuts to substitute upon occasion for the more popular and higher priced items. Further proof that meats are on the bargain counter in the forced lowering of the cost of eating is seen also in a comparison made by the government men in what a dollar buys now and what it bought a year ago in the meat market.

The consumer's dollar a year ago would buy 2.1 pounds of sirloin and today will buy 3.3 pounds. Likewise it bought 2.3 pounds of round steak a year ago and will purchase 3.25 pounds now. It bought 3 pounds of rib roast then, 4.6 pounds today; 3.3 pounds of chuck roast then, and 5.5 pounds today.

Where the dollar a year ago purchased 3 pounds of leg of lamb, it now can buy 4.5 pounds. It will buy 9 pounds of lard today where it bought 7.6 pounds a year ago.

Retail Slower to Change.

When comparisons are made with the higher prices of 1929, the savings range between one-third and one-half in retail and wholesale prices, according to local retail butchers. It was pointed out that retail prices are always slower to change than wholesale, and that the present bargain prices are likely to prevail for some time to come.

That the farmer who produces the raw meat and the packer who prepares it for retailing have seen drastic declines in values is indicated by the following table of comparisons on government reports in Chicago, prepared by the Institute of American Meat Packers this week:

Yearling steers, weighing 300 to 500 pounds dressed, show drops of 29.2 to 33.3 per cent. Steer carcasses weighing 550 or more show drops of 32.8 to 35.2 per cent, while fresh veal carcasses show a range of declines between 25 and 31 per cent. These wholesale comparisons were made between May 20, 1930, and May 19, 1931.

Waters of the Sierras Yield Royal Repast of Brook Trout

BY IRENE STEYSKAL.

Surely there is enchantment adrift on the little wandering winds of May, in the cool, clear showers of May. Or perhaps it was the annual letter from La Casita, the small white house in the hills.

Whatever their inspiration, these day dreams bring a species of pleasurable madness, a warm interior glow as if one had tasted a sweet distillation of the purple and white grapes which once grew in mission vineyards of the padres on sunny hillsides in the valley of the Sacramento.

Theirs is a vividness to leave the mind in strange uncertainty. The sharp, staccato beat of typewriter keys and the clamor of telephone bells to the accompanying ebb and flow of traffic under the window are lost in a silver song of the little rivers of the Sierra Nevada and in the rustle of pine trees touched by sweeping fingers of wind.

An Enchanting Invitation.

"Is it not possible," questioned the letter from the little white house, "that one day very soon we shall look from our doorway and behold, coming up the trail under the pepper trees, you and the hermanito who has the many quaint songs, and wicked Chico scampering about the hoofs of Manaña, most patient of small burros?

"To the little brother you must tell that every day now Carlos and old Pedro come back from the streams with their baskets heavy with the rainbow trout. For you and me there is a hillside of yellow poppies and lupine bells of a blue to rival Our Lody's mantle. And in the little Arroyo de Flores the wild lilacs blossom . . ."

I hope it will be May, that wild lilacs will be in blossom in the Arroyo de Flores when the little brother, who has grown to an astonishing height, and I pull on the long boots, stuff bacon, fishing tackle, frijoles, and coffee into a brace of baskets swung across Manaña's sturdy back, snap our fingers to an exuberant Chico and go a-gypsying again.

The trail we shall take winds through vagrant foothills, brown as a friar's cassock. Abruptly, it dips down into a gorge with sheer rock walls where the sun, sifting in through dark branches, makes marvelous arabesques. There is the sound of rushing water. The angler has entered his paradise. Here is the home of the rainbow trout.

There will be much tarrying along the way. To him who carries the rod each small canyon with its fern rimmed pools and cascading stream is a promise. With another witchery it draws the wanderer who confesses to a timidity of heart strange to a sportsman. For him there is the play of light and shadow on the young green drapery of trailing willow boughs; the flash of a prism above a sparkling riffle where an animated rainbow leaps from the stream; and overhead is the music of a million leaves in motion.

Food from the Streams.

From the mountain waterways we will draw our breakfasts, luncheons, and suppers. When deep shadows creep up from the canyons we shall feast on trout baked brown in the embers of eucalyptus and alder, and on crisp, golden morsels from our frying pan when the air of dawn is cool on the cheek and each blade of grass and every pendant leaf is beaded with crystal. The incense of coffee will rise from many campfires before we have reached the end of the trail.

If it is May when we come again to the little house in the hills the air will be sweet with the scent of wild roses. Should we loiter along the way until dark its white façade will be shimmering silver by starlight, the fine black tracery of Bougainvillea etched against it like ancient Moorish characters over an Andalusian doorway.

As the door swings in on its heavy bronze hinges a flood of warm candlelight will fall on a path of glistening flagstones.

TEMPERATURES BELOW FREEZING IN CENTRAL IOWA DAMAGE FRUIT

Des Moines, Ia., May 22.—[Special.]—Temperatures which ranged several degrees below freezing two weeks ago did considerable damage to fruit in central and southern Iowa, according to reports which have been gathered by R. S. Herrick, secretary of the Iowa Horticultural society.

Growers indicated that orchards located on high portions of farms seem to have escaped with less injury. The most damage was to early apples, although the Winesap, Jonathan and Delicious apple varieties also were injured to some extent, Mr. Herrick stated.

"Western Iowa seems to have been free of injury from this frost, although earlier freezes had some effect," Mr. Herrick reports. "Northern and northeastern Iowa report but little damage. In other places the damage is spotted. In some cases small fruits were injured more than apples and early truck crops were hit slightly.

"In spite of frost injuries, I believe Iowa will have from 50 to 75 per cent of a fruit crop, as we have had an unusually heavy bloom."

WAFFLE? A SELF-MADE FELLOW OF UNKNOWN ORIGIN

His Crisp Manner Brings Success at Tender Age.

BY BETTY BROWNING.

"And what is a waffle?" the visiting Englishman was overheard to inquire abruptly of his hostess at dinner the other evening during a lull in a discussion of naval disarmament.

"A waffle?" she echoed blankly, her mind still busy with specifications of cruisers and destroyers. Then, with dawning realization, "You mean to say you've never had a waffle?

"Why, you simply must have waffles while you're here. They're a sort of cake, you know—four flat triangles that make a circle, with holes—indentations, I guess you'd call them. And they're supposed to be brown and crisp and flaky, but sometimes they're tough. You must be careful not to get a tough waffle or a soggy one."

Great American Invention.

"I see," the Englishman murmured politely. "I've always heard waffles mentioned in the same breath with skyscrapers as the great American invention. Now, of course, I understand why." And he inquired and duly noted where waffles reliably brown, crisp, and flaky might be sampled.

Thus was paved the way for the conversion of one more waffle enthusiast.

Possibly our hostess could have found a more exact description of the waffle in its name. This comes not from the obsolete English word waffle, which meant "bark," "snuffle," "whine," or "wave," but from the German waba, or honeycomb, in Dutch and Low German wafel, waffel in Danish, and in Swedish vaffla.

Origin Is Unknown.

So like a honeycomb not only in appearance but in delicate flavor is the waffle that its name would indicate one or another of the northern Germanic peoples as its inventor. Nothing, however, is definitely known about the waffle's origin beyond the fact that like that other great American product, the skyscraper, it is the illustrious scion of a venerable line.

Hearty American cousin of the aristocratic if somewhat anemic wafer, enjoyed "piping hot out of the glead" in Chaucer's day, but since degenerated into an accompaniment to ices and tea, to this country the waffle owes its prominence today. How the waffle reached America and when it attained its present form is no less obscure than its origin. But the patrons who ruled the lands north of Nieuw Amsterdam between the broad Hudson and the blue Catskills are credited with enjoying the waffle long before the cooks of the south adopted it and raised it to its present heights of fame.

Enough of the waffle's family history. With its delicious flavor, its valuable food properties, its many uses as a main dish, adornment of a course or dessert, the waffle can stand on its own merits as a delicacy. Whether for breakfast, luncheon, tea, dinner, Sunday night or midnight supper, the versatile waffle adapts itself to the demands of the menu.

What more popular breakfast dish than waffles, butter, and maple syrup? For luncheon or dinner try to surpass chicken with waffles, southern style, or creamed dried beef or ham with waffles. Consider as a dessert strawberry waffle shortcake, the crushed berries between two waffle sections, topped with whole berries and drenched with juice. Or chocolate and pineapple waffles for tea, waffles with sausages or with maple sugar and whipped cream for Sunday night supper.

Here is a recipe for waffles which may be served with syrup, sugar, meat gravies, or juicy fresh fruits.

2 cups flour	3 eggs
3 teaspoonfuls baking powder	1 tablespoon butter
½ teaspoon salt	1 cup milk

Sift the flour, baking powder, and salt together. Add the eggs, well beaten. Melt the butter and add it. Then add the milk. Cook in a greased waffle iron, very hot. If electric waffle iron is used, put one teaspoon water inside it, put top down, and turn on current. When it stops steaming put one tablespoon of waffle batter in each compartment near center of iron. Greasing is not required.

To make chocolate waffles add one-fourth cup cocoa, one-fourth teaspoonful vanilla, one-fourth teaspoonful cinnamon, and one-fourth to one-half cup sugar to the regular batter, and cook as before. For pineapple waffles, add one-half cup drained, crushed pineapple to batter, cook, and serve with sauce made of one cup crushed fruit and juice and one-half cup of sugar.

PLEA IS MADE FOR GOVERNMENT BRAND ON MEAT

Charges that the public is being fooled continually as it buys meat supplies are being made by J. A. Kotal, secretary of the National Retail Meat Dealers' association. He asks for recognition of the demand of his association that the federal government standardize and brand all meat carcesses with grades other than those used by packers.

By such identification of grades of meat the consumer would be able to recognize what he is getting, in Mr. Kotal's opinion.

FIRST SHIPMENT OF 1931 BRAZIL NUT CROP HERE

Earns Place as Chicago Food Commodity.

BY EVERETT SWINGLE.

Bertholletia excelsa is in Chicago again for the first visit of 1931. In other words, the first shipment of 1931 Brazil nuts gathered by natives along the Amazon has arrived for display and retail sales.

Wholesalers took notes the other day and found that this particular hard shelled but firm and sweet meated nut has attained considerable importance as a food commodity here. In 1930, it is estimated, Chicagoans ate 500,000 pounds of Brazil nuts, shelled, and a million pounds purchased in the shell.

One of the reasons for the increased demand for what has been known as the "niggertoe" nut is the machinery that has been developed in one large importing company located in Chicago. Here the nut meats are taken from the shell and blanched without being touched by hands in the process.

Cracked by Machinery.

Although gathering the crop of nuts down below the equator remains largely on a primitive basis and on a commercial scale, the handling industry here has shown the initiative and ingenuity that makes this city in many points the food capital of the world. It used to be that cracking the hard shells could be done only by hand, with each worker obtaining about 35 pounds of nutmeats in a day's effort.

Now batteries of machine crackers take care of as much as 3,000 pounds in an hour and prepare a carload in a day, without having the nut or the nut meat touched by hands. In addition one firm here has devised machinery that will do this without first soaking in hot water.

But down on the Amazon is another part of the story that is just as interesting. The trees that bear the nuts often do not have fruit until they are a century or more old. In that time they have become majestic in size and reach 190 or 200 feet in the air with a wide and heavy crown of foliage.

Crop and Buds in Same Season.

This "Bertholletia Excelsa," as botanists know the species, is said to be the only tree on which one may find the ripening fruit of one crop and the flowering buds that will be harvested later in the same season.

The native who paddles his canoe up and down the river in gathering the pods, in each of which several of the Brazils are found, is said to be a true American but remaining quite aloof from clothing and modernism. He lives much as he did when whites first entered his country 300 to 400 years ago. Tribal huts house his family and tattoos appeal more to him than the civilization that church and state keep holding out to him.

Just one touch of business has come to him. The Brazil nut section also deals heavily in rubber. So when rubber is high in price the native doesn't scratch his head more than once or twice before he realizes he can neglect gathering Brazil nuts and go into gathering crude rubber.

Prices in Chicago.

This spring, however, a large crop of nuts has been harvested. An illustration of the supply can be found in retail prices here in Chicago. One year ago the shelled and blanched nut meats were 98 cents a pound, while this week they were selling for 69 cents.

The nuts in the shell are selling for 25 cents a pound as contrasted to 39 cents a year ago. Incidentally, it seems to be economy to buy them already shelled, for wholesalers report it takes three pounds of nuts in the shell to make one pound of the shelled and blanched product.

FIRST SWEET CORN OF SEASON ARRIVES HERE FROM TEXAS

Corn on the cob season has arrived again, for those who care to pay the price. Two for a quarter is the early season price being asked by some retail stores. This is similar to quotations on the first arrivals a year ago when Texas growers began shipments to Chicago. Quality is said to be far from uniform, according to dealers on the South Water market, which means that housewives will need to shop carefully to get bargains.

BEG YOUR PARDON

A letter from a Tatsuna reader quoted in a recent issue stated that the price of condensed milk had been increased. Inquiry does not reveal any increase in price in Chicago. The size of cans has been changed from 15 ounce content to 14½ ounces, with a lowering of price.

This Is Your Last Chance To Win!

The BAB-O $5,000 Cash Prize Contest is open to all. How would you like to receive the first prize check for $1,000? It is easy to win and everybody has an equal chance. Just write a list of 15 best BAB-O uses.

In this announcement are many suggested uses for BAB-O to help you win. Each paragraph in the "Suggested Uses" at the right will be accepted as one use. You can substitute some new uses if you desire, but send in only 15 uses.

Prizes will not be awarded on handwriting or spelling. You can use pencil, pen or typewriter, but write on one side of paper only.

CONTEST ENDS JUNE 15th

Time is no essence in this Contest. The last list sent in stands just as good a chance to win a prize as the first list. Artistic, fancy or uniquely arranged lists stand no better chance than your plain, simple list.

The Judges are impartial household economic authorities. No one connected with B. T. Babbitt, Inc., makers of BAB-O, or members of his or her family can enter this Contest.

The $5,000 Cash Prizes will be given to those who submit the list of 15 best uses for BAB-O in the opinion of the Judges, whose decision will be final.

To win a cash prize, you do not have to be a user of BAB-O, the wonderful magic powder for enamel, porcelain, etc.

If two or more contestants tie for any prize, each of those tying will be given the full cash amount of that prize.

Be sure to read carefully the Suggested Uses for BAB-O just to the right of this paragraph. The Contest will end June 15, 1931.

ENTER THE CONTEST NOW!

Be sure to write plainly your name, street address, city and state at the head of your list. We cannot undertake to return any entries or enter into correspondence concerning them.

BUCHTY, KOLACE AMONG CZECHS' CHOICE DISHES

They're Delicious When Served with Coffee.

BY META GIVEN.

Czecho-Slovakian art is subtle and unique, no matter where it is applied—in the making of glass and pottery, jewelry and embroidery, or in cookery. The particular features which characterize Bohemian [Czech] dishes as a rule are not due to the use of uncommon raw materials. The typical qualities obtained seem to be more a result of using different methods of manipulating or combining materials. In cooking they employ the same ingredients as we, they handle many ingredients just as we do, but a study of their combinations, elaborations and seasonings of food they are individual.

Mrs. Maiana Vojan of 2004 South Albany avenue is our source of information on Bohemian cookery. She was born in Czecho-Slovakia, and learned the hows and whys of Bohemian cookery in her native land, mostly from her mother.

How to Make Kolace.

I asked Mrs. Vojan to furnish us with recipes for foods that are popular with Bohemian people and are likely to appeal to Americans. And she has done. In the accompanying photograph Mrs. Vojan is shown making two famous Bohemian foods—kolace and buchty.

The foundation of kolace is the same rich, sweet yeast dough used to make buchty. When the dough has risen until it is light it is divided into several balls as one desires pans of kolace. Each ball should contain about as much dough as is required to make four light rolls of ordinary size. These balls are rolled out on a slightly floured board into discs about ½ inch thick, somewhat and large enough in diameter to fit into a round cake tin. The dough is pressed up against the sides of the pan with the tips of the fingers, forming a slightly raised ridge around the edge. The exposed rim of dough is brushed with a little white of egg. The effect of the egg is to give an attractive gloss to the baked crust. A tasty filling is put into the center and is spread out so as to come up to the edge of the ridge and be held in ten.

Too Many Fillings.

Four fillings are used in kolace. Two of the choice ones are prune, poppy seed, cottage cheese, and apple curd. On each of these fillings is used a harmonious garnish. An appetizing garnish for apple filling is of blanched almonds or whole nuts pressed lightly into its surface after enough are added to give an attractive appearance. Sliced blanched almonds are used to finish a prune filling and white raisins a cottage cheese filling. After adding the filling the kolace is allowed to rise again until the dough is light. Then it is baked to a golden brown in a medium oven [350-400 degrees F.]. About 20 minutes is required for baking.

Mrs. Vojan's theory of the use of flavorings in the fillings for buchty or kolace, as well as in all other foods, will appeal to the housewife who wishes to acquire an individuality in her flavorings. Mrs. Vojan has numerous flavoring material of her kind. Her rule is to add only enough to make the food interesting and delicious. When flavoring is used to the extent that it can be detected by the taste or smell it is overdone, she holds. And because flavor is a natural factor in many foods it is impossible to advise the exact amount that is necessary to obtain the most desirable results. The only way is to add flavoring gradually and sparingly, and taste as one adds. Perhaps this is the secret of the intriguing and rare flavors obtained by the old fashioned housewives. They never measured, but were inveterate tasters.

Sour cream is a constituent of many Bohemian dishes and contributes rare flavor. Mrs. Vojan uses it in the preparation of several delicious meat dishes; for instance, in beef tenderloin. One of the most popular Bohemian [Czech] dishes:

ROAST GOOSE WITH DUMPLINGS AND CABBAGE.

ROAST GOOSE: Wash a properly dressed goose and drain thoroughly. Sprinkle salt on the inside and out, then rub inside with caraway seed. Place in a roasting pan, add a little water, and roast rather slowly in an uncovered pan, turning goose occasionally and basting frequently with hot water. While it is roasting, pierce the skin on the back and under the wings to allow the surplus fat to escape and make the skin crisp. When done, drain off the grease that has collected in the bottom of the pan and allow the goose to brown over a quick fire. Then take the goose out and pour about half a cup of hot water in to make a nice gravy [no flour is necessary to thicken gravy]. When geese are not in season roast pork makes an excellent substitution. And roast pork is seasoned in the same way as the goose.

Recipe for Dumplings.

DUMPLINGS: Beat two yolks of eggs in a bowl, add a cup of water and a cup of milk, one tablespoonful of salt, then add one quart of flour that has been sifted with a half teaspoon of baking powder and make a dough just a trifle stiffer than the consistence of biscuit dough. Cut four slices of stale bread into dice and add them to the dough. Divide dough and mold into two large, long dumplings. Put these into boiling salted water and cover tightly. Boil for half an hour, then test them with a large fork to see if they are done. When done, take them out with a fork and knife and cut them into slices on the board.

CABBAGE — Pick off the outer leaves of a nice head of cabbage, cut into halves, and slice it into small pieces. Put the cabbage into the kettle in which it is to be cooked. Cover with boiling water and let stand for 5 or 10 minutes. In the meantime mince 3 or 4 small onions. Drain the water from the cabbage, add salt, onions, 1 teaspoon of caraway seed, and a cup of water. Cover the pan and simmer until the cabbage is tender. With young cabbage it takes only 10 to 15 minutes. Do not allow the cabbage to become too soft. Add a little sugar and white vinegar to give a pleasant taste, then thicken the liquid with 1 teaspoon of flour.

Bohemian Buchty.

STUFFED RAISED CAKES.

To one cup of lukewarm milk add 1 teaspoon of sugar, 1 cake of compressed yeast, and 1 tablespoon of flour, and beat until smooth, then set aside to rise for 15 to 20 minutes. Cream one cup of butter [half butter and half goose fat is excellent] and one cup of sugar and three yolks of eggs, add two quarts of bread flour and mix. Now add the yeast mixture and as much more milk as is necessary to make the batter medium in stiffness. Beat well until the dough does not stick and set in a warm place to rise. When light take out about half the dough on a floured board and roll about half an inch thick. Cut into squares about 3 inches by 3 inches and in the center of these squares put the desired filling—at least a heaping tablespoonful. Pinch the dough together so as to completely cover the filling and put them into a well oiled pan. The pan is generously oiled with a combination of lard and butter. In fact the fat is poured into the pan to a depth of ¼ inch. As each row of buchty is placed in the pan the fat is brushed up over them to form a film of fat over the entire top surface. Let rise once more and bake for about 45 minutes in a moderately hot oven [375 degrees F.].

Here Are Fillings.

FILLINGS—A. Cottage cheese filling. Crush one pound of cottage cheese, add four yolks of eggs and one tablespoon of melted butter, sugar to suit the taste, a little grated lemon rind, a little powdered vanilla beans, a pinch of mace, and a few seedless raisins if desired. [This is excellent to fill kolace.]

B. Poppy seed filling. Grind one cup of poppy seed, place it in a bowl, add one cup of milk and one tablespoon of butter and a little grated lemon rind. Put over the fire and cook until the mass thickens, stirring often to prevent scorching. Add sugar to suit taste and cook for about 15 minutes.

C. Prune jam filling. Sour prunes are preferred. Pick over prunes, wash, and soak in water over night. Cook for about one hour in the water in which prunes were soaked. Then stone and put the prune meat through the food chopper or through a sieve. Add grated lemon rind, pinch of ground cloves, pinch of allspice, sugar to suit taste, and if too thick add a little prune juice or water to get the right consistency.

D. Apple filling. Peel about six apples and slice them into small pieces. Add sugar as the tartness of the apples demand, 2 tablespoons butter, a little grated lemon rind, and a few tablespoons of water, depending on the dryness of the apples. New summer apples do not need much water. Stew in a covered pan until soft. A little of the powdered vanilla bean will add a nice flavor to apples that are lacking in flavor.

AND SO INTO THE OVEN

A GIRL AND BOY WITH TEA FOR 2, TULIPS FOR TEA!

Salad, Rolls and Cake Are Tempting.

BY VIRGINIA SCHMITZ.

Tea for two and tulips for tea—and the rest of the ensemble may matter but little. Of course, a garden would be an added attraction—for the tulips. But a vase will do. And salad with the tiniest rolls, fresh strawberries and fragile cakes would be nice. But again, bread and butter will serve.

At least as long as there are just two for tea and the weather is tulip-minded. But ye tulips will soon be gathered in or rained out so make haste if you are planning such a setting for your tea twosome.

If the young man of your supposed duet is already entranced, the food won't count for so much, but if his fancy has not yet lightly turned to your way of thinking, don't sell all your loaves for tulips but save a few for his hardy and discriminating appetite.

They're Apt to Be Critical.

For young men are apt to be very critical of the food they are handed at tea time, particularly if it happens to be Sunday and no heavy meal may be expected to make up for the late afternoon lack.

In fact they have been known, on making the old fashioned Sunday afternoon calls around town, still done in some of the suburbs, to remark on the food served here and there and to make odious comparisons. And worse yet to change their itinerary on future Sundays on the basis of the quality and quantity of the intake.

However, the idea that dainty food as served up for tea is appealing to the masculine taste is often proved a fallacy. Open face sandwiches, for instance, cut in interesting shapes and delicately decorated, will disappear with amazing rapidity before the male onslaught.

Tiny Rolls Go Well.

Whether the dainty shapes and the artistry of the design have anything to do with it is a matter of conjecture. One is led to suspect that the fact that everything is revealed to them, that there are no surprise packages—that may surprise more than please—is more possibly the reason for the favoritism.

Tiny rolls, too, are seldom found objectionable, if only there are enough of them. You see they can be swallowed in one mouthful without the annoying necessity of breaking off piece after piece.

Waffles will please the solid substantial man who played football in college and likes for his tea something he can bite into. Germant pancakes also will make a hit with him—or the small French pancakes if there are enough of them.

Hot Biscuits Have Appeal.

But hot biscuits of your own special variety fresh from the oven and served with marmalade or peach butter or raspberry jam will have a universal appeal. If you serve those, you can preside over your tea table in between jumps to the kitchen with perfect ease.

You may, however, want something a little more elegant, a little more modish to go with your tulips. If tea is to be served in the garden, everything must be on the tea table before entering upon the ritual—so that it need not be interrupted.

Suppose you take green and yellow for your motif to go with the array of yellow tulips that hem you in. Then you will have chicken salad on a bright lettuce leaf garnished with hardboiled egg and green peppers, rolls that derive their yellow tone from the addition of eggs. You will select green tea, too, not only for your color scheme but for a change.

And to end up, fresh pineapple broken into large pieces and served with individual bowls of powdered sugar and little cakes with yellow icing. Only remember not to make your servings skimpy and tulip time measure up to the ads.

CANTALOUPE TIME HERE; FIRST JUICY MELONS ARE DUE

Chicago's cantaloupe season will open next week. Meanwhile a favored few are sampling some of the first small shipments as they arrive from the Imperial valley in California, according to W. H. Hall, fruit and vegetable reporter for the Chicago office of the United States department of agriculture, bureau of agricultural economics.

The sizes of those on sale at present range from those about the size of oranges, 80 to the crate, to others larger and only 45 to the crate. The Arizona melon fields and the Rocky Ford district of Colorado soon will be shipping in addition to the California growers. These supplies will last until the latter part of July when Kentucky, Tennessee and southern Illinois truck farmers will join the marketing groups. After that Chicago will probably get, as usual, a large supply from the fields of southwestern Michigan, according to Mr. Hall.

FLAVOR by the drop

Every drop of Heinz Vinegar is flavor. Every drop awakens flavor in every food it touches. This flavor, in all its richness and mellowness is aged into the vinegar by months of slow-ripening. Hurried processes will not produce it—cannot produce it.

Give your vegetables—your salads—life and snap—and a definite, delightful tang, by using Heinz—mellowed-in-the-wood-Vinegar.

THE CLICK OF THE GATE

By Alice Campbell

SYNOPSIS.

Clare, fifteen year old daughter of Iris de Bertincourt, disappears mysteriously. She and her mother lived in a remote section of Paris. Clare attended a school play one evening and was brought home by friends. Her mother heard the car stop in front of the house and Clare's friends bidding her good night, but when she opened the door Clare had vanished.

Iris has been separated for years from her husband, Marcel de Bertincourt, a man of great charm, but no moral sense. They are cousins and the possible heirs of their tyrannical Aunt Victoire, the Comtesse de Castelmaurou.

Iris planned to divorce her husband and marry Maj. Alan Charnwood. Charnwood, about to depart for Africa, has postponed his trip to help Iris.

On her aunt's insistence, Iris decides to stay in her home until Clare is found. When she arrives she learns that her husband is already domiciled there. He seems to have changed in character, and has taken charge of the search for Clare. He has been seeing Clare, unknown to her mother, for some time past, and knows more of the child's life and her friends than Iris. The comtesse is bent on reconciling the estranged couple.

Alan is refused admittance at the home of the comtesse. Iris sees him secretly and tells him that on account of her aunt's assistance she cannot offend her. They plan to meet at Helen Roderick's, the American woman for whom Iris has been working. Alan calls at Helen's and meets Marcel there. He learns that they are friends, unknown to Iris. Alan recalls having seen Marcel at Le Touquet, gambling heavily, and hobnobbing with a coarse looking couple. Alan runs across an old friend, Tommy Rostetter, a journalist, and asks his help. They drop in a café, where Alan sees the woman who was one of De Bertincourt's companions in Le Touquet. Tommy knew her when she ran a haunt in Germany. They go to Tommy's apartment, where he points out to Alan an apartment opposite, which formerly belonged to Marcel but is now occupied by Suzanne Marly, a prominent actress. As he is leaving, Alan sees Marcel entering Miss Marly's home. Next day Alan meets Iris at Helen Roderick's and she urges him to leave. Marcel interrupts their visit. Helen tells Alan that she had dinner with Marcel the night Clare disappeared.

INSTALLMENT XXIX.

A PLAUSIBLE SOLUTION.

Was the story a true one? When the first shock of amazement had subsided Charnwood wondered why Helen Roderick had made this needless confession, then quickly he realized that if she did indeed have anything on her conscience it might be an attempt to prove an alibi.

"How devilish it is!" he fumed as he reëntered the taxi and directed the driver to the Place du Palais Bourbon. "Here's a woman I would have staked everything on, yet now this infernal doubt is stuck in my mind like a burr! How in heaven can I find out the truth?"

He was still pondering the question when he arrived at his friend's quarters, where a warm welcome awaited him.

"Good boy!" Tommy Rostetter greeted him, lowering his feet from the mantel. "I thought you'd drop in, so I got Clementine to grill another chop and trot round the corner for a piece of Brie from a shop we particularly favor. Look—there's richness for you!" And he displayed the cheese in a state of tempting liquefaction, set with a bowl of grapes and purple figs at the end of the table.

"Tommy," he said, "Helen Roderick has two patches of white hair, and, what's more, she puts powder on it. I saw her doing it a quarter of an hour ago."

Tommy's azure eyes surveyed him with anxiety.

"Keep quite still while I take your temperature," he commended gravely. "Now—any pain here, or just a dull vacancy?" He tapped Charnwood's forehead with his pipe.

"It's not a joke. Her hair is not only powdered but stiff and coarse, very like the specimen I described to you."

"What, Helen Roderick, the editor of L'Etoile? Madame de Bertincourt's friend?"

"The same. O, I know all about her impeccable reputation, but listen while I disclose a few odd facts."

Tommy gave full attention, then scratched his ear.

"If you hadn't spent most of your recent life in the wilds you'd know that this hair powdering you refer to is a common practice," he remarked pityingly. "With aging women it does wonders to brighten the eyes and liven the complexion. As a man of the world I am on to these feminine foibles." He gave a superior cough.

"But what a story it would make—what?"

"I may be an ass," said Charwood, "but it looks to me more than coincidence. If only there were some apparent motive——"

"For kidnaping the girl?" Tommy supplied. "Let's consider it a bit. Is Miss Roderick in love with De Bertincourt?"

Charnwood hesitated. "I hardly think so. Fascinated, no doubt—he's very attractive. Flattered by his attentions, and inclined to cherish that sort of protecting fondness a strong woman often feels for a rather weak man."

"A good diagnosis, I should say. I know the type, but as I've met Miss Roderick myself I find it hard to believe her capable of falling into stupid errors of judgment. As for that alleged excursion on Tuesday night—well, we'll look into it presently."

The arrival of the chops, sizzling hot in a bed of watercress, suspended the discussion, and not until serious inroads had been made on the Brie did the frown return to Tommy's brow.

"Orsay, was it?" he remarked thoughtfully. "I know Orsay, and it happens there's only one place there which a gastronomic specialist like De Bertincourt would dream of patronizing. Wait," he cried with sudden inspiration, "I'll get on the telephone to the proprietor now and ask him a few questions. He's a pal of mine."

Without rising, he drew the telephone towards him and put through a call. After some moments of suspense Charnwood listened to a one sided conversation in colloquial French, only half of which he could understand. At the end Tommy replaced the receiver with a satisfied air.

"The story is authentic," he announced. "Those two did go there on Tuesday—arrived about nine and left at midnight. Our victim vanished at ten-thirty, didn't she? Well, there's your answer. You'll have to look elsewhere for your white hair."

Charnwood did not know whether he was relieved or disappointed.

"I told you about seeing De Bertincourt go into the Marly woman's flat?" he inquired. "It convinced me that whatever opposition there may be to Iris's divorce will not come from her husband. He's too fond of his freedom. No, it is the comtesse who's calling the toss, and it seems as though fate were playing deliberately into her hands."

Tommy twisted a long spill of paper and thrust it into the coals for a light.

"Fate," he repeated, with a Puckish gleam in his eyes. "You're sure it is fate which is responsible for all this?"

"What do you mean?"

"Only that it strikes me there's a deuced deal of method in it—too much for my liking. You say the comtesse called on her niece just before the mischief occurred, although it was an unusual thing for her to do?"

"That's so."

"And early next morning she bundled Madame de Bertincourt over to her house and at the first opportunity gave you the push? Very good. Now another question: Does the old harpy wear a wig?"

"Splendid! What more do you want?" cried the journalist triumphantly. "Snatch off that headpiece and what's beneath it? White hair."

A pregnant pause. Charnwood stared incredulously into the serious blue orbs opposite.

"If you're pulling my leg, say so," he grumbled. "I'm not feeling particularly humorous myself."

"Perhaps you don't believe her hair is white?"

"I decline to suppose the Comtesse de Castelmaurou hid behind a laurel bush to kidnap her grandniece, if that's your idea. Aside from all else, the woman is offering a huge reward."

"But hang it all, she could offer ten million francs with perfect safety if she was the culprit! From what you tell me, she is at the very least a fanatic, possibly slightly mad. Here, let's tabulate our facts." He reached for pencil and paper and wrote down the following, reading it aloud: "Fact one: Unknown person is a woman, heavily built. Two: Possesses white hair. Three: From absence of outcry on the girl's part, some one well known to victim. There! If you add the old woman's carefully timed visit and her subsequent use of the situation to upset her niece's divorce, don't you build up a pretty strong case?"

Charnwood listened, held in spite of himself by this plausible summing up of incidents, yet suspecting it to be an elaborate jest.

"Rubbish, and you know it is," he growled.

"Can you imagine for one moment that Clare would lend herself to such a deception?"

"There are few limits to what I can imagine. Don't you yourself find it peculiarly suggestive that the girl went off without uttering a sound?"

Charnwood was silent. From the first this strange passivity on Clare's part had troubled him strongly. How was one to explain it?

"If the comtesse can twist a resolute woman like Madame de Bertincourt round her finger," continued his companion, "what couldn't she do with a young, impressionable girl, playing upon her desire to see her parents reunited? The child might be hoodwinked into believing she was serving a divine purpose."

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

Overheard by the Landlady.

My sister and I were renting a little apartment upstairs in a home where the owner, a quiet, elderly lady, lived downstairs.

One day when I came in from school my sister said, "Mrs. X has gone away for the week-end so we will have the house to ourselves."

I was quite elated at the prospect of so much freedom from restraint and ran down the stairs hurrahing, intending to telephone my chum. There in the hall stood Mrs. X, and she had heard it all. I was never more embarrassed in my life. J. E. D.

Forget Calories; Proportion Is the New Reducing Idea

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

If I seem to harp on silhouettes, I ask you why shouldn't I, with half my correspondents inquiring how to get perfect ones and every conversation peppered with "She has the loveliest figure." Or, "She'd be good looking if her figure weren't so and so." And "I wish I had a figure like Jean's, or Claribel's, or Margaret's, or some one's."

You can't any more get away from the topic than you can get away from births, deaths, love, and marriage.

Now, naturally, we've got to progress in this perfect figure business or slide back into silhouette disfavor. There's no standing still on this business any more than on any other. So, if I say a new form of interest attacks the figure-conscious, it's all in line with advance.

The new idea is to think of reducing in terms of proportions rather than in actual pounds. That means, naturally, that pounds will have to come off or be added in order to get the right proportions. But you are supposed to concentrate harder on proportion-getting than on calorie counting.

Besides proportions, there is the other advanced form of figure-thinking in the aim that sheds rigidity. All of which proves we are getting closer and closer to the Greek idea of beauty. This ideal is harmony of parts, first, resiliency of movement, second, a blithe, young lightness of foot and form.

As to harmony: There are women whose limbs are slender as a young faun's, but whose torsos are inflated like a nice, fat old brownie's. There are women whose upper arms are the only spot that would disqualify them in a bathing beauty contest. There are women whose figures are just fine but for a great thigh thickness. Or, for a protruding lower back, or for piano legs.

In the new polishing off for a perfect 36 you are urged to concentrate on the fat arm or the heavy thigh or on the inflated midsection. Keep them uppermost in mind as the parts for whose harmony you are working. As I've said before, other parts will benefit—but concentrate on that single feature until you've got it so that it measures properly.

If you don't know a good exercise for an afflicted part or section, just hustle along your stamped addressed envelope to me. I've good ones for any and every section that needs "harmonizing."

You Can Work Miracles with a Child by Patience

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

As we near the last day of the week I see that I shall not be able to quote all the experiences related in the letter of the adopted mother we have been reading about. Instead, I shall quote just a few lines here and there on her various other problems today, giving only a suggestion of how she solved them, but enough to show that there is nothing that cannot be straightened out in child behavior.

"And about Santa Claus. He had been told Santa Claus was a bogey man. At the slightest noise, day or night, he'd get big eyed and frightened, and whisper, 'That's Santa Claus,' and start to run. I assured him Santa Claus was 'way up north making toys for little boys and girls.' I've had to persuade and forestall and explain, always in favor of Santa Claus. He's been especially attracted by older people, usually gray haired folk. So I told him Santa Claus was a 'nice grandpa with white whiskers and boots.' He's completely won now from the fear of Santa Claus.

"As I said, he had no toilet habits formed. I broke him in two weeks—but I did little else, of course. He'd run to a corner, or behind a chair, or under a bed, leaving a trail or a pool. At such times he was surly, stubborn, and would jerk away if I tried to lead him toward the bathroom. He weighed thirty pounds [almost a third of my own weight], so you can guess what a real task it was for me to manage him eight or ten times a day, lifting him to a table for attention, and the extra laundry at 20 degrees below zero.

"The stubborn streak I have conquered. [Don't think I have broken his spirit, for I wouldn't give a nickel for a boy without some spunk.] I have always explained, carefully, why we should or should not do a certain thing. And when the stubborn streak came up, I would stop whatever I was doing and explain, talk, and reason with him, often letting things burn on the stove or neglecting other important things."

This whole campaign was based on great love and intelligence.

HEAD ACHE

When you feel a headache coming on, it's time to take Bayer Aspirin. Two tablets will head it off, and you can finish your shopping in comfort.

Any over-exertion is apt to bring pain in some form. Head pains from crowds or noise. Limbs that ache from sheer weariness. Joints sore from the beginnings of a cold. Systemic pain. The remedy is rest. But immediate relief is yours for the taking; a pocket tin of Bayer Aspirin is protection from pain wherever you go.

You never know when these tablets may save the day, avoid breaking an engagement, spare you from a miserable evening or sleepless night.

Get real aspirin. Look for Bayer on the box. Read the proven directions found inside every genuine Bayer package. They cover headaches, colds, sore throat, toothache, neuralgia, neuritis, sciatica, lumbago, rheumatism, muscular pains—and other suffering which need not be endured.

These tablets do not depress the heart. Nor do they upset the stomach. They do nothing but stop the pain. Every druggist has Bayer Aspirin in the pocket size, and in bottles. If you wish to save money, buy the genuine tablets by the hundred. It doesn't pay to experiment with imitations at any price!

AVERY, I'VE GOT A SWELL IDEA. I'VE BEEN TO LOOK AT A SUMMER COTTAGE ON LAKE LARVA AND I'M THINKING OF BUYING IT FOR PHYLLIS' WEDDING ANNIVERSARY.
BE CAREFUL, WALT. THERE ARE LIABLE TO BE MOSQUITOES, LEAKY ROOFS AND SMOKY CHIMNEYS.
BESIDES YOU MAY GET TIRED OF IT IN ONE SEASON AND THEN YOU'VE GOT IT ON YOUR HANDS.
BUT THIS COULD BE MADE INTO A PEACH OF A PLACE.
THE LAKE MAY BE ALL FISHED OUT AND THE TITLE MAY NOT BE GOOD.
BUT IT'S HIGH AND DRY AND A FELLA CAN HAVE A BOAT—AND PRACTICE CASTING ANYWAY.
AT THAT, WALT, I THINK IT WOULD BE OK. YOU'LL LET ME PITCH A TENT IN YOUR BACK YARD WON'T YOU?

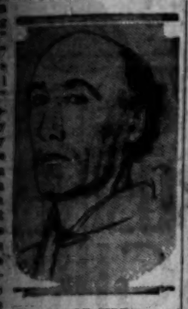
Noted French Author Meets Americans Now

Andre Gide Tells Tragic Stories Calmly.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

[illegible] SYMPHONIES," by André [illegible] [Knopf] brings to American readers in translation two short novels from the pen of the most powerful figure in French [illegible]," to quote the estimate of



ANDRE GIDE.

[illegible] of work. "The Pastoral Symphony" is the third of the "[illegible]" narratives of which "The Immoralist," published in 1902, was the [illegible]

Strangely enough, "The Immoralist," not today is placed in the front rank of Gide's work, was such a dismal [illegible] at the time of its publication [illegible] for seven years afterward he [illegible] nothing, except desultory [illegible] work. He thought seriously of abandoning literature forever.

"Isabelle" is told by an oldish man [illegible] memory of his youth when he was at a young student writing his [illegible], to consult an old scholar [illegible] in the country, mysteriously [illegible] by men and women as old [illegible], his wife, her sister, her [illegible], an old companion-like [illegible], as equally old gardener and [illegible] and an abbé. With them [illegible] a young crippled boy, the grand[illegible] of the scholar's sister and brother[illegible], and the pupil of the abbé. The [illegible] complete boredom surrounded the [illegible], so devastating that it [illegible] the young student's eager[illegible] to gather material and to unravel [illegible] the mystery of the spot [illegible] seemed to him like a breath [illegible], the body from which it [illegible] had died.

[illegible] accidentally he came upon the life giving unification of all their lives. The boy showed him a miniature. It was of a beautiful, strangely spiritual young girl. The child proudly explained that it was a picture of his mother. The young student fell deeply in love with her. He lingered, after having said that he must go back to Paris immediately. He found a letter which was addressed to her lover years before and which never had been taken from its hiding place in a summer house. He almost fought the story out of the old abbé—the story of a girl who had given birth to a maimed child after her lover had been killed as he tried to enter the chateau gates. The letter supplied a missing link, but only intensified the mystery. The young student finally was forced to leave without unraveling it further. The next year, however, he returned, to find the old people either dead or away, or bed ridden, but the woman, the mother of the crippled boy, alive and—disappointingly human.

The story is told with the utmost surface calm.

"The Pastoral Symphony" is done in the same manner. On the surface it is the story of a pastor's rescuing and care for a blind girl, told in the form of a journal that he sets down over a period from February to June in 189—. Two years or so before that he had been called to the death bed of an old woman whom he had never heard of. When on his arrival she had made the great crossing without his aid, he set about making the necessary arrangements. The only heir to the utter poverty and degradation of the hovel was a girl, blind and as dumb as an animal. The pastor found it impossible to leave a human being, even one so nearly an animal, alone without food or help and he took her home with him to his wife, who welcomed her as eagerly as she would have the black plague.

The pastor and his wife had not been happy for many years. The advent of the blind girl merely added to their disagreements. It became a passion of the most intense kind with him to teach the girl to be a human being. There was nothing to build on. She had never talked—the old crone with whom she lived had been deaf.

Only food was comprehensible to her. From that the pastor fashioned, with infinite love and patience, in two years a beautiful, intelligent girl whose only handicap was her blindness. When the pastor's son fell in love with her and wanted to marry her, suddenly the pastor knew he himself loved her more than life or religion or even his god. And then the great tragedy of her restored eyesight! The tenseness of the growth of love between the pastor and his ward rushes through the pages, never once disturbing the calm surface of the recording, giving it a terrific reality.

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

It is startling to find a man newly dead living still in the richness of his possessions. The late Julius Starret, retired lawyer, was one of the most enterprising and intelligent collectors of art objects Chicago has ever had and yet, in his lifetime, how many of those who neighbored near him on Prairie avenue knew his hobby? He was a recluse, silent, secretive, studious. His neighbors saw him only when, engaged in his evening ritual, he watered with hose and pot his green lawn and greener shrubs.

Through those years Mr. Starrett lived an inner life which he did not need to share with the outside world in order to savor its full flavor. He packed his shelves with books on porcelains, rugs, furniture, ceramics, glass and paintings. He gathered around him in the quiet of his huge house the world's authorities on art and learned all they could teach. Armed with their knowledge, he went into the galleries, haunted the great sales, and bought wisely, conscientiously those pieces which satisfied him most.

China intrigued him. Ancient Chinese art, bowls, vases, jars and porcelain figures, mounted knights in fired clay fascinated him. He bought many costly and rare examples of the Kanghsi and Ch'ien-lung periods. English furniture bewitched him and he bought magnificent examples of Chippendale and Hepplewhite. Rugs and tapestries ensnared his imagination and he bought gorgeously colored and patterned ones. A few pictures he liked and those few he bought. There were good early examples of Inness among them, landscapes by Wyant, a self-portrait by Meissonier, a few seascapes by M. F. H. De Haas, a delicate, virile little Venetian canal scene by Ziem.

In his will Mr. Starrett left the major part of his wealth to a Chicago charity, the Chicago Home for the Friendless. A number of his art treasures are to be sold and the proceeds given to the home. The books, the marvelous Chinese ceramics, the paintings, the rugs, tapestries and furniture have been sent to the Grant Art galleries, 25 South Wabash avenue, and there they will be auctioned. Collectors from all over the country are expected; dealers from all over are even now on their way. The auction will start Monday, May 25, and continue for two weeks. The auction will be entirely confined to afternoon sessions. This is such an opportunity as does not come often. There are museum pieces here, priceless pieces which still must have a price for they must change owners, the Chicago Home for the Friendless must benefit.

It is curious, if you think about it, that a recluse, a solitary, should have chosen the Home for the Friendless to benefit by his going. And yet, on second thought, it is fitting that such a choice should have been made. Mr. Starrett with his friends in books and potteries and rugs, a host of silent and inanimate friends, may have come to value human relationships more than the average person and have decided that those without friends were the most to be pitied, the most to be helped, of any of our unfortunates.

If Chicago agrees and art enthusiasts throughout the country agree, this auction starting next Monday will be one of the most successful ever held. The Chicago Home for the Friendless waits.

THE STAGE

SATURDAY night premieres are infrequent in this Sunday night town. Nevertheless, "Meet My Sister" will begin its engagement tomorrow night, according to promises, at the Grand Opera house. Furthermore, the Messrs. Shubert indicate an intention to start off all their musical shows on Saturday nights next season.

"Meet My Sister" will have Olive Olsen in its cast for the rôle which was assigned, in the first proclamations, to Peggy O'Neill. One reason for mentioning this fact is that Miss Olsen is the girl who sang "Button Up Your Overcoat" in "Follow Through" a couple of playgoing seasons ago, and thus gave currency to a popular catchword now slightly obsolete. She's a lively soubrette.

Two incidental performances are included in the playgoing plans for next week. Student histrions from the University of Chicago will give "Uncle Tom's Cabin" at the Goodman theater next Monday evening for the benefit of the university settlement. . . . A play of modern Greek authorship, called "Theodora," will be offered at the Studebaker theater, also on next Monday night. It was written by Demetrios A. Michalaros, and will have musical embellishments supplied by the Byzantine choir. The Hull House players will be the performers; the Order of the Ahepa stands as sponsor.

Blanche Yurka, who had the title rôle in "Lysistrata," during its New York run, will appear at the Lydia Mendelssohn theater of Ann Arbor, Mich., next week in Sophocles' "Electra." This engagement marks the beginning of a month's drama festival.

Arthur Sinclair and Marie O'Neill, veterans of the Irish Players from the Abbey of Dublin, began an engagement in New York this week in a play called "Old Man Murphy," by Patrick Kearney. Percy Hammond writes about them in the Herald-Tribune as follows:

"The walls of Dublin's Abbey theater must have crumbled if they were tuning in on the performance of 'Old Man Murphy.' For Mr. Sinclair and Miss O'Neill were bending the knee to Broadway, but bending it gallantly and with as few genuflections as were possible under the circumstances. By their shrewd acting the farce was changed from a mere side show to a good circus."

Mr. Hammond adds that the play, judged by his standards, is "unequivocably fourth rate."

A new play by George M. Cohan, called "Fast Friendship," was recently staged in Boston, which reports it as a hit. Mr. Cohan himself has the central rôle, and his daughter, Helen F. Cohan, also figures in the cast.

The activities of Jed Harris as a producing manager are watched with keen interest by theatrical reporters. Therefore his confession of the plays he has in mind for next season should be recorded. They are: "Twentieth Century," by Ben Hecht and Charles MacArthur; "Je t'attendais," by Jacques Natanson; "Calico Wedding," by Sheridan Gibney; "Here's to Crime," by Laurence Stallings; "Flame," a tragedy by James Knox Millen, a Negro writer; "Professor Bernhardi," by Arthur Schnitzler; and "The Love Lease," by Sarah Newmeyer.

Science Tests Show College Women Taller

Same True of Sons of Harvard Men.

Cambridge, Mass., May 21.—(AP)—An evolutionary tendency among college men and women to grow taller, broader shouldered, narrower hipped, and heavier, was made public tonight at Harvard university.

The findings are based on measurements of three generations of Harvard sons, including 2,000 pairs of fathers and sons and on three generations of daughters of Wellesley, Vassar, Smith, and Mt. Holyoke colleges numbering 501 mothers and daughters.

The studies were made public by the department of anthropology at Harvard. They were made by Gordon Townsend Bowles of Tokio, Japan, a graduate student in anthropology, under the direction of Prof. E. A. Hooton, and with financial support of Dr. John C. Phillips, associate curator of birds in the museum of comparative zoölogy.

"The present generation of Harvard men whose fathers and grandfathers were Harvard men," says the report, "is one of the tallest groups in the world.

"It averages in height 5 feet 10.1 inches, and the annual increase in stature has ben at the rate of about one inch every 32 years, over a period of 80 years. The sons are more than eight pounds heavier than were their fathers at approximately the same age.

"All measurements have increased with the exception of head breadth, breadth of hips, and length of the upper arm. Leg length has increased more than trunk length, and thighs have elongated more than shins. The upper arm has grown less than the forearm. The region of greatest increase has been in the middle of the body, including the lower segments of the upper limbs and the lower part of the trunk.

"Hip girth has increased, but hip breadth has diminished. The upper segments of the trunk and the extremities show greater increases of girth than the lower.

"All of this means that Harvard men are taller and relatively more slender than their fathers, and have increased particularly in leg length, shoulder breadth and thoracic circumference, but have decreased in hip breadth.

"The present evolution theory is toward an accentuation of masculine characters of body build. As a matter of fact the same is true of the college daughters.

"They average 5 feet 4.8 inches in height. They are 1.1 inches taller and 7.25 pounds heavier than their mothers. Comparative data indicate that this increase in weight has been going on for the last century.

"The daughters surpass their mothers in every dimension, except breadth of hips, and here there is a notable superiority on the part of the mothers amounting to 2.73 centimeters, or more than one inch. The girls have greater chest expansion, lung capacity, and chest girth than their mothers."

U. of C. Explorers Seeking More Relics of the Hittites

ISTANBUL, Turkey, May 21.—(AP)—Chicago university Anatolian expedition set forth tonight for its sixth season of field work in Asia Minor. A premature heat wave was faced by the explorers.

Dr. H. H. Vonderosten and his assistants left here for Ankara, thence they will proceed to Aleshar in the heart of the desolate Hittite country. Last season they found the largest Hittite building as yet discovered.

LUTKIN LEADS CHOIR AT MUSIC FESTIVAL HELD IN EVANSTON

BY EDWARD MOORE.

They had a number of things to talk about in the festival concert at Evanston last night. Dean Peter C. Lutkin, founder of the festivals and up to this year their musical director, returned to the stand to direct his a cappella choir; Mr. Stock, the present director, introduced a new, if at times puzzling choral work. There were Wagnerian excerpts, sung by a famous soprano, Florence Austral, and a newcoming tenor, Walter Widdop, who would seem to be well on the way to being famous here as he is now in his native England.

The contribution of Dean Lutkin and his choir was four numbers, three announced and one extra. One of the three was from his own pen. "The Shepherd" set in the form of a pleasant melody for contralto solo with humming accompaniment from the choir, and sung by Miss Evelyn Elliott. His homecoming was warmly welcomed for both accomplishment of the present and memories of the past, and it deserved to be on both grounds.

Mr. Stock's novelty was a setting of the eightieth psalm by the French composer, Albert Roussel. It produced a curiously cumulative effect, beginning with a feeling of no particular liking, as though Roussel was following modern fashions by becoming bored with the past style and deliberately setting out to be harmonically different, but working along to an impressive climax and ending with a tremendous burst of majestic dignity. One may in the beginning have thought that Mr. Stock made a mistake in scheduling it, but there was reason for a complete change of mind. One of its most striking features was a fine solo beautifully sung by the tenor, Dan Gridley. The Roussel work had another unexpected effect. It made some following music of an earlier period sound almost hopelessly old-fashioned. Miss Austral appears just after it in the aria from Weber's "Der Freischuetz," a work in which she excels by virtue of voice and manner, but even her gorgeous singing hardly sufficed to make it as alive as it used to be.

Wagner, however, is still vital, and when she and Mr. Widdop appeared in excerpts from "Die Götterdämmerung," there was renewed reason for high pleasure. Mr. Widdop is an entirely fitting singing partner for Miss Austral. He rejoices in a voice of fibre quality and great power, and he sings in a way to make his hearers rejoice with him. He will appear again on Saturday night in more Wagner "Die Meistersinger" this time was well as a Handel aria and the advice to hear him then is perfectly sound. He has the voice and the style to be a distinguished Wagnerian banner bearer.

Germans Show Copper Houses, Glass Ones, Too

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, May 21.—You have tramped almost a dozen miles [without retracing your steps] past booths and buildings, exhibits and models; in entrances and out exits; looking, looking, all the time; picking up pamphlets and collecting catalogs. You may begin to feel you have seen something of the just-opened German Building exhibition in Berlin's great exhibit grounds at Kaiserdamm.

After you have ridden round and round amongst it all on the model railway behind an engine no higher than a good sized pony, and have seen everything from hot water faucets and hinges to huge water turbines and giant steam shovels biting up cubic yards of earth, certain general mental impressions may begin to form.

Houses of sheet copper, of poured concrete, of steel, of all sorts of tile; round houses, utterly rectangular and square houses, "glass houses" with a few steel brackets and screws here and there—all such are not, strictly speaking, new, though some interesting forms and variations of them are on exhibit, mostly full-sized, at Kaiserdamm.

But go inside one of the exhibits showing modern and model interiors, seating yourself in a chair made of shiny nickeled steel tubing.

Instead of walls there are collapsible sliding doors made of leather, which fold up like an accordion and enable one to see from the northeast corner of the bathtub right out the front door and over the geranium bush [if flowers growing at large aren't considered too mushy for such a modern, matter-of-fact place] if the postman is coming.

The bed is low and large and a matter of cushions and tubing—or maybe of wooden stilts [rectangular, and very angular]. It doesn't get very far off the floor. Then the couch is simply a pile of square cushions which can be unpiled and redistributed so as to create a mat covering a good sized part of the floor, if you want maybe to treat your friends to a little hospitable exhibition of jiujitsu in the modern spirit.

Speaking of jiujitsu—if there is any parallel in the history of world architecture for these quite modern interiors, it is the traditional Japanese home, with sliding paper partitions instead of walls, its floor mats and wood block pillows, its utter simplicity and open, unobstructed spaces. But here the precious Japanese exquisiteness is somehow lacking—that subtle feeling which can make of a single flower rightly placed in a bowl something to gaze and ponder on for half a day. This is more stark and inhuman. More conscious and deliberate.

A conservative check of the number of German building trades workmen now unemployed almost certainly would place the figure at not less than half the total number. For them this great exhibition—the biggest display of a technical kind which has been in Germany in many years—must be a rather ominous thing.

"Rationalization," which is the continual cry—from factory owners and stockholders and efficiency experts of the big corporations—all over Europe, has reached out cold hands to clutch the ancient human foibles and habits and inefficiencies away from building. The carpenter becomes a man with a pair of pliers and a monkey wrench, a being, goggled and using an acetylene blow torch—or, rather, the carpenter is displaced by such a man.

Several skaters give way before a fellow who lays on rolls of some new kind of composition weatherproof stuff in jig time.

Modernists Charged with Refining God to Enter Good Society

Philadelphia, Pa., May 21.—(AP)—Church modernists were charged with "fixing up God to go into good society" today by the Rev. B. H. Shattuck of Rogers, O., in an address before the 14th annual convention of the World's Christian Fundamentals association.

He criticized "scientists and scholars" who refused to accept the New Testament, because of cruelties recorded and said as many cruelties were mentioned in the Old Testament as the New. He also struck at evolutions in churches.

"Robert G. Ingersoll, the great Agnostic," he said, "could be a member of the official board of any modernist church in the country today. All he would need to do would be to forego his use of cuss words in public."

Doug and Mary Fairbanks Guests of Premier's Sons

LONDON, May 21.—(AP)—Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks visited the house of commons lobby tonight as guests of Prime Minister MacDonald's sons, Alastair and Malcolm, who were entertained by the film couple in America. A small crowd formed quickly around the visitors, who were introduced to a number of members of parliament. Afterward they dined with the prime minister's sons and a small party, including several government officials.

United States of America, Libelant,
Opinion A-106/165.

Opinion in the libel in this case

"Married Love" is a considered attempt to explain to married people how their mutual sex life may be made happier.

It makes also some apparently justified criticisms of the inopportune exercise, by the man in the marriage relation, of what are often referred to as his conjugal or marital rights, and it pleads with seriousness, and not without some eloquence, for a better understanding by husbands of the physical and emotional side of the sex life of their wives.

I do not find anything exceptionable anywhere in the book, and I cannot bring me a normal mind to which this book would seem to be obscene or immoral within the proper definition of those words, or whose sex impulses would be stirred by reading it.... The book before me here has as its whole thesis the strengthening of the centripetal forces in marriage, and instead of being objectionable, it should, I think, be welcomed within our borders."

—From Judge John M. Woolsey's opinion.

As the result of this important decision, G. P. Putnam's Sons announce the publication of

Just one question is going to be asked over and over again when readers approach Erich Maria Remarque's new war book THE ROAD BACK. They will ask: "Is it as good as ALL QUIET ON THE WESTERN FRONT?" And there is only one answer and that emphatically is "Yes!"

This is a quotation from Harry Hansen, who reviewed books in Chicago before he went to New York. Sooner or later you will need to read this most-discussed novel of the post-war adjustment of the returned soldier. Why not be among the first? Obtainable wherever $2.50 books are sold.

Lake Geneva Getting Ready for Its Season

BY THALIA

LAKE GENEVA is getting ready for the "summer people." Shutters are being taken off, gardens tended, and hedges pruned in preparation for their arrival. Several of the Chicagoans who own cottages at the lake have been "going up" for week-ends throughout the spring, to be sure, but the regular season won't take on proportions for another week or so more.

The Henry Bartholomay family, which has been making week-end trips, is to move out for good some time next week, and the Albert F. Hoffmans, senior and junior, will be in residence at Highland Terrace about June 1. Dr. and Mrs. Otto L. Schmidt are also to open their place next week. Mrs. Frank Brook, the Marquette Healy family, have closed this summer for the first time in many years, as Mr. Healy has passed along the grapevine news of the lake that the Healys are planning to stay in the west this year.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin A. Ryerson have rented at Bonnie Brae about June 15, and Mrs. Charles L. Hutchinson also is sailing for Europe with her son, who will arrive at the same time. The Hutchinson estate, Wychwood, which was turned over in 1926 to a board of trustees as a sanctuary for wild plants and birds of Wisconsin, and to an experiment and research station, and each week groups of students and garden clubs visit it. The Garden Garden club spent the day there as guests on Wednesday and had lunch at the country club; today the Lake Garden club is to be there, and tomorrow the Garden club of Williams Bay, Wis., is to be admitted. Mrs. Hutchinson retains her residence there, however, during her lifetime.

Preparations for the 20th season of the Ravinia opera which is to open June 9th and continue through July 5, include Mrs. Charles T. Boynton, Mrs. Thorne Donnelley, Mr. and Mrs. Percy R. Eckhart; the Ralph H. Booths and the Walter S. Brewsters, who are to share the box released by Mrs. Ferdinand Wiegand for the season. Mr. and Mrs. Louis Eckstein, Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick, Mrs. Robert A. Patten, and the George A. Pooles.

Fashion Makes Brown Fashionable as Smart.

Apparently you just don't know what clothes at all if your wardrobe doesn't contain something brown this year. I can think offhand of numbers of the customarily smartly dressed women who have appeared in at least one brown outfit each this week.

The right browns are all to the mid-chocolatey and cocoa shades, never the reddish or golden ones, and are used in rather subtle (I don't know what the fashion writers call combinations with other colors of the whole. It's a funny thing about brown colors that they are always almost like their predecessors but different enough so that you don't have new names for them. Mrs. Edward L. Ryerson Jr. wears a brown and mustard knit jersey with a reddish part flecked with brown and a brown bobbinet hat with a mustard band. Mrs. William A. Hurley (Mary Wade Hurley) was seen in a brown knit suit, the jacket of a brown tweed mixture and the skirt of brown. Mrs. Burt A. Massee wore a coat with a brown jacket and brown skirt (designers got this idea from British men's tailors) and a brown straw hat with a brown weave straw hat turned up in front. Carol Bourne has a suit of brown and yellow jersey which she wears a small brown hat.

Mrs. Elizabeth Drake is wearing a brown ensemble consisting of a brown tuck wool dress, a short coat of brown and a snug fitting knitted jacket. Mrs. Clifford Rodman sometimes wears her "working hours" at the U. S. N. P. R. office a brown and tan tweed suit with a three-quarter length jacket and a mannish vest of brown and a brown turban with a tan feather. Roberta Harvey, who is looking at the Woman's Exchange the other day, was wearing a brown dress with a brown yoke of tweed and a brown wool turban. Other well-seen brown outfits worn by Mrs. John Borden, Miss Peggy Moore, Mrs. Bruce Thorne, Mrs. Lester Y. Hord, Miss Elinor Whitney and Mrs. B. Botsford Young.

Mrs. James Ward Thorne is back in town after a long trip abroad. They motored through Morocco and Algiers in the late winter and then traveled over the continent to meet Mr. Thorne in Paris with the Robert Allerton Young Mr. and Mrs. Nibley Ware, who occupied the James Deering apartment while they were there, will be moving out soon to spend the summer at the Chicago Golf club.

Mrs. Arthur Meeker is to be hostess at the opera box committee luncheon Wednesday next Wednesday.

Aiding the Blind Is Of Official Name.

The Improvement Association for the Blind, which conducts the Chicagoland Bazaar, is to change its name to the Chicago Lighthouse for the Blind at its annual meeting next Monday. Mrs. Clifford Templeton, president of the Lighthouse Volunteers, will announce the amount of the proceeds from the annual benefit on May 19.

Shall we tell me—that Thorne Donnelley's home, Beechwold, near Bardstown, Ky., is just across the way from Stanley Dumas' "My Old Kentucky Home" and that it contains a wonderful collection of antiques . . . that Stanley Dumas Bragg's sister is Mrs. Stanley Mortimer Jr., daughter-in-law of Joshua Cosden, multimillionaire oil king of Texas . . . that the wedding reception for Mr. and Mrs. William Card Whitney is to give tomorrow afternoon at the grandson-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Latham Castle, will also be a celebration of the Whitcombs' 40th wedding anniversary . . . that a new hors d'oeuvre consisting of an oyster, a round of dill pickle, a piece of cheese and another oyster on a picnic sandwichwise on a toothpick is being served at luncheons . . . that Mrs. Merle Zimmermans of Winnetka are to spend the summer on the Pacific coast . . . that Miss Mary Jones sailed for Europe on board the S. S. Vulcania . . . that Mrs. Merle Blake has been visiting Mrs. Robert McCormick in Washington.

Announcement is made of the marriage on May 2 of Miss Agnes Cornell, daughter of the Rev. Douglas Cornell of Glencoe, to Jay Hunter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Hunter of Evanston. The ceremony was performed by the bride's father, pastor of the Glencoe Union church, at their residence. Mr. and Mrs. Hunter have returned from a wedding trip to French Lick and are residing at 708 Hinman avenue, Evanston. They are both graduates of Northwestern university.

LONDON, May 21.—(AP)—Helen Wills Moody is the perfect type of womanly beauty immortalized by Greek sculpture, C. S. Jagger, the noted sculptor, said today.

"Watching her on the tennis courts," he said, "I have appreciated that she is the nearest living approximation of the old Greek ideal of perfection. She has a supple figure, long legs and a small head, even her features are the classic features of the ancient Venuses. The only difference is that the old masters generally chose slightly more matronly outlines."

CHICAGO ARTISTS CUT, FIT STAINED GLASS IN ST. STEPHEN'S WINDOW

A stained glass window, containing more than 1,000 pieces, was cut, fitted and completed last night by craftsmen at a banquet of the Artists' Guild of Chicago. It is to be a gift of the guild to St. Stephen's church, 3533 North Albany avenue, known as "The Little Church at the End of the Road." The meeting was held in the studio of T. A. O'Shaughnessy, 224 West Superior street.

The experiment of making the window within a few hours, before the guests departed, was conducted, it was explained, to illustrate that there is no mystery to the making of stained windows, and that American artists can design them.

Teuton Women Resent Plan to Fire Married

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, May 21.—Strenuous protest has been voiced against any attempt on the part of the German cabinet to legislate women out of government positions because they happen to be married to a husband who also is earning money. The National Work association, composed of working women, leads the protest.

Letters have been sent to the minister of labor and to the chancellor.

Frau Katharine von Kardorff has also stated the case in the Berlin daily press against application of the measure which was originally offered as part of the "reform" program of the Braun commission on "Joblessness and Its Remedies."

Not only would the proposed legislation be unconstitutional discrimination, according to Frau von Kardorff, but if it were put into effect it would produce no appreciable improvement in the present situation. There are only some 8,000 positions which would be set free if the present feminine jobholders were given notice. And that in a land where among the five millions of unemployed many are women would be less than a drop in the bucket.

Furthermore, the effect of such a law, the protest goes on, would attack the structure of German society.

Any woman with a job in these times will think twice before she legally marries the man she loves, or the man she wants to be the father of her children, if it means that she will have to give up her source of income, Frau von Kardorff points out.

Let the government put a heavy tax on the earnings of all working women whose husbands receive more, say, than $3,500 annually. Incidentally, the number of working women whose partners for life earn even the half of this is comparatively limited in Germany, as income statistics show. So it is a safe suggestion to make.

NEW YORK SOCIETY

New York, May 21.—[Special.]—Mr. and Mrs. Joseph S. House, who returned recently from California, gave a farewell dinner for fourteen tonight before sailing tomorrow midnight to pass the summer in Europe.

Miss Constance Armstrong, daughter of Sir Harry and Lady Armstrong, is chairman of a breakfast to be given next Sunday morning at the Catholic Young Women's club.

Dr. and Mrs. Nicholas Murray Butler and Miss Sarah Schuyler Butler have arranged to start abroad on June 3 on the Europa.

Mrs. William T. Hildrup Jr. has gone to Harrisburg, Pa., for a short stay before sailing for Europe.

EUGENE O'NEILL PLANS SUMMER IN THE WEST; LAUDS YANKEE STAGE

New York, May 21.—[Special.]—Into the current file on the decline of the American stage there today went a dissenting opinion. It was given by Eugene O'Neill. Far from believing that the local theater is dying, he thinks that the rest of the world looks to it with hope. For there is a "dynamic quality" about it, and Europe "will soon be coming over here to learn from us."

The author of three Pulitzer prize winners—and numerous other plays which were widely acclaimed, although less officially—Mr. O'Neill is here to help in the production of his latest. He came in quietly last Sunday, will be in the country, mostly California, until "Mourning Becomes Electra" gets started, and then will return to France for a year. The reason for this, as he hinted, is a lease—rather than desire—for he wants to live now in America.

Mr. O'Neill discussed reluctantly the "unfortunate death" of Ralph Barton, world famous cartoonist, whose farewell note expressed regret for the lost love of his third wife, Carlotta Monterey, now the wife of Mr. O'Neill. The playwright denied that his wife had seen the caricaturist or had any communication with him since their divorce five years ago. Mrs. O'Neill later added her denial.

"I have been able to get a good perspective on America by staying in France," he said, "and have been enabled to see it more clearly. But, also, I can appreciate it a devil of a lot more now. The ordinary tourists go over, stay only a short time, and get the idea that all culture is there. I have talked with a number of people in the theatrical world, and they all have the feeling that the American stage has a dynamic quality and a freshness theirs lacks. If we can get their culture there will be a new birth."

Mrs. O'Neill, former wife of Ralph Barton—described by him in the note written in anticipation of his suicide as the only woman he had ever loved—said she had not seen him or heard from him since the divorce, more than five years ago. Mr. Barton's brother had said the artist "paid them a friendly visit" since their arrival in the city.

Mrs. O'Neill made her statement through Harry Weinberger, her attorney.

Barton's body will be cremated tomorrow and the ashes sent to Mr. Barton's old home in Kansas City, Mo., for burial.

Accessories Make or Mar Ensembles

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS. — [Special.] — The correct choice of accessories is one of the biggest sartorial problems the business girl of limited income has to cope with, for accessories can so easily make or mar the smart effect.

The present rage for color contrasts has increased the difficulty of this problem. There is a danger of looking patchy and that must be avoided like the plague.

A good general rule, if you wear a long coat of bright color over a dark frock, is shoes, gloves, bag, etc., to match the frock; if the coat is a short jacket, accessories match the jacket.

Sketched herewith are some smart new Paris accessories, specially chosen with the business girl, in mind. At the top is a scarf of coral colored georgette which is cut in a rectangle with picot scalloped edge. A cut in the center enables you to wear it as a fichu for evening [see right hand figure]; or you may tie it like a handkerchief on one shoulder for daytime, or again you may disregard the slit and wear it as a regular scarf.

In the center of the page is a washable waistcoat of white piqué from Jane Regny, that will lend snappy freshness to the tailored suit or frock. The belt pulls through a slit in the right side and buttons in the back. This waistcoat is equally pretty in striped or plaid silk or in plain, bright colored duvetyne.

Next comes the type of daytime gloves most worn in Paris now. They're of velvety surfaced fabric in white, stitched in black, eight button length slipon gauntlets cut with a flare. Nicolet is making them in all colors. They wash perfectly.

Finally, there is a pair of shoes seen recently at the Ritz. They are an amusing version of the plain pump, being made in brown antelope with toe and heel pieces of brown box calf.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., May 21.—[Special.]—Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt Jr., wife of the governor of Porto Rico, arrived at the White House this morning to be a week-end guest and accompanied President and Mrs. Hoover to the banquet. She will be joined at the White House tomorrow morning by Col. Roosevelt and they will be members of the usual party at the Rapidan camp of the President.

Mrs. Hoover had a very busy day, having luncheon with Mrs. Mitchell, wife of the attorney general, who entertained the cabinet hostesses. Mrs. Hoover also attended the dedication this afternoon of the chapel at Walter Reed hospital. The chapel was presented by the Gray Ladies of the Red Cross, organized by Mrs. Henry Rea of Pittsburgh. Mrs. Hoover was hostess at a tea late this afternoon with her house guest, Mrs. Joseph A. Haspel of New Orleans.

Mrs. Frank J. Loesch of Chicago entertained a large company at luncheon today at the Mayflower, where she and Mr. Loesch and the former's mother have spent the winter.

FARM AND GARDEN

RADISHES NEED SPACE.

One of the most common faults in sowing radishes in the home garden is in getting the seed in too thick. The national garden bureau advises planting so that each maturing radish will have about two inches in the row. This secret is the reason gardeners with large plots often obtain best results in sowing broadcast.

Radishes are common to almost every garden, no matter how large or how small. The home grown and fresh pulled seem to have most zest for the appetite, although Chicago markets find them seasonable all the year around whether grown locally or in Florida, Texas, or California.

Crimson giant is suggested as one of the best in the varieties that produce the popular globe shaped radishes. Then there is the white rooted icicle type, the long scarlet and the huge rooted or winter radish.

The icicle usually grows to a length of about six inches, with about one-third of its root above ground. It makes it simple to determine if this radish or that radish has attained sufficient size to be pulled and eaten. Some consider its crispness has a little more mild tang than the red colored and long rooted types which grow faster and often mature in a month.

Propinquity Is Big Help to Most Love Affairs, Says Doris

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"Everybody says that when the right man comes along we'll know it, right away, and then we won't be disgusted and feel so hopeless as we do now."

The above from two girls of 21 whose Saturdays and Sundays are unbearable because there are no beaus to come calling or take them out. That impression about the right man coming along suddenly, I think, is due for correction—for modernizing, anyway. Right men do come along, and suddenly, sometimes, too, but the large body of our romance getters meet their sweethearts in a much more matter of fact way, with propinquity away in the lead, as Cupid's handy man.

A girl may leave on a boat trip, fancy free, and come back engaged to the man she's sure Fate must have maneuvered into her keeping. An accident on a road may precipitate another girl headlong into the arms of Mr. Right. So, there's reason to believe that Fate takes a hand, sometimes.

But for one of these romantic meetings there are thousands of young couples whose taste for each other is a slow growth fostered by propinquity and by some little maneuvering on the part of the two involved.

Anyway, there's no sense for 21 year olds of our immediate age to indulge in the mere possibility of the right gentleman turning up in a highly romantic fashion. Our modern maids' way of turning him up and out of such material as the boy next door or the chap in the office or the one met at a dance has much more sense and body to it.

In other words, I'm prescribing not the inaction that goes with a dream man, but the action of a modern minded young person who wants to get married and is going to get married, and who hasn't time to wait for a slow Mr. Right. She can Mister Right the one she gets. But her line of action is to take stock of herself and improve that self so that it has a good romance selling value.

Now, the two girls with the empty Saturdays and Sundays confess they can't dance. Why not? That's missing one of the best bets a girl has. They admit they don't know how to talk to boys. Well, why not learn? Why not learn from other girls? Why not join a church club, a neighborhood club, a hiking club to meet boys? Even Mr. Right, when he does happen, doesn't ring a doorbell and send up his card. He's met somewhere.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Medford, Wis., May 21.—[Special.]—Joseph Fleischmann, twice confined in state institutions for the insane, killed his wife and two little sons late yesterday afternoon and for three hours threatened the life of three other children and a neighbor.

The dead are Mary, the wife and mother, 35; Alvin, 8, and Sylvester, 7 years old. The children who escaped are Marie, 9; Josephine, 4, and Dale, 2.

He was arrested by county officials after he had driven the Rev. Gregory Reuter, a priest, and Otto Huber, a neighbor, away from his home in a rain of rifle bullets.

Fleischmann was believed to have been crazed after a week of drinking his own home made brew. In his cell in the county jail, he moaned "What did I do?" and professed no memory of his attack on his family.

Fleischmann tonight pleaded guilty to three charges of murder in the first degree at a preliminary hearing before Justice of the Peace O. G. Blakeslee. He was bound over for trial in the Circuit court.

Sheriff George Barry said tonight that Fleischmann would not be held for the regular term of the Circuit court, but would be taken before Circuit Judge G. N. Riajord at Ashland, where the plea can be repeated and sentence pronounced.

Previous attacks of insanity, it was said, had always followed periods of heavy drinking. He was released from the asylum at Mendota a year ago, and previous to that had been held at the state asylum at Oshkosh.

Fleischmann had worked as a butter maker at the Medford creamery here until a year ago. Since then he had worked as cook for a road camp on highway 13 until discharged a few weeks ago. Since then, he has been around home drinking steadily.

Anton Kummer, the neighbor who spent several hours yesterday menaced by Fleischmann's revolver and a deer rifle, at Fleischmann's request had interceded with his former boss to get his job back. They returned to the Fleischmann farm about two miles from here and the lack of success in regaining the cook job made him irritable.

In the kitchen, the two little boys quarreled and their mother quieted them with a slap.

Locked Door Costs Life.

Fleischmann jumped up and seized a pistol which lay near the table. "I'll break your back," he shouted at his wife who turned and begged for mercy. "Don't shoot! Don't shoot," she pleaded. His first bullet struck her arm and she turned to an outside door. It was locked and while she tugged at it, her husband shot her through the body and she dropped dead.

The children tried to flee from the room, but the two older boys were caught, with their father between them and the door. Sylvester was shot first through the side, and lay crying for fifteen minutes before he died. Alvin, the oldest son, was shot as he struggled with the door that had baffled his mother.

The killer then began his hunt for the other children. He seemed to have quieted and begged them to come to him and cried that he was sorry. As the three crawled from their places of security, Fleischmann went to the telephone and called his neighbor, Otto Huber. Huber hung up the telephone and refused to come.

Neighbor Falls in Trap.

Next he telephoned to Kummer, telling the neighbor that Mrs. Fleischmann was sick and asking him to come over and help him.

While Kummer tried to argue with him, Fleischmann and the children straightened up the bodies of his victims, blessed and prayed for them. "There'll be six more lined up before I get through," he said to Kummer. "I feel like shooting Otto Huber and Al Long."

He then called for the priest. "Come out father, quick," he said, "my wife is dying."

The Rev. Father Reuter stopped and picked up Huber on his way to the farm. When they entered Fleischmann tried to draw his pistol from his pocket. Huber grabbed him. "I've shot my wife and kids and I'm going to get six more," he said.

Huber relaxed his hold and, with the priest, ran for the car in which they came. Fleischmann followed them out and shot at them with his deer rifle. In his excitement the priest ran his car into a ditch after driving 100 yards. Both piled out and ran for the first car they could find and rode into this city.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Everything might have gone well for the White Sox yesterday if Heinie Manush had restrained himself at bat. The other members of the Washington troupe were held well in check but Heinie, up three times with a mate on base, produced each time. The result was four runs driven in and a 4 to 2 victory for the Senators in the second and final of the series.

The destructive items employed by Manush were, in their order, a triple, a homer and a single.

Part of the Sox combination that folded up was Lew Fonseca, just in from Cleveland and making his entrance in the rôle of a second baseman. As a fielder Lew wasn't called upon for anything involving skillful handling, and as a hitter, which is his specialty, he had everything but luck. He was up four times, three of them in the pinches, and failed to produce. But he did click a couple that would have been hits if some of the dashing fielding for which the Senators are famous hadn't intervened.

Sox Rout Hadley.

Although the Sox were negligent as hitters they at least had the fun of routing one pitcher. This was Irving Hadley, who started against Tommy Thomas. Only four hits and a bargain run were gleaned from Hadley in six innings, at which point he suddenly lost control and, with the bases full, was yanked for Fred Marberry. Fred disposed of Bob Fothergill, who swung for Thomas. He also handled the situation in expert style for the remaining three innings, the only damage done to him being a home run with which Erwine Jeffries stirred up the 6,000 spectators in the ninth.

A run off Thomas in the first session was the outcome of two robust hits. Rice whacked a double to left and scored on Manush's triple along the right field line. There was only one out when this happened, but that at least one more didn't score is accounted for by the fact that Manush was put out at the plate. The Sox immediately staged a threat to retrieve the run when, with one out, Cissell and Reynolds singled. This was where Fonseca, making his bow in his new job, fanned. Jolley grounded to Hayes for the third out.

Manush Hits Homer.

A pass to Bluege and Reynolds' two base muff on a fly by Kuhel to start the second put Thomas in another jam. Two infield grounders and one strikeout kept the Senators from profiting by the situation. However, they made up for it in the third. Rice led off with a pass and didn't have long to wait before being privileged to score ahead of the home run rapped into the first floor of right field by Manush. There also was a single by West in this inning, but it caused no complications.

It was well for Hadley that Cronin was operating at short or the Sox would have had more than one run in their half of the third. After retiring one man, Hadley suddenly had an attack of nerves or something. He walked Blue, Cissell and Reynolds in succession. This put the burden on Fonseca. He slapped a swift grounder straight over second and the agile Cronin dashed behind the bag, grabbed the ball and gave it a quick toss to Hayes to force Reynolds, Blue scored on the play. When Cronin scooped up Jolley's hard poke and stepped on second, it concluded the session.

Sox Lose Chances.

The sixth was a heart breaker for the Sox. They did enough work to score a flock of runs but what they finally got was nothing. The inning started with Fonseca losing a hit because Hadley slowed down a hard drive so that Cronin could throw out the runner. Jolley doubled to center and although it was apparent that he didn't have a chance, tried to score on a single by Eichrodt. He was nailed at the plate. Then Tate and Jeffries filled the bases by walking. Fothergill batted for Thomas and Hadley threw him three straight balls. That was the end of Hadley. Marberry took

BIG TEN TRACK MEET.

BIG TEN athletes will contest this afternoon and tomorrow at Dyche stadium in the thirty-first track and field meet of the Western conference colleges. Caliber of contestants suggests notable exhibitions, particularly in the hurdles, half mile run and mile relay.

According to depesters of past performances, Michigan has the best chance to repeat its victory of a year ago. Illinois figures closely with good prospects, while Ohio State stars might take the Buckeyes into first place if outsiders annexed a few of the points credited in advance to the Wolverines and Illini.

Since the inaugural meet on June 1, 1901, won by Michigan with Wisconsin second, Michigan color bearers have taken eleven of the thirty meets. Illinois equals that record of eleven victories. Chicago has been successful three times, Wisconsin twice, and California, Missouri, and Notre Dame once each. Since 1925 competition has been restricted to track and field men representing only Big Ten colleges.

The closest meet of all time was that of 1910, won by Notre Dame with only 17 points. Following in order were Stanford, 16; Illinois, 15; Chicago, 13; California, 12; Wisconsin, 11; Oberlin, 10, etc. The most spirited team rivalry was in 1923, when at the finish Michigan had 57½ points and Illinois 57 points. The most one sided competition was in 1906, when Michigan was first with 62 4-5 points, Chicago second with 20 3-5, and Iowa State Normal third with 10.

For those interested in track and field games this is an unusual opportunity to see high grade performers in action.

AMERICANS LIKE SPORT LUXURY; WILLING TO PAY

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 21.—One important matter which is always overlooked in the comparisons between sport in the United States and sport in European countries, including Great Britain, is the fact that sport on the American scale costs much more money than the Europeans, including the British, are able, or, if able, are willing to spend.

This may have the sound of vulgar ostentation, but I have recently been listening to an American novelist who lives in England, but sells his books in the United States, being very British about the perfectly jolly times that they have there playing tennis at house parties or playing informal rugger without cheering sections or taking priceless long walks through the gorse and heather and all such as that with pipe in mouth and burrs in the tweeds and invigorating mist beating in one's face.

My answer was that if that was his idea of a wonderful time everything was still O. K., but that the American idea was quite different and that the Americans were bigger and broader about it than the British because nobody over here ever bothers to criticize the British, whereas the American system seems to annoy the British every now and again.

Rugger Costume Inexpensive.

It doesn't, or shouldn't, cost anything beyond a railroad ticket, probably third class, and, at a liberal estimate, a couple of tanners for the railroad porters to carry one's shawls and umbrella to attend a house party. The cost of a rugger costume ought to be little enough, as it seems to consist of nothing more than a suit of underwear and some shoes, good for several years. And certainly the price of the tobacco and matches for those priceless long walks through the gorse and heather can't come to much.

So, a season of sport in the conception of this novelist ought to come out, as they say, at not more than a few pounds, several shillings and thruppence-farthing.

There was another incident:

Dr. Charles Bebenq of the French Boxing federation, when he was visiting Chicago with his team of amateurs a short time ago, was conducted one afternoon to a game of ball between the Yankees and the White Sox and, though he marveled at the game, it was his judgment that France would never take it up because it would take several generations to develop the necessary technique.

Inclined to Doubt It.

I was inclined to doubt this because the French had never seen English or American boxing but only their own native savatte, or kick-in-the-pants boxing, until 1906, when Willie Lewis and some of the great American Negro heavyweights of the time went to Paris. They caught the imagination of the French people, and within 20 years France produced three world champions that I can remember offhand, although the technique of boxing is even more difficult than that of baseball.

More important, in my belief, was the fact that to play baseball a team requires other teams to oppose and the further fact that each team requires equipment which costs all the way from the minimum of $1.50 f. o. b. New York for a regulation ball to ten or fifteen dollars for a catcher's mitt. This bill would amount to a great many francs and strangle the interest of young working men earning from, say, a dollar to two dollars a day.

U. S. Sport Calls for Crowds.

I don't think I am wrong, for that would be the first time, but the fact that association football, or soccer, and boxing are the principal public sports over yonder seems to suggest something. A lot of people can play a lot of hours with one football, and

39 Carloads of Horses Near Homewood; to Race Monday

BY FRENCH LANE.

You've often read about the "biggest" shipment of thoroughbred horses that ever traveled anywhere. At the beginning of almost every race meeting it finds its way into print, but it is doubtful if there has ever been a single shipment, even from New York to Saratoga, that will exceed the one moving today from Churchill Downs in Louisville to Washington Park in Chicago.

MARION HOLLINS.

Thirty-nine carloads of thoroughbreds, traveling on four special trains, will make the trip from old Kentucky to Homewood and will be at Washington Park for the opening of the season on Monday afternoon.

There will be a lot of Kentucky's finest in this huge shipment, but some of the blue bloods may slink off the cars. Pittsburgher, the colt that cost the western future book players so much money when he ran a bad race in the Derby, will be one of them. Pittsburgher's traveling companion will be Cayuga, which many Kentuckians believe will win the $5,000 Washington Park handicap, the feature of Monday's opening program.

Mike Hall and Prince D'Amour are two that won't be troubled with swelling chests when they get off the cars. Proud Martha Jones, the filly that thrilled many Chicago race crowds last season, won't have much to brag about. But most of the early season failures may redeem themselves in Chicago.

As the Washington Park opening nears, the field for the opening day stake, a dash at six furlongs, begins to take shape. The large field may be as follows:

Best Man, Satin Spar, Don Leon, Cayuga, Pansy Walker, Nusakan, Dedicate, Justinian, Scotland's Glory, Sun Dot, Siskin, Crofton, Tannery, My Dandy, Brown Wisdom, Ladder, Martis, Chimney Sweep, Flimsy, Grattan, Eskimo, Prince Atheling, Ante Bellum, and Alex Pantages.

This field should scorch the Washington Park course, although it is not likely to be as fast as Churchill Downs has been this spring.

A notable arrival at Washington Park is Nevada Queen, the 2 year old filly owned by Miss Marion Hollins, the former women's golf champion.

Nevada Queen broke a track record at every distance she started out west last winter and won all four of the engagements filled. She was the sensation of Pacific coast racing. She has enjoyed a long rest. It will be interesting to see how she stacks up against the best of her age in Chicago.

Nevada Queen is a daughter of Trouble-Hilda. Both Trouble and Hilda are by the sire Handout, so Nevada Queen is one of the most striking examples of inbreeding now racing. Winter track 2 year old sensations do not usually accomplish much against the topnotchers in midsummer, but maybe Nevada Queen is one of those breeding freaks that will prove to be an exception.

At Aurora yesterday the Air Fleet Maneuvers purse at a mile and seventy yards became a four horse race after Bob Rogers was scratched shortly before post time. It developed into a runaway for Jack Beiner, which took the lead when Starter Morrissey gave them the word and paraded in front all the way. Beton offered a mild challenge at the head of the stretch, but it took him nowhere, and for the rest of the trip he was content to gallop along second. Lieut. Russell, never extended, labored a bit right at the end and beat Little Gyp, the favorite, out of third money.

The stewards didn't like the ride Jockey S. Palumbo gave Lieut. Russell and suspended him indefinitely. The betting indicated that Lieut. Russell was not expected to run a good race.

It was Jack Beiner's second victory here and in the mutuels he paid $7.48 to win. His time over the slow track was 1:49 2-5.

Most of the other races at Aurora were for horses which had not won here and despite the cheap fields they ran pretty well to form, favorites accounting for most of them.

Reports have just trickled into Chicago that Chicago O'Brien, the former bricklayer who threw away his trowel and picked up a form chart years ago and won a fortune playing favorites to show, ace deduced the future bookmakers on the last Kentucky Derby.

He made a big bet on Twenty Grand to win and show and got 7 to 1 to win and 8 to 5 to show. Then he made an even larger wager on Mate to show and got 5 to 2. Reports from the east are that he cleaned up close to $100,000.

YOUNG DRIVERS SEEK McDONALD OUTBOARD PRIZE

Tennes, Loyola Student, to Defend Title.

Entries received for THE TRIBUNE regatta north of Navy pier May 31 indicate the contest for the Commander Eugene McDonald trophy, symbolical of the central west outboard championship, may be a struggle of youth.

Horace Tennes, 18 year old Loyola university student, will defend his title won in the McDonald race last year against the west's best drivers. Chief among his competitors will be 15 year old Jackie Maypole, River Forest, Ill., who drove a close race last year.

In the first running of the middle western classic last year off Navy pier, young Maypole easily outdistanced the field in the first heat. In the second he was 300 yards in the lead when a huge wave wrenched his motor loose from its bracket.

Tune Up in Florida.

Because of the rough water most of the entries were swamped, and Arthur L. Reinking, Butler university student, was the only driver to finish both heats. He was adjudged the winner until it was discovered that his motor was nonstock, and the race was run over on Fox lake.

Both Maypole and Tennes were in Florida early this year, tuning up their motors and adding to their experience in the Florida race events. Maypole and Tennes drive Johnson motors.

The McDonald trophy, donated by Commander Eugene F. McDonald Jr., is considered the most beautiful prize in outboard racing. It was designed in green bronze by McClelland Barclay, and is valued at $10,000. A miniature of the trophy is given to the winning driver, and the trophy itself is placed in possession of the manufacturer of the winning motor.

Medal for Winner.

In addition to the honor of receiving a miniature of this famous trophy, the winner will be presented a gold and diamond medal donated by THE TRIBUNE. Ten cups and two gold and diamond medals are the awards in the displacement and hydroplane divisions of the Milwaukee to Chicago outboard Marathon May 30. Three gold and diamond medals also will be presented in each of the speed races at Navy pier on May 31.

Entries for the power boat regatta will be accepted if postmarked not later than May 27. The official blanks will be mailed on request. Clip the request blank which is printed daily in THE TRIBUNE and mail to the Motor Boat Editor.

Gordon Locke Considered for Iowa Football Job

Iowa City, Ia., May 21.—(AP)—Gordon Locke, former all-American university of Iowa football star and now athletic director at Western Reserve university, Cleveland, is one of several men under consideration as assistant football coach at Iowa, Athletic Director E. H. Lauer said today.

CANADIANS AND U. S. SPLIT DAVIS CUP NET SINGLES

MONTREAL, May 21.—[Special.]—Honors were equally divided between Canada and the United States in the first two singles tennis matches of the Davis cup series, the final competition in the North American zone. Frank X. Shields, New York, easily defeated Dr. Jack Wright in straight sets in the first match, 8-6, 6-2, 6-2. His fellow New Yorker, Sidney B. Wood Jr., however, lost to Marcel Rainville in hard fought sets, 4-6, 6-4, 6-3, 2-6, 6-4.

Shields had comparatively easy sailing after the first set which was particularly hard fought with the Canadian leading, 6-5, at one time. The slim New Yorker settled down and completely outclassed his opponent. His serves were nearly perfect.

Wood and Shields were selected as the doubles team today and upon their shoulders rests the entire responsibility for capturing the series for the United States.

Driver Escapes Injury in Crash at Indianapolis

Indianapolis, Ind., May 21.—(AP)—Frank Brisko, Milwaukee, Wis., escaped injury this afternoon when the race car he will attempt to qualify for the 500 mile Memorial day race crashed into the retaining wall at the speedway during a test run. Both front wheels were torn off, but Brisko said he expected to have the car ready for qualification trials Saturday.

Supermen Alone Thrill Sport Public

BY ARCH WARD.

Not that it makes any difference, but John De Forest, son of a British baron,

MAX SCHMELING.

A year ago there was scarcely a golfer in America who wasn't following this tournament. Interest centered in Bobby Jones. There is no Jones in the 1931 British meet and as a consequence it is attracting only an occasional glance.

That seems to answer the question of whether heroes develop a sport or sport develops heroes.

If you need further evidence, consider the plight of professional boxing since the passing of Jack Dempsey. Tunney's only defense of the heavyweight championship after whipping Dempsey at Soldiers' field was a financial flop. Sharkey and Schmeling drew less than 60,000 in a match carrying a title label. The recent Canzoneri-Berg bout at Chicago Stadium, with two crowns at stake, drew 28,000 fewer customers than turned out to see the Golden Glove champions defeat a team of amateurs from France.

Wonder what will happen to college football since it no longer has Knute Rockne.

UNFAIR TO HORNSBY.

Bill Veeck, president of the Cubs, urges Chicago to give Rogers Hornsby a chance.

"There is nothing wrong with the Cubs," he explained last night. "They haven't been playing high class baseball, but every team passes through periods when it isn't clicking.

"Fans who spread rumors of dissension among the players are decidedly unfair to Hornsby. These reports are utterly without foundation. Hornsby is a great player, a fine leader and a real fellow. Cub fans will know it before the season is over."

MR. BODKIN SPEAKS UP.

There is a preliminary bout on the fight card at Chicago Stadium Monday night of more than passing interest. It brings together Johnny Jadick of Philadelphia and Wesley Ramey of Grand Rapids.

This will be Ramey's first appearance in Chicago. They say over in Michigan he is the most promising lightweight the state has developed since Saginaw turned out Kid Lavigne. Jadick is no setup for any man of his weight. He was good enough not long ago to whip King Tut twice.

Teddy Bodkin claims Ramey is a sure bet for the 135 pound championship. Even though Bodkin is Ramey's manager we are inclined to string along with his appraisal. Once before Teddy told us he had a future lightweight champion. That was when Sammy Mandell was coming to the front on boxing cards at Camp Grant, Ea:. Chicago and Aurora. And there can be no denying that he was right.

STUDENT GOLFER PLAYS TODAY FOR BRITISH TITLE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DEVON, England, May 21.—Eric Smith, Cambridge university student, will meet John De Forest tomorrow for the British amateur golf championship. The match will be at 36 holes.

De Forest, who recently returned from six months in the United States as a pupil of Horton Smith, today eliminated Sidney Roper, the conqueror of George Voigt, chief American challenger, 2 and 1. De Forest beat William Tulloch in the semi-final round, 1 up.

Smith, who is making his first appearance in the tournament this year, won his semi-final match from John MacCormack, 1 up.

Eight College Teams Enter Sears Meet

Eight college track teams will compete in the annual Sears-Roebuck Y. M. C. A. meet at Sears field, Arthington street and Kedzie avenue, tomorrow. Concordia college of the Northern Illinois Junior college conference, Armour Tech, Lake Forest, and Chicago Y. M. C. A. colleges are among the entries.

The Chicago Y. M. C. A. squad will be defending its championship, having won the title last year by a one point margin over Sears-Roebuck.

Sears' hopes to gather points are placed on J. Sufalko, who runs the half-mile and who will compete in the high jump, and his teammate, Chuck Clulle, who holds the state Y. M. C. A. record for the two mile run.

Kutales, Paterson, and Dewitt will represent Sears in the pole vault. Paterson also will compete in the sprints and the jumps. Gordon has been entered in both the shot put and tre discus throw.

over the job and induced Fothergill to pop to Kuhel.

As soon as McKain appeared in the seventh the Senators took after him and registered their fourth run. Hayes pushed open the frame with a single to center and was nudged to second by Rice's sacrifice. Then Manush uncorked his third hit, a single, and Hayes hiked home.

The principal ingredient in the Sox half of this round was a pass to Blue, but the next three men did nothing. The only excitement after this was Jeffries' homer to left at the start of the ninth.

The Sox moved over to Cleveland last evening and will open a four day stand there this afternoon against the tottering Indians. Frasier or Faber will pitch.

KIECKHEFER WINS FROM HOPPE IN 3 CUSHION PLAY

Augie Kieckhefer won two blocks from Willie Hoppe yesterday in their 600 point three cushion billiard match at Kieckhefer Recreation. Kieckhefer took the afternoon block, 50 to 48, and the night game, 53 to 50. Despite his two defeats, Hoppe retains a lead of 300 to 280 in the 329 innings that have been played.

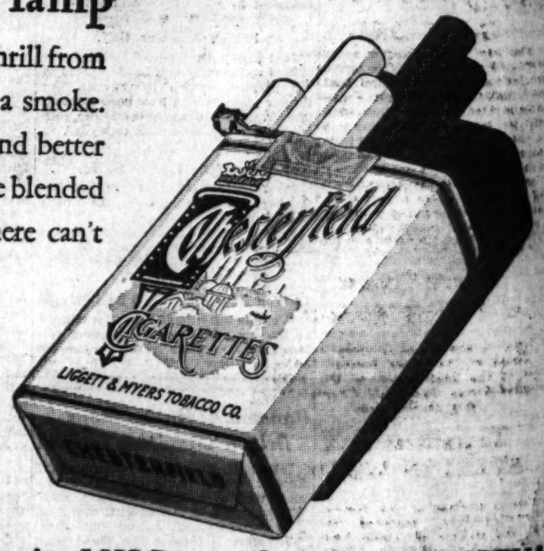
Big game is big game whether you hunt it yourself or share the thrill from an open book, or the silver screen. Likewise, a good cigarette is a smoke. What you taste in Chesterfield is what you want to taste—milder and better tobaccos. The taste is there and the fragrance too, for these tobaccos are blended and cross-blended to bring out their full aroma and flavor, and there can't be anything better in a cigarette.



FOR NINETEEN years, our Research Department has kept intimate touch with every new development of Science that could be applied to the manufacture of cigarettes. During this period there has been no development of tested value or importance to the smoker which we have not incorporated into the making of Chesterfield cigarettes.

Cubs Open Series with Pirates Here Tomorrow

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Tribune Press Service.]

Boston, Mass., May 21.—A young downpour which broke an hour before game time this afternoon enabled the Chicago Cubs to terminate their fruitful eastern invasion without completing the scheduled final with the Boston Braves. It was the third day off of the season and the fifth postponement of the game was the first one day of illness in every club in the league including Chicago.

The Cubs' schedule called for the opening of their thirty-seventh game tomorrow, and they have played only 36. They will try to open at home against Pittsburgh Saturday with the start of a three game series and at the end of this will present a record of 13 games won to 11 lost, which isn't so bad when you consider that they lost seven out of eight games on the eastern invasion.

Rain Saved Cubs Kindly.

Many of the Cubs' next foes have been very kind to them, submitting to defeats in the six games the two have played. The Reds, with whom the Cubs play in Cincinnati beginning with a double header Tuesday, have been even kinder. They have lost six out of five to the Cubs.

There is no kind purpose in reciting what the Cubs have done against the first division clubs and the Phillies, who yesterday moved into fifth place. But to keep the record straight we may as well set down that six games have lost all but two of their clashes with first division clubs, including the victory here yesterday.

Braves Make Highest Score.

Although they have lost consistently to first division clubs, the Cubs won the Braves made in the only game here—including an 11 run rally in the first inning—is the highest score any team has yet applied them.

Here are the scores against first division teams so far this season:

CUBS' VICTORIES.

May 6, St. Louis, 3.
May 7, Boston, 2.

CUBS' DEFEATS.

April 30, Chicago, 3 [10 inches].
May 1, Chicago, 2.
May 2, Chicago, 3.
May 3, Chicago, 4 [11 inches].
May 4, Chicago, 4.
May 5, Chicago, 6.
May 8, Chicago, 5.

TOTAL SCORES.

Cubs, 26.
Opponents, 34.

In addition to the scores contained in comparing the results with eastern clubs other than the first division clubs, Root (4-0), Malone (3-0), Hartnett (3-0), Grimes (3-0), Hallahan (2-0), Warneke (2-0), Bush (2-0), Carlson (2-0), Bryan (1-0), Cooney (1-0), Tinning (1-0), Osborne (1-0), Fitzsimmons (1-0), Heving (1-0), Bell (1-0), Derringer (0-1), Blake (0-1), Bush (0-1), Malone (0-1), Root (0-1), Warneke (0-1), Hallahan (0-2), Carlson (0-2), Bryan (0-2), Cooney (0-2), Tinning (0-2), Osborne (0-2), Fitzsimmons (0-2), Heving (0-2), Bell (0-2), Derringer (0-2), Blake (0-2), Bush (0-2), Malone (0-2), Root (0-2), Warneke (0-2

BECKER VISITS ONCE FAMOUS WATERFOWL LAND

May Be Redeemed Yet as Bird Refuge.

BY BOB BECKER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Kankakee River, Shelby, Ind., May 21.—The ghosts of millions of waterfowl seemed to be near us today as we stood on a windswept road close to the straightened Kankakee, where once the greatest duck and goose country in the Mississippi valley existed. Today this former marshland, which used to be visited by the migrating waterfowl and sportsmen from all over the United States, is mostly cultivated farm land.

Standing near the edge of what once was waving cattails, rushes, water, and wild rice, we saw reminders of the past in a rambling frame house where hunters used to assemble; Fogli's famous rendezvous, the Diana Hunting club, and others which now are marooned in this dried-up area like ships in a desert.

Visualizes Old Days.

We never saw this nationally famous waterfowl grounds before a drainage project straightened the winding Kankakee, dug miles of ditches, and turned this vast area into farm lands. But traveling through Ohio area, which today hears the clatter of a tractor dragging a plow in the fields instead of the quack of waterfowl, we could visualize this favorite hunting ground of sportsmen: Grape island, where the pintails gathered by the thousands; Devil's Hole, and other famous shooting spots in the old marsh.

The year 1931 holds a promise that part of this old marsh may be converted into a wild life refuge for waterfowl. Indiana sportsmen are behind a movement to take some of the wastelands along the new, straight ditch, which is called the Kankakee river today, and let them "go native" so that migrating ducks and geese will have a resting and feeding ground. Not all of the old marsh has been turned into agricultural land, so there is wasteland on both sides of the river. There are thousands of acres down here which are covered with weeds, old logs, stumps, and in some places the blackened remains of what was once a fine stand of timber.

U. S. Checks Project.

One of the hopeful things about this plan to change part of the drained marsh into a refuge is the interest being shown in it by Uncle Sam. Already an investigator has been out to look over the Kankakee and check up on the possibilities of the project.

The Indiana division of the Izaak Walton league, which is sponsoring the waterfowl refuge plan, has a group of men working on it, and surveys are being made of some of the lowlands which have not been cleared for farming purposes. With the wild life of this country facing a crisis and with the need urgent for feeding and rest grounds for our waterfowl, it is felt that the Kankakee is well worth studying with a view to the establishment of a wild life refuge, owned and administered by the government.

AMERICANS LIKE SPORT LUXURY; WILLING TO PAY

Sport, in the American notion, calls for large crowds, and these crowds spend in the aggregate a vast bill of money for railroad fares, hotel accommodations, liquor, costumes, gasoline, tires, and the hire of wrecking cars and ambulances. They clatter over the countryside in mass migrations, on short and long trips, every week or so from Jan. 1 to Dec. 1. They buy tickets freely, and they have quibbled at the price only with regard to prize fight tickets in the last ten years, and then not because they were stingy, but because the fighters had defrauded them so many times and, also, to some extent, because they weren't as wealthy as they used to be.

American Bill Mounts.

The American bill for sport equipment alone, including as it does swimming pools, expensive plumbing for showers, field houses, gymnasiums, and carefully attended lots, not only in the colleges and schools, but in many industrial plants, comes to what I would call, without fear of successful contradiction, a fairly pretty penny, and these plants are the answer to the accusation that sport in the United States, unlike sport abroad, is a sedentary proposition.

The body armor and tools used for the American program of games represent another item too great for serious contemplation abroad, and the public travel in great hordes that Americans take part in so light heartedly so many week-ends of the year are so inconceivable to other nations that they seem somehow not quite right.

In England a few aristocrats go shooting in the fall, and this may strike them there as something comparable, but for every hunter of theirs I would undertake to produce a dozen Americans who also go shooting in a thousand wilds and marshes every autumn, with no prospect of appearing in the illustrated London weeklies, nor any desire, either.

Favors Sport as Industry.

I wish that one of these days the U. S. department of commerce, now that it has so little commerce to occupy its interest, would find out approximately how much the United States does spend every year on baseball admissions and equipment, football gear and tickets, horse racing, golf and tennis, to mention the major items, because I am sure the figures would establish sport as an important industry, and I am all for anything that would tend to emphasize the material importance of the business.

The young men of the French boxing squad and their cicerones, who had had much experience of the world, were surprised by the luxury of the Medinah Athletic club in Chicago, one of the best in the country, to be sure, but by no means the only one of its class.

Sport on the American scale costs money, and my point is that if the United States has the money and is willing to spend it, there is no virtue in any one's boasting of the simplicity of sport in countries which cannot, or will not, pay the same bill.

McMillen and Kwariani in Match Friday

Jim McMillen, the former Illinois football star, and Kola Kwariani, the bald headed Russian, were signed yesterday to wrestle in the semi-final match on the Jim Londos-Frank Bronowicz card at the Coliseum next Friday.

Londos has never clashed with Bronowicz; neither have McMillen and Kwariani met, although they often have appeared on the same card.

Bronowicz is indulging in a strenuous training program to whip himself into condition for his test with Londos. Frank weighs 208, which is about eight pounds heavier than Londos.

ASSEMBLY GETS BILL TO REALIGN CONGRESS SEATS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., May 21.—[Special.] The long awaited congressional reapportionment bill was presented in the house today by Sol P. Roderick [Rep., Chicago], head of the joint redistricting subcommittee, and was advanced to second reading, to be in order for action next week. After months of hearings, the mapmakers declare they have prepared a redistricting measure that appears to meet with the favor of a majority of the legislature.

The committee looks for approval of the bill from the administration, as Governor Emmerson in his opening message to the assembly declared that nothing stood in the way of carving out of new congressional districts, and he believes say the prospects are that congressional reapportionment, now many years overdue, will emerge from the closing weeks of the legislature.

51 Seats for Metropolitan Area.

The proposed new map is based on the metropolitan area plan. The counties of Cook, Will, Lake, and Du Page, with 61 per cent of the population, will be given 14 districts. The rest of the state is given 13 districts. The carving of the state into 27 districts abolishes the two seats now held by congressmen who have been elected at large, due to the failure to redistrict. Under the present system, which is thirty years old, there are 50 districts, of which 15 are in Cook and 18 in Cook and Lake counties.

The 33 districts in Chicago and the suburban area are, with a few changes, as published in THE TRIBUNE last Sunday.

Makeup of Districts.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: Appearances Are Deceiving

BEDFORD OF OIL INDUSTRY FAME IS DEAD AT 82

Once Street Peddler, Piles Up Millions.

Westport, Conn., May 21.—[Special.]—Edward Thomas Bedford, who started life as a street peddler and made his mark as one of the great pioneer figures of the oil industry, died at his summer home, Wynfromere Farms, near here, today. He was 82 years old and had been ill for about three months. Death was due to a combination of heart and kidney trouble.

Up to this spring the aged capitalist had commuted daily from his office in New York, where he "kept his hand in" as active president of the Corn Products Refining company, one of his many interests.

With Standard Oil.

In the earlier days of his career Mr. Bedford shared prominence in the development of the oil industry with such titantic figures as John D. Rockefeller, Henry H. Rogers, and Charles Pratt. He was long associated with the Standard Oil company and was a member of the executive committee of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey from 1903 until 1911.

His interests in addition to oil were many and varied. He organized the New York Glucose company in 1902 to wage battle with the corn products trust. His generalship made him victor. There was a merger, and Mr. Bedford emerged on top.

"Be Shrewd," His Secret.

"You have to be shrewd, but you don't have to be sharp"—that was Mr. Bedford's secret, he said.

Flowers and horses were his respite from piloting industry. On the old onion patch he weeded when a boy he built a magnificent garden—exotic flowers, fruits, and shrubs. And he sat in his own sulkies behind his own trotters right on up through his seventies.

Once he broke the world record for the mile in a wagon, and when he was 76 he drove his four year old bay gelding Diplomat at a 2:05¼ clip for a mile to make a track record at Greens Farms, Conn., in a road cart.

Funeral services will be held Saturday at the country home. Burial will be at Willow Brook cemetery, Westport.

Charles Schmidt, Marble Importer, Taken by Death

Charles W. Schmidt, 75 years old, who immigrated to Chicago from Germany just in time to go through the Chicago fire, died yesterday in his home at 2435 Blaine place. He established a business of importing rare marbles many years ago, but later went into the insurance business, although the family retained the marble importing concern. The widow, Abbie, and two sons, Charles W. and Robert C. Schmidt, survive.

STUDENTS STAGE PAGEANT TODAY; TO GET AWARDS

As a part of the Youth week celebrations, a "drama of citizenship," which will include several pageants to be staged by public school students, a concert by a high school orchestra of 150 pieces and speeches by leaders in public life will be held tonight in the Chicago Civic Opera house. This event is otherwise known as the fifth annual central civic assembly presented under the auspices of the public schools system.

Mayor Cermak and William J. Bogan, superintendent of schools, will present awards for leadership and scholarship to students. Other speakers will be George W. Dixon, president of the Youth Week federation; Miss Jane Addams of Hull House, and Dr. Allen D. Albert, assistant to the president of the 1933 World's Fair.

The pageants will treat of the part played by youth in life, the relationship between schools and the home, and the schools in industry.

Robert Wells, 636 Dewey place, and Mildred Bulicek, 2232 South Kolin avenue, were yesterday presented with medals at the Commercial Continuation school, 607 Plymouth court, representing their leadership in character, scholarship, leadership, service, and health. The medals were presented as a feature of Youth week by Mildred Mack, president of the Civics club.

ANDREW MACK, VETERAN ACTOR, IS DEAD AT 68

Bayside, N. Y., May 21.—(AP)—Andrew Mack, 68, actor, died at his home late tonight after a five weeks' illness. He had been on the stage for 30 years, most of them with Frohman and Harris. His last appearance was with Mrs. Fiske in "The Rivals" last season.

Mack, one of the veterans of the theater, was born in Boston and went to school there. He was a classmate of former Mayor John F. Fitzgerald. His real name was William Andrew McAloon. He took the name of Mack when he went on the stage.

His longest stage run was in "Abie's Irish Rose" as Patrick Murphy. He was noted as a singer and actor and played in "The Humming Bird," "The Irish Dragon," "Molly Dear," "The Way to Kenmare," "The Bold Soger Boy," and other productions.

2 BILLS TO KEEP HARD TIRES OFF PAVING IGNORED

Still in Committee as Session Nears End.

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., May 21.—[Special.]—Two bills designed to save the state's pavements from destruction by hard tires are still gathering dust in committee as the legislative session approaches its end. They are H. B. 141, introduced on Jan. 21 by Representative Joseph L. Rategan [Dem., Chicago], and H. B. 414, introduced on March 4 by Representative Arthur Roe [Dem., Vandalia].

The Rategan bill provides that all vehicles except agricultural vehicles must be equipped with pneumatic tires in using the state highways. The Roe bill has the same end by specifying the design of tires.

Neither measure has been advanced beyond first reading.

The reasonableness of the restriction against hard tires, according to proponents of the bills, was substantiated by testimony of Thomas H. MacDonald, chief of the United States bureau of public roads, before the interstate commerce commission.

Mr. MacDonald, quoting results of government tests, reported that the average thickness of slab required to support a seven and a half ton truck with pneumatic tires traveling 30 miles an hour would be about 15 per cent greater than the minimum practicable thickness required for traffic of seven passenger automobiles.

The same truck equipped with cushion tires and traveling 20 miles an hour would require a slab thickness 31 per cent greater than that required by passenger cars, according to Mr. MacDonald, and an additional thickness of 42 per cent would be required were the truck equipped with solid tires.

In the meantime, some of Chicago's double decked busses are still being operated with hard tires. Under the law all of the hard tires must be off the busses by July 1, 1931.

JOHN A. MULLEN, STOCK EXCHANGE VETERAN, DEAD

John A. Mullen, charter member of the Chicago stock exchange and for many years a Democratic political leader, died of pneumonia yesterday in his home, 604 Clarence avenue, Oak Park.

Mr. Mullen was 69 years old. He was the predecessor of Mayor Cermak as ward committeeman in the old 10th ward, which was later made the twelfth and is now included in the 22d.

Surviving are two sons, Harry F. and John E. Mullen, a daughter, Mrs. Marie Fox, and a brother, Charles J. Mullen. Funeral will be held from the residence to the Church of the Ascension, Oak Park, at 9:30 a. m. tomorrow. Burial will be in Calvary cemetery.

A. R. Marriott Funeral Rites Will Be Tomorrow

Funeral services for Abraham Robert Marriott, 70 years old, president of the Chicago Title and Trust company, who died of pneumonia on Wednesday, will be conducted at the residence, 518 North East avenue, Oak Park, at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, with interment in Forest Home cemetery. The Chicago Real Estate board, the Union League club, and the Chicago Bar association have appointed committees to attend the services.

Ralph Barton's Ashes to Be Sent to Kansas City

New York, May 21.—(AP)—The body of Ralph Barton, caricaturist, who committed suicide early yesterday, will be cremated tomorrow at the direction of his brother, Homer Barton. Cremation will take place at Union City, N. J., and the ashes will be sent to his former home in Kansas City, Mo.

GUARD OF HONOR POSTED AT BIER OF HERO GENERAL

PARIS, May 21.—(AP)—The body of Brig. Gen. Robert H. Dunlap of the United States marine corps, who died attempting to save a French woman from a landslide, arrived this afternoon from Tours and was taken to the mortuary chapel in the American cathedral where a guard of honor was posted.

Funeral services on Saturday morning will be simple in accordance with the widow's wishes, but the French war department and the American Legion have asked permission to participate.

Woman He Saved Near Death.

TOURS, France, May 21.—(AP)—Mme. Denis Briant, who was taken alive out of the wreckage from which the body of Brig. Gen. Robert H. Dunlap was recovered, today underwent a second operation. Her condition was reported as extremely grave.

William Van Devanter, 86, Is Dead; Civil War Vet

William Van Devanter, civil war veteran and cousin of Justice Willis Van Devanter of the Supreme court of the United States, died yesterday in his home at 7518 Merrill avenue. He was 86 years old. When the civil war was declared he enlisted in the Michigan volunteer infantry. Funeral services will be held tomorrow morning in the chapel at 318 North Central avenue. Two sons, William Jr., and John F. Van Devanter, and a daughter, Mrs. Mildred Roberts, with whom he lived, survive.

Mrs. Mintie Field, Wife of Railroad Attorney, Dies

Mrs. Mintie Stearns Field, wife of Heman H. Field, special counsel for the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific railroad, died yesterday in the family residence, 4826 Kimbark avenue. She was a graduate of the Art Institute and a life member of the Arts Club of Chicago and a member of the Public School Art society. She had resided in Chicago since 1890 with the exception of six years residence in Seattle, Wash. Funeral services and burial will be in Leverett, Mass.

Christian Kurz, Resident of Chicago 66 Years, Dies

Christian A. Kurz, a resident of Chicago for 66 years, died yesterday in his home at 1718 Jarvis avenue, after an illness of two months. He was 80 years old, and a native of Germany. Mr. Kurz was in the ice business for many years, retiring in 1911. Surviving Mr. Kurz are his widow, Elizabeth; twelve children, and twenty-two grand and great grandchildren.

Ofelia Nieto, Noted Spanish Singer, Dies

MADRID, May 22.—[Friday.]—(AP)—Ofelia Nieto, noted Spanish soprano, died early today after an operation for appendicitis.

SLAYS WOMAN IN HOME; THEN HE ENDS OWN LIFE

A man and a woman were shot to death in the woman's flat at 1524 South Crawford avenue yesterday afternoon in circumstances indicating a murder and a suicide. The victims were Mrs. Daisy Kral, 33 years old, wife of Angus Kral, a Western Electric company employé, and Rudolph Boucek, 45 years old, a building contractor. Police believed the man shot the woman and then himself after a quarrel. Mrs. Stazie Martinek, mother of the dead woman, was in the apartment at the time, but did not witness the shooting. Kral was not at home and the police began a search for him to question him concerning Boucek.

ENDS HIS LIFE WITH GAS.

Charles Wurm, 63 years old, a tailor, killed himself by asphyxiation yesterday in his home at 1500 South Komensky avenue. When his wife went out to shop he turned on two gas jets and sat down beside them.

ECKHART ESTATE OF $5,000,000 IS LEFT TO FAMILY

The will of Bernard Albert Eckhart, business and civic leader, was admitted to probate yesterday by Oscar S. Caplan, assistant to Probate Judge Henry Horner. The estate is valued at $5,000,000, most of which is left to Mr. Eckhart's family. Mr. Eckhart, who was 79 years old, died on May 10 in his home at 1530 Lake Shore drive.

Mr. Eckhart's widow and four children are left sums of $20,000 each and a number of shares of stock in a holding company controlled by the Eckhart family. Other relatives and employés of Mr. Eckhart are given cash bequests amounting to $25,000.

The remainder of the estate is left in trust for the benefit of Mrs. Eckhart, two daughters, Mrs. Hazel E. Brophy and Mrs. Dorothy E. Williams, and two sons, Percy B. and Carlos K. Eckhart.

The will says that Mr. Eckhart had provided for charitable institutions before his death by contributions to the Community trust. Mr. Eckhart recently made a gift of $1,000,000 to the University of Chicago.

CITIES SERVICE LEADS CHICAGO STOCK TRADING

Touches New Low During Active Dealing.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

An outpouring of selling in Cities Service stock from professional traders and outsiders broke the issue to a new low price on the Chicago exchange yesterday. The heavy trading in Cities Service, which amounted to over 47,000 shares, dominated a market otherwise characterized by moderately quiet dealing and narrow price movements.

Liquidation in the utility issue followed on the heels of the company's earnings report for the twelve months ended April 30, which was issued after the close of the market Wednesday. While the statement disclosed a decline in net earnings from the previous twelve months the directors had authorized the regular monthly cash and stock dividend distributions. The directors' action silenced the rumors of adverse dividend action which had been put forward to explain the weakness in the stock on Wednesday, but failed to check the liquidation, which increased in volume when the trading opened yesterday and continued throughout most of the day.

Recovers Part of Loss.

The stock broke to the record low figure of 9⅝ early in the day under the persistent hammering but recovered some of its loss. The low for the day represented a spread of 3 points from the previous closing price while the final quotation of 11 meant a net shrinkage of 1⅝ for the day.

Aside from the earnings there was nothing to account for the heavy liquidation in the utility stock. Rumor in the financial district had it, however, that Standard Oil of New Jersey had contracted to purchase 3,000,000 shares of the stock at a price under the current market level. While the story lacked anything resembling official sanction it aroused considerable interest. The company has 50,000,000 shares of authorized common stock, of which 30,378,592 shares are outstanding. The issue is one of the most widely distributed common stocks and is held by thousands of small investors. Friends of the stock were inclined to place a bullish construction on the rumored Standard Oil acquisition.

Others Irregular.

Other utility shares were irregular within a narrow range while the automotive accessory shares held firm at previous closing prices. FitzSimons & Connel was off 1½ points, selling ex dividend on light trade.

Libby McNeill common was steady on news that directors had authorized the regular quarterly dividends on the first and second preferred stocks. Chicago Yellow Cab also reported the regular monthly dividends of 25 cents for June, July and August.

BROKERS' LOANS SHOW DECLINE OF $40,000,000

Stock Credit Is Now 1-5 of '29 Peak.

BY O. A. MATHER.

[illegible] this week the amount of credit being devoted to stock market operations shrank to a new low record. In fact, only about one-fifth of the huge volume of credit used when the market was at its peak in September, 1929, now is being used.

It is natural that the continued decline in securities prices in the last month should result in a further decline in brokers' loans. The weekly statement issued by the federal reserve board yesterday showed the total of these loans to be only $1,631,000,000, showing a decline of $40,000,000 in the week and a shrinkage of $2,334,000,000 from a year ago, when the total was $4,613,000,000.

Money Goes Begging.

The details of the report emphasize the present situation of money going begging for almost every purpose. In spite of the practically steady rate of 2½ per cent on call loans, in the week the interior banks increased their loans to brokers by $26,000,000, all outstanding lenders, including corporations, furnished an additional $40,000,000. On the other hand, the New York banks reduced their own loans by $80,000,000, but still are furnishing most of the funds for the call market.

Continued dullness in the demand for credit for commercial purposes is disclosed in the weekly statement of the federal reserve system, issued last night. While the member banks increased their borrowings from the reserve banks by $3,972,000, this credit expansion was more than offset by the sales of the reserve institutions [illegible] credit from the open market by selling $22,101,000 of bankers' acceptances. Borrowings of the reserve banks still stand at the relatively small total of $143,878,000.

Deposits at the reserve banks declined $30,337,000, but their note circulation rose $36,148,000. Gold and gold certificates increased $12,678,000 and $10,000, respectively, and the ratio of reserves to liabilities strengthened [illegible] per cent, compared with 84.5 per cent last week.

Savings Decline.

The New York reserve bank made a slight gain in its 1½ per cent rediscount rate. Its report showed a decline of $6,178,000 in member bank holdings, which now total $27,771,000. Bankers' acceptances also receded $10,000. Deposits dropped $37,817,000. Reserves declined $11,846,000 but the reserve ratio rose to 91.4 per cent, compared with 90.4 per cent last week.

The Chicago reserve bank reported a decrease of $1,375,000 in member bank borrowings, which now total $[illegible]. Bankers' acceptances were $[illegible]. Deposits expanded $14,123,000, reserves increased $23,075,000, and the reserve ratio rose to 87.2 per cent, compared with 84.7 per cent a week ago.

Russ Reject U. S. Plan for Restricted Wheat Acreage

LONDON, May 21.—(AP)—Russia's delegation to the world wheat conference today issued a statement definitely rejecting the American plan for restricted acreage, as suggested by Samuel R. McKelvie, and proposing instead a broad scheme upon which Russia would be inclined to enter a world agreement limiting exports.

The announcement enlivened an otherwise dull day of routine committee meetings, but what its effect will be on tomorrow's open meeting of the conference was conjectural. Some of the delegates, although they refrained from commenting on the note itself, said they believed it would prolong the conference at least into next week.

The Russian viewpoint was made pretty clear yesterday in committee session and today's statement amplified it. The immediate result of its publication was to divide the conference into two camps, at least under the surface, one supporting the quota system and the other holding out against it. The United States is in the latter.

U. S. Against Quota System.

Mr. McKelvie has made it clear that his country is definitely aligned against the quota system.

Russia wants her old position as the leading wheat exporting nation, and the Danubian states, whose production fell off during the war, support her. The opposition is likely to include Canada, Argentina, and Australia.

The Russian statement, signed by Isidore Lubimoff, does not commit the delegation to any definite proposal, but rather places the responsibility for success or failure of the conference with the large exporting countries, including the United States.

"It is necessary to emphasize," the statement said, "that the establishment of a scheme based on quotas can be acceptable only if the largest wheat exporting countries will participate."

The other delegates declined to comment on that paragraph.

The statement referred to Russia's willingness to accept a quota system and said, "But it must be realized that our wheat is one of the main sources for covering our liabilities in connection with our imports, and adequate credits for financing wheat which must be kept in stock in Russia must be guaranteed."

Definite Repudiation.

Repudiation of the McKelvie proposals was very definite.

"The chief proposal of the United States," said the statement, "is reduction of acreage. So far as our country is concerned this solution is unacceptable. In the conditions of our social system, with the extraordinary development of our industries and number of industrial workers, increased production is necessary to meet growing internal demands. At the same time it will lead also to an increased surplus to meet our export requirements."

In an outline of the position of wheat in Russia the statement said last year's crop was 29,500,000 tons of which 6,100,000 was surplus. The estimated harvest this year is 36,500,000 tons.

"Delighted" with Russia.

At a banquet for wheat conference delegates tonight, Dominions Secretary Thomas said there could be no justification for the continuance of any system that enabled people to be supplied with a commodity the production of which did not afford a decent standard of living to the producer.

Turning to the soviet ambassador, who sat next to him, Thomas said he welcomed the participation of Russia in the conference and was delighted to find she was there with a clear recognition of the fact that no country could "either isolate itself or live for itself."

Favor Sales Agreement.

Saskatoon, Sask., May 21.—(AP)—The Saskatchewan section of the United Farmers of Canada has issued a statement favoring an international sales agreement on wheat.

The statement, which is by way of comment on the London wheat conference, opposes the suggestion of the United States delegates that a reduction of acreage is the solution of the wheat problem. Orderly marketing controlled by the growers will be the final practical method of disposing of world surpluses, the organization says.

CROSS CURRENTS NOTED IN GOTHAM BOND EXCHANGE

New York, May 21.—(AP)—The bond market today provided a number of surprises. Sales totaled $12,556,500, making the day one of the most active full sessions this year. Cross currents were evident in the movement of prices. Many of the more speculative obligations broke sharply, while some of the gilt edge issues made further gains and others reacted.

United States Treasury and Liberty loans were generally lower. The Treasury 4¼s of 1947-'52 dropped ½ point on a few sales, a large decline for these issues. The first and fourth Liberty 4¼s and the Treasury 3⅛s of 1941-'43 and of 1943-'47 were heavily traded in at lower levels. Some reaction among the federal governments was not surprising, in view of the succession of gains which they have scored.

The lower prices contrasted sharply with gains in high grade corporate obligations such as American Telephone debenture 5½s of 1943, Atchison general 4s, Brooklyn Union Gas 6s, Chicago, Burlington & Quincy general 4s, Delaware & Hudson refunding 4s, New England Telephone 5s, Philadelphia Electric 4s of 1971 and Public Service Electric & Gas 4s of 1971.

OFFICIALS CLEARED IN FAILURE OF BANK; DEPRESSION BLAMED

East St. Louis, Ill., May 21.—(AP)—A decision clearing officials of the First National Bank of Eldorado of liability in the failure of the bank has been handed down by Federal Judge Fred L. Wham, it was announced here today.

The exonerated officials are T. G. Mitchell, W. W. Blankenship, R. S. Martin, and Frank Johnson, who were sued by L. M. Vance, receiver of the closed bank, for $150,000.

The suit charged them with being "guilty of common law negligence and of willful violations of their statutory duties, resulting in losses to the bank."

Judge Wham said in the decision that the defendants were men of "high standing in their community, as shown by the evidence, and that they were well informed, experienced and successful."

"From the first," the judge said, "they faced an incipient and growing business depression in their community, which presented problems in business and banking which ordinary foresight failed to solve and which even the wisest could not foresee.

"The evidence fails to show that under these circumstances the defendants had failed to exercise at least ordinary care and diligence which the law requires of bank directors."

All Eastern Lines Will Seek Increase in Rates

New York, May 21.—(AP)—Presidents of the eastern railroads, representing all lines east of the Mississippi, today voted to ask the Interstate commerce commission to restore freight rates to a level which, in the judgment of the commission, will protect the credit of the carriers.

A committee was appointed to work out the details. It consists of W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania; Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore and Ohio; P. E. Crowley, president of the New York Central lines; J. J. Bernet, for the Van Sweringen lines; J. M. Davis, president of the New York, New Haven and Hartford, and C. H. Hix, president of the Virginian.

The committee will appoint a chairman and determine at once the manner and method of procedure.

Decide Amount Later.

It was pointed out that the committee's major work will be to study the question completely and to decide on the amount of increase to request. It was said there was a disposition on the part of the executives to ask only for a sufficient increase to protect the roads.

It was said that the matter of a rate increase had not yet reached the point where the executives were thinking in terms of percentages. However, it was learned in usually well informed quarters that the executives are fairly well agreed that if the railroads were able to amplify their present gross income 10 per cent, it would probably carry them over their present difficulties.

The railroads, it was said, do not hope or expect to obtain all that they have lost in freight rate reductions since 1921. Their decline in revenues over the period of years from the high rates to the present carrying charges, it was said, amounts to a grand total of around $6,000,000,000.

Helped by Chicago Meeting.

It is reported in usually well informed circles that the plan to seek higher rates has made substantial progress since the meeting of the Association of Railway Executives in Chicago May 8, when it was decided to request the vice presidents in charge of traffic to make a general study of the plan.

While it is acknowledged in railroad circles that the plan may be expected to provoke much opposition in shipping circles, proponents of the plan argue that its benefits would more than outweight the adverse influence of more expensive transport.

It is understood in Wall street that large holders of railway securities, such as savings banks and insurance companies, have brought pressure to bear against the railroads to increase their revenues to improve their credit standing.

BARGAIN FARES BEING OFFERED BY U. S. ROADS

America's railroads, making a fight to secure the revenues they believe they must have to maintain wage and dividend levels, have opend a "bargain counter" in an effort to attract more passengers.

While the major western roads are experimenting with drastically reduced fares, the western and eastern trunk lines begin an experiment in July and August on a special coast to coast round trip fare. This rate is $130 round trip from coast to coast as compared to the former rate of $138. It includes all stop over privileges and is good for 30 days. The $138 fare already represents a holiday price, being less than a fare and one-third for the round trip.

J. I. Case Directors Vote Usual Quarterly Dividend

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Racine, Wis., May 21.—The board of directors of the J. I. Case Threshing Machine company at their monthly meeting here today voted the quarterly dividend of $1.75 per share on preferred stock and $1.50 a share on common stock.

APRIL OPERATING INCOME OF SIX RAILS IS $3,990,000

New York, May 21.—(AP)—The first six railroads to report April results showed net operating income of $3,990,000 for the month, a decline of 23.1 per cent from the $5,195,000 reported the corresponding month last year, and a reduction of 42.3 per cent from the like month of 1929.

Bill Asks Receivership for Geo. M. Forman & Co.

A bill asking a receiver for the George M. Forman & Co. mortgage investment firm was filed in the Circuit court yesterday by the law firm of Litsinger, Healy & Reid, representing a group of security holders. The bill also asks an injunction to restrain the management from disposing of the company's assets. The bill alleges that the George M. Forman Realty Trust was formed to take over certain equities of the company without the consent of stockholders. Officials named in the bill are Porter Fox, William G. Lodwick, and Herbert Bartling. The firm has no connection whatever with the Foreman-State National bank or its affiliated institutions.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 21. — Railroad shares, turning at last, led a spectacular little rally on the stock exchange in the late dealings today. New York Central set the pace, spurting a full five points from the day's low under urgent bidding, with Atchison, Union Pacific, Rock Island, Chicago and North Western, Illinois Central, and various others long trampled in the dust doing a goose step behind it. Prices were boosted for gains of 2 to 5 points net throughout the group.

The sudden exhibition of strength in the carriers had the effect of starting a brisk covering movement on a broad front and for a time the demand was such as to throw the ticker about three minutes behind the floor dealings. Most of the active list finished well on the upside and there were enough 2 and 3 point advances sprinkled through the returns to send the boys home licking their chops. It has been a long time since the bulls got such a break.

Steel Just Under Par.

United States Steel got back above par at one time, but profit taking by traders who have had their fingers burnt in short-lived rallies before cut it to 99⅞ just before the close. American Can touched 99¾ and closed at 99⅝, up 2½ points on the day.

Other group leaders moved ahead expressively. American Telephone, under heavy pressure earlier in the week, rebounded for some 2 points and such stocks as General Electric, Consolidated, Gas, Eastman Kodak, Montgomery Ward, and Radio Corporation recovered from a fraction to about 2 points.

About the only basis that the average observer could discover for the sudden enthusiasm for the carrier stocks was the reported discussion of

• A surprising—on second thought, not so surprising—number of letters come to us during the day, in this vein:

"I have from one to five bonds of ten issues and several hundred shares of stock. Some of these bonds are quoted as low as fifty to eighty cents on the dollar. The stocks are all off badly from my cost. I know that with the return to more normal conditions, most of these situations that now look disturbing will clear up satisfactorily. I have the feeling, however, that some situations will improve much more quickly than others and that with nearly all securities at depressed levels, I might be able to improve my position by making some changes in my securities. Give me your ideas on the enclosed list."

• We believe that the writers of these letters have a sound idea. In effect, they are looking at the securities they own, dispassionately, as so many dollars that are theirs for investment. This attitude is particularly appropriate in these times. • You can be sure that if you bring a similar problem to us, you will incur no obligation.

TEXAS SULPHUR CO. PUTS STOCK ON A $3 BASIS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 21.—The process of bringing dividend rates into line with earnings which starts early in a depression period and usually continues even after business has turned the corner was carried further yesterday when the directors of several corporations, including railroads, utilities and industrials acted to adjust their rates.

The board of Texas Gulf Sulphur company voted a quarterly dividend of 75 cents a share, compared with the previous rate of $1. This places the stock on a $3 annual basis, against $4 a year heretofore.

Directors of the General Public Service corporation voted to omit the semi-annual dividend of 2 per cent in stock on the common due at this time, but declared the regular quarterly dividends of $1.50 on the 6 per cent preferred and $1.37½ on the 5½ per cent preferred stocks.

Exceeds Requirements.

S. B. Tuell, president, informed stockholders that net profits from Jan. 1 to date available for dividends on the common stock were approximately $278,000, compared with a requirement of approximately $201,000 if the dividend on the common had been declared and charged to surplus at the usual rate.

"The directors felt in view of the present business conditions it was the conservative policy not to declare a dividend on the common stock, despite the fact that earnings are available for the purpose."

Based on market prices as of the close of business May 19 the asset value of the common stock, including scrip, was approximately $11.23 a share, compared with a book value of approximately $18.77.

Omits Extra Payment.

The extra dividend usually paid by Atlantic Coast Line at this time will not be disbursed. However, payment of the regular semi-annual dividend of $3.50 on the common stock has been authorized.

Louisville and Nashville railroad, controlled by Atlantic Coast Line, reduced its annual dividend rate to $5 from $7 by declaring a semi-annual payment of $2.50.

Crown Willamette Paper company directors have declared a dividend of $1 on the 7 per cent first preferred stock, against $1.75 previously paid quarterly. The action automatically defers the dividend on the 6 per cent second preferred, in accordance with a recommendation made by directors May 4.

Directors of Chesebrough Manufacturing company declared the usual extra dividend of 40 cents a share in addition to the regular quarterly payment of $1.

Vote Preferred Extra.

Budd Wheel company directors declared an extra dividend of 75 cents on the 7 per cent participating preferred stock in addition to the regular quarterly dividend of $1.75 a share on the issue and the regular quarterly payment of 25 cents a share on the common stock.

An extra dividend of 15 cents a share and the regular quarterly of 20 cents were voted on the common stock of Philadelphia company. Three months ago a similar bonus was declared. Regular quarterly dividends were declared on the preferred issues.

Meeting of directors of the Gulf States Steel company for action on the preferred dividend has been postponed until tomorrow. The board was scheduled to meet today.

CORPORATION EARNINGS

GRIGSBY-GRUNOW.

Statement filed with New York Stock exchange shows net loss, exclusive of the operations of Majestic Household Utilities corporation, of $840,671 for the three months ended Feb. 28. Net loss for the nine months ended Feb. 28 was $1,199,289. Balance sheet as of Dec. 28, which does not give effect to the Majestic merger, shows current assets of $7,144,618 and current liabilities of $3,072,498. Total assets were carried at $22,567,761.

INTERNATIONAL PAPER AND POWER.

Quarter net income was $1,400,116 after charges and federal taxes, compared with $970,054 in the corresponding quarter a year ago.

Earnings for the 1931 quarter do not reflect any deduction or adjustment in respect to the newsprint price reduction, retroactive to Jan. 1, 1931. It is estimated that the amount involved will not exceed $900,000.

Preliminary figures for April indicate earnings available for dividends of about $400,000, after allowing for the effect of the price reduction in newsprint.

TODD SHIPYARDS.

Reported for the year to March 31 profit of $827,860 before federal taxes. In the preceding year $5.77 a share after taxes was earned.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA EDISON.

Reported for April balance of $1,526,457 after taxes and charges, but before depreciation, as against $1,742,484 in April, 1930. Four months' balance amounted to $5,376,601, as against $5,327,670 in the first four months of last year.

PUGET SOUND POWER.

Reported for the twelve months ended April 30 balance of $4,312,937 after taxes and charges but before depreciation, against $4,307,235 in the previous twelve months.

GREAT NORTHERN IRON ORE.

Reported 1930 net equivalent to $2.08 a certificate of beneficial interest, before depletion, as compared with $3.10 in 1929.

NATIONAL SERVICE.

Reported gross sales of the operating companies for April, 1931, of $615,979, as compared with $561,890 for April, 1930, an increase of $24,088.

PLYMOUTH OIL.

SERVEL, INC.

Reported for the quarter ended April 30 profit of $448,233 after charges and for the six months to April 30, $403,054.

NEVADA-CALIFORNIA ELECTRIC.

Net income was $9,463 after taxes and charges, as compared with $50,777 in April a year ago. For the twelve months ended April 30 net income was $781,022, against $1,009,503 in the preceding twelve months.

STONE & WEBSTER.

Reported for the twelve months to March 31 consolidated net equivalent to $3.17 a share on 2,104,800 shares. In 1930 net equaled $3.41 a share on 1,888,694 shares.

SOAKING RAINS BRING SELLING IN WHEAT MART

Prices Finish Lower; Corn Is Under Pressure.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Soaking rains fell overnight and yesterday in the sections of Kansas and the elimination of fears of crop damage in that section, combined with evidence of an early movement of new wheat from Texas, led to general selling of futures which carried prices off 1¾@2c from the finish of Wednesday, with July and September touching 53¾c.

Dry weather over a large part of the Canadian northwest was ignored by the trade and the finish was 1¼@1½c lower, with July 59¼@59¾c, September 59¾@59¾c, and December 62¾@63c. Old May wheat closed ¼c higher at 82¾c, while new May was unchanged at 86c. The latter sold up to 86¼c at the opening, the highest figure since Oct. 23.

The rains in the southwest had considerable influence on sentiment at Kansas City, where the July delivery was off 1¾c for the da yat 52¾c. Winnipeg weakened in sympathy with American markets and on selling by houses with Chicago connections and closed 1¼@1⅝c lower, with July at 60¾c, while Liverpool declined ⅝@¾d, with July 65c.

Buy New Wheat to Arrive.

There was talk during the day of new winter wheat being offered to arrive at the gulf, which disclosed a lack of demand, and it is estimated that Chicago handlers have bought 150,000 to 200,000 bu to come to this market for deferred shipment at a fair discount under the September. With the impending movement of the new crop close at hand the trade looks for hedging pressure to make its appearance, and there was persistent selling of the September a good part of the day. The latter sold as much as ¾c under July at the opening, but was only ⅛c under at the last, compared with a premium of ⅛c at the finish on Wednesday.

According to messages from the southwest it may be necessary to lower estimates on the new winter wheat crop somewhat from the extremely high figures which have been mentioned in trade gossip of late, but the latter in practically all instances were considerably larger than the government May 1 returns. It is felt that Kansas has received sufficient moisture now in the southwestern and southern parts of the state to practically carry the crop to maturity.

About 75 per cent of the Alberta and Saskatchewan spring wheat area is said in need of rain and about 50 per cent of the Manitoba area, according to an estimate made by a Winnipeg grain elevator house. Foreign demand for Canadian wheat was slow and reports from Winnipeg were pessimistic as to whether clearances would continue in large volume for more than a few weeks. Sales of 350,000 bu were reported in all positions.

Pressure on July Corn.

Heavy selling of July corn by a local professional found the market poorly supported and, with liquidation and stop loss order selling, the July dropped to 56¼c, equalling the inside figure of the season, while September and December sold at a new low on the crop. Cold weather with frost was ignored as a market influence, and the close was at net losses of ⅞@1⅛c, with May 56¼c, July 56¾c, September 54⅞@55c, and December 48⅜@48¾c.

There was buying of July against sales of September corn by spreaders during the day, which put the former to ⅝c over the deferred future, the difference widening ⅛c for the day. Outside terminals offered No. 2 mixed corn to come here at May price and 15,000 bu were booked. Shipping sales aggregated 64,000 bu.

Oats showed stubborn resistance to pressure and the weakness in corn and finished unchanged to ⅛c lower, with cash houses taking May. The same interests bought December and sold September. May closed at 27⅛c, July 27⅛c, September 27⅛@27¼c, and December 29⅝c.

Rye failed to fully reflect the weakness in wheat and closed ⅝c lower, with May 37¼c, July and September 38⅝c, and December 41⅝c. Forecast for frost in the Dakotas overnight, with temperatures officially reported as low as 16 in western South Dakota, had some effect on sentiment and tended to decrease pressure.

SMALL COTTON LOSSES

Interest in cotton was not marked yesterday and fluctuations were within a range of around 16 points. Higher cables from Liverpool were responsible for an advance at the start, which soon lost all its limitation and an irregular decline. A statement from Chairman Stone of the farm board that the cooperatives had 1,300,000 bales of the 1929 crop which was well financed, but also had 1,000,000 bales of the 1930 crop, about 2,300,000 bales all told, which was to be held for higher prices, had a strengthening influence for a time. Weather reports were less favorable with temperatures and rainfall below normal. Trading in all was lighter and the undertone was not sufficiently pronounced to cause decided net changes in values. Thomson & McKinnon said an improvement in outside markets was needed to furnish a basis for more than moderate purchases.

At the close futures in Chicago were 1 point higher to 2 points lower, New Orleans unchanged to 3 points lower, New York, 1 point higher to 3 points lower. Spots were unchanged. New York, 9.30c; New Orleans, 9.10c; Galveston, 9.15c, and Houston, 9.11c. Liverpool closed 4@5 points net lower with cost sales 4,000 bales, including 2,000 bales American. Manchester cabled that the cloth market was unsettled.

WORLD'S GRAIN MARKET NEWS

With frost reported in Kansas, Nebraska, and claims of deterioration to the Kansas crop and with good general rains over the southwest, while the northwest remains dry, and moisture is needed, wheat traders are in a nervous state. The situation is most unusual. It is said that while there has been some damage, prospects for a large crop are regarded as so favorable that losses of a few millions of bushels are said to be too insignificant to base a bullish position on. The disposition is to sell wheat on all bulges. Low prices for the new crop are not bringing export business and stocks are too large, considering surrounding conditions, to attract enough outside trade for a bull market.

Kansas City reported that hard winter wheat was offered for shipment on the basis of 63c Galveston, with no sales. In Chicago offers of 150,000 to 200,000 bu were said to have been made, mostly from Illinois points, with no sales reported. The wheat, it was said, was held at around 2½c under September.

Corn traders had it that the big selling of July was for an eastern account. One trade of 700,000 bu was made at 56⅛@56⅝c. Absence of general outside buying support has created the impression that it will be difficult to bull corn should wheat prices decline, unless there is more general speculative buying.

The farm board continues to accumulate wheat, taking delivery on grain that is being brought in here from outside markets. With receipts at southwestern points unusually large, especially for this season of the year, and the movement of new wheat not more than six weeks away, there is a disposition to go slow on the buying side, except for quick turns on breaks.

LARD MARKET STRONGER

Light offerings of lard, with a fair scattered buying from commission houses and others, gave the market a stronger tone yesterday and after the break of 10@25c in hogs. Last trades were at net gains of 5@10c, October leading the upturn. Liverpool lard was 3d higher all around and export clearances were 405,805 lbs of lard, 101,000 lbs of bacon. Hog receipts were larger than a week and a year ago. Prices follow:

HIDE FUTURES

Futures on the New York Hide exchange advanced sharply in a fairly active market, closing from 20 to 29 points higher. Total sales, 1,600,000 lbs.

Production of hides from cattle slaughtered under federal inspection in April totaled 689,788 hides, making the first quarter 1931 output 2,535,557 hides, or 4 per cent over the same period in 1930.

Total stocks of all cattle hides and cattle hide leather on March 31 were equivalent to 15,832,000 hides, or approximately the same as on March 31, 1930. At the average rate of consumption during the first quarter of 1931 these stocks were equivalent to 11.8 months' supply, against 10.9 months' supply a year ago. Prices follow:

*Shorn lambs; no wool lambs here.

Prices for all classes of live stock went tobogganing yesterday, cattle and hogs gliding back to the previous low spot of the season, while some classes of lambs sold at the lowest levels in recent weeks.

Demand in all branches was unusually narrow, although outlet for hogs expanded some toward the finish when spots showed as much as 25c loss in medium grades. Cattle receipts at leading markets this week have been larger, while supplies of hogs and lambs are running among the smallest of the year.

Unevenness in hog prices yesterday ranged from steady to 25c lower, a big share showing 10@20c loss in midsession and later. The extreme top moved down 10c at $7.00, while the general average declined 15c at $6.80, these prices being equal to the lowest point of the season, established Monday.

There were still 8,000 hogs left at the close. Shippers bought only 2,000 head. In spite of dwindling supplies, this week's market, as a whole, shows about 25c loss compared with last week's average, which was the previous low point for a weekly average. Prices are below any corresponding week in 20 years and fully $1.50 below the high point of the year, established in March.

September Hogs Advance.

Contracts for September hogs met better demand yesterday and the recent loss was recovered when two carloads sold at $7.50 for the first half of that month. June light were offered as low as $7.00 for the first half of the month, but $6.75 was the highest bid at the close.

Light weights for September were offered at $7.65 and bid $6.75. Bids for mediums for September delivery were up to $7.40. On the to arrive market light weights for today were sold at $7.00.

Cattle buyers are determined to slash prices still further unless there is a marked change in the demoralized condition of the dressed beef market soon, according to reports. The steer market remained almost at a standstill and hundreds of cattle were carried over for today's market practically without bids.

Scattered sales showed 50@75c loss compared with last week's close, although many buyers were uninterested even at this concession. Bulk of prices hit a new bottom. Sales ranged from $5.50 to $8.00, except for one lot of choice 810 lb, yearling steers that sold at $8.15. Few sales beat $7.25. Calves were pounded down 50@75c. Stockers and feeders were dull and lower.

Lamb Market Erratic.

The lamb market was more erratic than usual yesterday, although a big share of offerings showed 25@50c decline soon after the start. Best strong weight native springers reached $10.50 @11.00, with odd heads as high as $12.00, while stock from California was sorted at $10.25, the culls going at $8.00. Matured lambs from last year's crop of feeders made up a small share of total arrivals and were all shorn, selling at $7.75@8.65. Aged sheep and yearlings were steady. Receipts at the seven leading markets this week promise to fall short of 250,000 and compare with an average of 310,000 during the last five weeks.

Receipts at Chicago for today are estimated at 2,000 cattle, 15,000 hogs, and 7,000 sheep, against 2,204 cattle, 15,536 hogs, and 14,460 sheep the previous Friday, and 2,113 cattle, 21,164 hogs, and 10,222 sheep a year ago.

Crops in Northwest Are Making Fair Progress

Fair to good rains have fallen over the larger part of the northwest in the last two weeks, as reported by the Van Dusen Harrington company of Minneapolis. Temperatures on the whole have been seasonal and weather conditions generally favorable for the growth of small grains. In the last 24 hours freezing temperatures, accompanied by snow flurries, have been experienced in a great many districts.

In sections of western North Dakota and eastern Montana where moisture was very badly needed, temperatures have been high and scattered showers were of very little value. Rainfall in other parts of the territory has largely eliminated grain damage for the present, and most localities now have a sufficient supply to carry crops for another 2 to 3 weeks. With good weather the next few days seeding of small grains will be finished.

Spring wheat and durums are showing fairly good stand and color, but the early cold, dry and windy weather caused injury. Seeding of flax is about half completed. In the southern districts of the northwest corn planting is 50 to 75 per cent finished. Ground is working nicely and good seed beds have been prepared.

BRITAIN'S ROYAL SALESMAN MAKES SELLING TALK

Prince of Wales Pulls Out Order Book.

LONDON, May 21.—(AP)—The prince of Wales, in a radio address which was broadcast from London tonight in an international hookup, said the cordial coöperation of British industry, salesmanship, shipping, and finance was essential in furthering British trade with South America.

"It seems to me," he said, "that the most important point is to get as many entries as possible in our national order book, and to allocate the work to individual firms once that is done."

Reverts to Tariffs.

Reverting to the question of tariffs, to which he referred in an address last week, the prince said:

"Where tariffs make importation impossible, the only course left open, as a last resort, is the establishment of local assembly plants which will at least contain a certain supply of machinery and raw materials from this country."

The prince spoke for half an hour to a distinguished gathering of persons high in commercial and political life, at a dinner of the London executive committee of the British empire trade exposition at Buenos Aires.

Personal Touch Effective.

He also recommended "further industrial grouping and unification, particularly as regards salesmanship and representation."

"I would like the keyword of this evening to be 'coöperation,'" he said. "With the people of Latin America personal touch counts for even more than it does with the Anglo-Saxon. Wherever I went I found the greatest volume of the most valuable business was being done by those who had taken the trouble to establish a personal contact with their South American customers."

"I am convinced," he said, "that by the exercise of more imagination we can go our competitors one better and supply the goods of tomorrow."

NEW FINANCING FOR ANACONDA TALKED OF AGAIN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 21.—New financing for the Anaconda Copper Mining company amounting to approximately $40,000,000 was reported today to be under lively discussion again, after a lapse of several months. No plans have been prepared, however, for an immediate offering.

The consolidated balance sheet of the company as of last Dec. 31 showed notes payable of $47,500,000. This total compared with $35,000,000 at the end of 1929 and $12,000,000 in 1927.

Present funded debt of the company consists only of obligations of subsidiaries, including $35,000,000 Chile Copper company twenty year 5 per cent debentures due 1947 and $2,110,000 of Butte, Anaconda and Pacific Railway company first mortgage 5 per cent sinking fund bonds, due 1914.

BLDG. AND LOAN MEMBERS ASK 30 DAY NOTICE

Columbus, O., May 21.—The majority of the nineteen members of the Columbus league of building and loan associations have decided to post notices that clients must give 30 days notice of withdrawals, it has been announced. They acted after the Columbian Building and Loan and the Central Building and Loan posted such notices Tuesday and the former reduced the interest rate from six to 4½ per cent.

It was said the building loans decided to post the withdrawal notices because of demand for deposits and to conserve assets.

Shell Union Liquid Funds $21,000,000 on May 8

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 21. — The Shell Union Oil corporation had liquid funds on May 8 last of $21,000,000, J. C. Van Eck, president of the company, told stockholders at the annual meeting today. A comparison with the close of March shows an increase of $2,000,000. Mr. Van Eck said that Shell Union had effected several economies "which run into a considerable sum in the total," and that operating expenses this year will be several million dollars smaller than they were in 1930. The second quarter, he said, will not show as large a loss as the first quarter, due to the reduced expenses.

Finish Wheat Seeding, Await Canadian Rains

With all wheat seeding completed in western Canada, the farmers are now waiting for heavy rains, which are necessary to insure uniform and satisfactory growth, according to the weekly crop report of the Canadian National railways. High winds and some hot days have retarded growth, but soil drifting has been relieved by local showers. In some districts of Manitoba early sown wheat is about three inches above the ground, but on the whole the prairies are in need of a good soaking.

CANADIAN WHEAT SEEDED

"Wheat seeding in western Canada has been completed with the exception of a few districts," says the Canadian National Railways report of May 16. "Copious rains are necessary to insure uniform and satisfactory germination. In Manitoba early sown wheat germination is somewhat patchy; later sown fields require rain, surface moisture being barely adequate for germination. In Saskatchewan high winds prevailing in various districts and general soaking rains would be beneficial. Other districts report good rains are necessary if normal growth is to result."

Why pay more than Household's low rate?

The nationally advertised Household plan offers cash loans of $50 to $300 to husbands and wives at reasonable rates.

Loans above $100 and up to $300 are made at a rate approximately one-third less than the rate permitted by the Illinois Loan Law.

MONEY FOR TAXES and Other Obligations
$10 TO $300
THE METRO LOAN PLAN enables you to make any amount up to $300 quickly and confidentially.

$10 allows as long as 25 months to repay, or, if you prefer, you may pay a part or all any time. Interest is very low and is charged only on the time you use the money.

Do not secure full particulars of METRO SERVICE without obligation by letter or any one of the nine conveniently located offices.

Great Crowds Fill Grant Park and Other Points of Vantage as Army Planes Fly Along Lake Front

[TRIBUNE Photo.]
